TO INAUGURATE THE GOVERNOR THIS EVENING

GOVERNOR GILLETTE OUTRAGES ALL SENSE OF POLITICAL DECENCY BY TRYING TO NAME INCOMING GOVERNOR'S APPOINTEES.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]
Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 3.—A desire to prevent a wholesale raid on the administrative appointments of Governor-elect Johnson by Governor Gillette is said to have caused the progressive leaders in the legislature to change their plans for the inauguration from Wednesday afternoon to tonight.

According to present plans, both houses will convene in joint session at 8 o'clock this evening. Speaker Hewitt, of the assembly, and President pro-tem Boynton, of the senate, respectively will call the sessions to order. After roll call and a selection by the orchestra, Senator Estudillo, chairman of the committee on inauguration, will announce the presence of the committee with the retiring governor, the incoming governor, the retiring lieutenant-governor and the incoming lieutenant-governor. Governor Gillette will address the legislature and Johnson then will be sworn as governor and will deliver his inaugural address. Albert J. Wallace will be sworn in as lieutenant-governor.

FIGHT TERRIFIC BATTLE.

by the bestegers. The police and the guards repeatedly attempted to storm the house, but as often were repulsed, and each time some of them were wounded. Houses for blocks around were deserted. Bullets whistled everywhere.

Winston Churchill Takes a Hand.
Plan after plan of capture was tried but to no effect. Finally the police succeeded in getting into a house adjoining, from which they kept up a merciless fire at the windows of the "fortress." This silenced the fire from within for a while, but any attempt to rush the building reopened it.

While the battle was at its height Secretary Churchill's automobile poked its way through the mob. A wild cheer greeted Churchill's appearance. Churchill, taking as many risks as any of his men, assumed personal supervision of the attack. Standing in a doorway directly opposite the refugees' retreat, Churchill ordered the machine guns to cover a rush by 1,500 of his men.

The rush was made, but the house took fire and the attacking party was forced to fall back. Covered with blood, the hunted men were seen from time to time as they rushed to the windows, gasping for breath and then climbed onto the roof, where they resumed firing.

General Conflagration Threatened.
It was believed that dynamite was stored in the building, and Secretary Churchill directed his men to retreat out of reach of the possible explosion.

The flames spread to adjoining buildings, and for a while a general conflagration was threatened, but finally the spread of the fire was checked.

The firemen were careful as they fought the flames to keep as far as possible from the house in which the anarchists were hiding, fearing the fusillade poured from the roof, and the danger of an explosion of stored dynamite.

The house, which had been the retreat of the anarchists and stood next door to a building known in the neighborhood as the Anarchists' club, burned fiercely. The heat on the roof must have been intense, and as the men fought, occasionally they could be seen trying to clear their eyes from the pungent smoke and shield their faces from the fierce heat below.

Went Down With the Roof.
The police shouted exultantly when it was seen that the escape of the anarchists was cut off. The answering spat of bullets was punctuated by a defiant yell from the roof as the men, crowded close to the eave gutters, fired their last few volleys.

At last, with a crash, the roof gave way and fell inward, the flames shooting skyward. Nothing could be seen of the men, and it was believed that they must have fallen into the fire. There was no possible chance of escape over the roofs of adjoining houses, the police say.

Although the battle was over when the roof gave way, the police were extremely cautious. The bodies of two firemen, killed as they endeavored to rush the house, lay at the entrance of the building and it was not for some minutes after the final crash that the police ventured forward to recover them.

Among the fatally injured near the close of the fight was a sergeant of the Scots Guards, struck by a flying bullet.

Men Killed Themselves.
When the fire had subsided, the police entered the anarchists' house. They reported finding the bodies of the men. One, near the entrance, evidently had abandoned his comrades and was endeavoring to make a dash for liberty when his body was riddled with bullets.

Just as the police entered the building mounted infantry and field guns arrived. Their arrival at the scene caused the report that anarchists had escaped. This, however, was found to be untrue.

The police say that five anarchists joined the two originally sought today. They entered the building, it is now believed, after the fight began. An examination showed that the men had killed themselves just before the roof fell, rather than permit the flames to end their lives.

Sequel to Houndsditch Fight.

The battle today was a sequel to the fight at Houndsditch, December 28, when the anarchists, after having been caught burrowing under a jewelry store, were attacked by the police. Three officers were killed at that time. The police had traced two of the men, "Peter the Painter" and "Fritz", to the quarter in London where today's battle occurred. They were hunting from house to house for the men and it is believed that friends of the fugitives warned them. The officers were unarmed, as are usually all London police. The other members of the gang, it is believed, were also hidden in the house where Peter and Fritz were staying and the police believe that in its destruction they have wiped out the seat of anarchistic activities in London. The others, it is believed, knew that the policemen had trace of the whole party and determined on a last desperate stand. The fight they put up leads the police to believe they were one of the best organized and most dangerous bands in England.

Plot Against King George.

