

THE THREE HOUSES IN SESSION

FEDERATION OF LABOR AND BOTH HOUSES OF THE LEGISLATURE GATHERED FOR FRIENDLY TALK LAST NIGHT.

The joint meeting of the federation and the two houses of the legislature in the hall of representatives last evening, was called to order by Speaker "Jerry" Rusk, who upon motion requested President Wm. Daly, of the State Federation of Labor to take the chair which he did and then remarked that as he would have a few words to say from the floor, he would ask delegate J. J. Price, of the Typographical representatives of Portland, to preside.

Fraternal delegate A. I. Mason, of the Grange, spoke of what has been accomplished in the line of good roads and of the things that are in store for the future for the people of Oregon.

J. G. Parsons, delegate from Portland, compared the weapons used by organized labor, to those used by organized capital.

President of the senate, Ben Selling, was called upon and among other things said that the people had as much right to say who should represent them in the United States senate as to say who should be their councilmen or constables.

Secretary J. F. Cassidy, of the Oregon Federation, spoke on the employer's liability law and stated with particular emphasis that the labor organizations do not want that bill tampered with in the least degree. "Give the bill a trial," said Secretary Cassidy, "and then if the results from the operation of the bill are as pernicious as the employers are trying to make you believe, representatives and senators, organized labor will be the first to attempt to right the wrong."

Senator Joseph, of Multnomah, praised the initiative and statement number one as having been the means of breaking the old machine system. Ed. Rosenberg, representing the Saller's union, spoke on the "Rights of Labor."

Speaker Rusk assured the assembled laboring men that he was with them, and would stand for no tampering with a bill which the people had put upon the statutes by such a large majority as they did the employers' liability bill.

Mrs. L. Gee, representative of the United Garmentworkers, said that while the present child-labor law was good, it was not nearly good enough. For the child to be allowed to go to work at so tender an age as is allowed at this time is to rob it of its greatest right—childhood.

William Daly, president of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, asked the support of the legislature for the measures recommended by the federation.

He urged the senators and representatives to give as much consideration to the bills submitted by labor as they did to those of the "interests."

Senator Sinnott was introduced as the only man in the legislature who had spoken for the employers' liability law. He corrected this by pointing out that Senator Selling and others in both houses had favored it. He congratulated the country on the fact that it had reached a stage politically where such a meeting as they were then enjoying was possible, and expressed himself as being opposed to any tampering with the employers' liability law until it has had a trial.

Mr. Lorensen, of the Fisherman's Union, spoke at length on the protection of salmon. He is an authority on the fishery question and the word pictures he drew of conditions past as compared to the present were certainly enlightening.

Representative Seneca Pouts, of Multnomah, said he would always be found on the side of organized labor. Dan Malarkey, Ralph Clyde and Senator Oliver, who is a staunch friend of labor, all made short addresses. After which the meeting adjourned.

ROSE'S HAIR SAVED THE POLICEMAN

SHE CLEANED OUT THE DANCE HALL AND PUT THREE COPS TO THE BAD, AND THEN HER ABUNDANT TRESSES GOT IN THE WAY OF HER WORK.

up three husky policemen, is today starting a "thirty" in the county jail.

Rose, who is no fragile flower, juggles schooners of beer in a dance hall for a living. When the three cops saw the dance hall's patrons coming out of windows and doors, as tuck by all three landed her, though shot from a gun, they butted in. Rose was there. Then it happened.

When the three cops came to, Rose was standing before a mirror fastening up her tresses, and a quick at-

"If it hadn't been for my hair coming down," she said in court. "I'd showed them bulls a few things about physical culture."