It is generally believed that the prompt action of the police in calling for aid, the summoning of the Scots Guards and the part taken in the fray by Secretary Churchill, who ordered that the machine guns be used, indicates that the authorities had secret information causing them to believe that the plot against King George had not been crushed.

It is thought that the desperate fight by the police indicates that they believed the anarchists intended to attempt the life of King George on Coronation Day and that the anarchists would not have put up such desperate resistance had they not been facing charges other than those connected with the Houndsditch affair.

Even though facing murder charges, it is pointed out, the fate they would have met on conviction would not have been so terrible as that which they chose of their own will today. In so desperately defending the house, it is generally believed they were guarding secrets of their society that might have been discovered had the officers entered.

COLD WAVE HAS THE EAST.

ther bureau, it is expected to reach the New England states.

The gas plants in many of the larger cities have been affected by the cold and the supply is low. In some cities the water supply also is running short.

Railroads are still operating under difficulties. Trains are from six to eight hours late in the Northwest. Through West Nebraska they are fighting huge drifts. Many trains have been cancelled and only few are running on regular schedules.

The telegraph and telephone companies have suffered heavy losses. Wires throughout the storm-swept sections have been carried down and the work of repairing them has been greatly hampered by the wind and bitter cold.

Reports from many sections, cut off by the storm, have not yet been received. It is believed that the loss of livestock has been the greatest in a number of years.

GERMAN BUILDING SOCIETY MAKES PROFITABLE SALE

The German Building Society has made a sale of the corner north of the Marion Hotel to Graham Brothers, of Minneapolis, for $14,000. A payment has been made, and the understanding is that Graham Brothers, who are capitalists with resources in the East, will build a fine block with a magnificent hall for the German Society to meet in as soon as they can get on some of their capital. Graham Brothers are investing in Salem property, and both have secured lots for homes in this city. The corner was bought by the German Building Society two years ago for $8000, and they have made a handsome profit on the transaction.

BANQUET IS GIVEN.

pleasures of deglutition. The banquet was splendid; that goes without saying since it was furnished by the Hotel Marion, but there is something on occasions of this kind not dependent on chef or menu, and that is the spirit of friendship and good fellowship that make bacon and beans delicious and dry bread palatable. This was there abundantly. Employer and employee knew and appreciated each other at their real worth and all of them will mark the occasion with a white stone, as a delightful evening spent in a delightful way.

A brief but feeling address was made by Mr. Fred Steusloff, expressing the firm's appreciation of the loyal work of the employees, and wishing them all all kinds of prosperity, not only for 1911, but for all the years after.

The address was responded to along the same lines, and then the Steusloff brothers got a genuine surprise, the employees rendering a splendid musical program that caused everyone in the hotel to get within hearing distance.

The occasion will long be remembered by all participating and it might be added that the getting together of employers' and employees generally, at least once a year, should become a universal custom—in fact a habit.

CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY WITH A BANQUET

Mr. Russel Catlin, of the firm of Catlin & Linn, celebrated his 50th birthday last evening by giving a sumptuous banquet to his friends in the city at the Hotel Marion. The evening was most pleasantly spent, and many compliments were paid by the attending friends to the host. One of the pleasing features of the entertainment was the presentation to the host by those participating in the banquet of a handsome diamond locket watch charm. The gift came as a great surprise to Mr. Catlin, and he was visibly affected, but soon gained control over his emotions, and responded with a few words of warm appreciation.

Those present were Russel Catlin, T. B. Kay, Ben Olcott, Charles McNary, John Roberts, Max Buren, John Farrar, O. C. McCliland, Fred Stump, Percy Cotter, Frank Durbin, Henry Meyers, Charles Dick, James Willson, Fred Steusloff, Henry Tillson, W. Doolittle and Mayor Lechmund.

STATE TREASURER TURNS OVER FUNDS

State Treasurer Steel yesterday turned over to Treasurer-elect T. B. Kay the total amount of cash on hand up to the close of business December 31, 1910, and which amounted to $391,529.49. Of this amount there are bank balances in 45 banks in the state, amounting to $324,099.59. There are securities amounting to $78,175.90 in sureties and municipal bonds to guarantee payment to the state.

The cash in the vaults amounts to $36,727.76; remittances unrecipitated amounting to $8,626.33 and insurance commission funds unrecipitated amounting to $21,266.01; securities in common school, Oregon Agriculture, University of Oregon and Burbank Trust funds to the extent of $5,396,322.27, and school district bonds equal to $230,625; securities of foreign express and insurance companies amounting to $364,366.66.

Went Further.
Efforts are being made to secure $100,000 from the state to issue a boost pamphlet for free distribution in the East. The same parties supporting this scheme are almost invariably found depreciating the issuance of the state pamphlet on fallacious measure at the a-w-f-u-l cost of $25,000, or less. Yet it is an actual fact that the initiative pamphlet has advertised Oregon further and more lastingly than a million dollars of boost literature could possibly do—Portland Labor Press.
