This is Goods Roads Day, and all good roads lead to Salem.

Chemeketa street people are all signing for bitulithic pavement, and, from the standpoint of a greater and more beautiful Salem, the best is none too good.

The whole legislature is going to Eugene Wednesday, and the visitors will see a bright and beautiful city that has done a great deal to advertise the whole state.

Alderman Elliott deserves credit for forcing the water ordinance out of the hands of the obstructionists, and making it a special order for next Monday night, when every business man of this city should be at the meeting of the city council.

If you have not made a memorandum on your calendar do so at once, and do not be out of town on the 31st of January, when the addition to the Salem High school should be voted. The school board should be sustained in its efforts to keep pace with the growth of the city, and the enlargement of the High School is an imperative necessity.

PUTTING ALL TAX ON LANDS.

A person who has no land can very well afford to join in a movement to put all taxes on lands.

The man with a two-story brick block on a lot alongside the man with a twelve-story brick on the same size lot will pay the same tax.

The man with no lot at all will not care so much what either of them pays, if in the long run he pays nothing.

The land tax advocates, say put all the tax on the land, and the man with the land will have to sell or improve his land.

These theories sound good to the ear, and may work out all right, and they may not, for land is wealth that can dictate.

Will not the land monopolist find ways to dictate to all who are compelled to use his land what they shall pay?

Land monopolists will lease lands for farms, or buildings, and make the one who uses the land pay the taxes.

Mr. U'Ren appeared before the committee on taxation yesterday for a bill to divide all values on land and improvements.

In separate columns there are to be assessed the value of the land, and then in another column the value of the improvements.

This is only a step towards carrying on a county campaign for the single tax in each county, and use these facts as a basis.

The appeal will be made to the farmers with improvements to stand in and get his improvements exempted and cinch the unimproved.

But in the long run will not the land owner find ways to make the rest of the people pay his taxes?

Will not those who finally buy lands have to pay all the taxes levied on land, and will not this tax advance lands?

It is the favorite argument of the single taxer that the owner of a brick block collects back all his taxes from the renters.

If that is true, which it is, is it not equally true that if all the tax is put on land, the land monopolists will do the same?

The single tax proposition looks well on the face, but, like other nostrums, it will not bear investigation, and will not work out.

Like other political nostrums, it will not furnish good administration, honest officials and executive ability.

CONCERNING THE BRIDGE AT BUTTEVILLE

Salem, Ore., Jan. 23, 1911

Ed. Journal: You will kindly, through your valuable paper, allow me to answer an article appearing in Monday morning's Oregonian with reference to people having joined the push club at Newberg. I do not wish to say anything harsh, nor criticize the people of Newberg in any way, shape or manner, but I like to see everything with reference to the bridge at Butteville or Newberg, to be on the square, and as there were mis-statements in this article, and no name signed to the same, I wish to state the plain facts, which are these. All but six or seven of the members of the Tri-County Push Club in Newberg signed a card pledging themselves to support the bridge at Butteville, not more than two months ago, and the sidewalk they speak of in the article was built a year ago. They did not contribute in any way, shape or form to this sidewalk. All but two or three were taken into the club as honorary members, for the reason that they were in a position to help the club in advocating and procuring the bridge at Butteville, and I wish to say further that all of the members from Newberg are intelligent business men, and a club card was laid before each of them, which they read and signed their names thereto, and the pledge each took was this: "We want the bridge at Butteville, and I pledge my support." Yours truly, WILL E. PURDY.

SENATOR OPPOSES REVISION

SENATOR FLINT, OF CALIFORNIA, IN A SPEECH BEFORE THE SENATE YESTERDAY, POINTS OUT THE TROUBLES THAT WOULD FOLLOW REVISION.

Senator Flint opposed Senator Cummins' tariff revision plan on the ground that under it no just and uniform tariff law could be framed whether the policy might call for tariff for protection or for tariff for revenue.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "the effect of its adoption would be that the manufacturing states would be enabled to frame a tariff solely in their interest and against the interest of the agricultural states."

"What is now proposed is not a general revision of the tariff based upon information sufficiently comprehensive to embrace all the industries in all parts of the country, but that there shall be a piecemeal revision based on information relating only to the particular schedule under consideration at the amount and giving no heed to its relation to schedules covering other industries."

Flint pointed out that there was now pending in the house a motion to bring up for passage a bill placing cattle, swine and sheep as well as all meat products upon the free list. He said the purpose was to follow this up with separate bills to put on the free list asphaltum, salt, fish, seeds, hops, eggs, hay, straw, flax, beans, butter, onions, peas, potatoes, beet, cheese, milk, barley, malt, cornmeal, macaroni, vermicelli, oatmeal, rolled oats, biscuit barley, buckwheat, corn, maize, oats, rice, rye, wheat and lumber.

He declared that under a provision of this kind the senate would be called upon to pass bills placing these articles on the free list one at a time with no power to change or amend any schedule.

Senator Flint said the passage of a tariff bill that will give protection to all the industries of the country was a prime necessity.

"We are constantly reminded in framing a tariff bill, it must be remembered, that a single foreign country frames a tariff bill as we would for New England alone. In those countries there is not the diversification that there is in the United States. If an attempt should be made to frame a tariff bill that would spread its benefits all over Europe, then some idea might be obtained of the difficulty that confronts us as tariff makers."

Continuing Senator Flint said: "There are some persons in my state who have been deluded by the idea of a purely local tariff. They have been told that it was not expected that the duty on citrus fruits, olives, olive oil, walnuts and a hundred and one things that are raised in my state would be disturbed but that the robber barons of the tariff are in the manufacturing states and that it is on the product of the factories of New England and the East that the revisions are to be made in the proposed tariff. It has never occurred to them that in other parts of the country local protectionists are saying the same thing to the people of their sections."

"I take it that the people in the state of Montana who favored tariff revision did not contend that wool or lead should be placed on the free list. And this is true of the local protectionist in every other state."

"All through the East in the last campaign the local protectionists and those favoring a tariff for revenue only were saying to the people: 'We are going to give you modern protection on what you produce but we will have free food products from the West and free raw material.'"

"Did they tell the people of the Eastern manufacturing centers that free food products and free raw materials would carry with them cheaper wages for factory operatives and a double measure of protection for the manufacturers?"

"The local protectionists have been discussing the matter in the several sections of the country, one contending for revision in one particular place and another for revision in another particular place, each one laboring under the impression that he was fooling the rest of the country and only very certainly fooling himself."

"It may be that temporarily the manufacturing interests will be able to avail themselves of the fruits of their victory they seem to have won and will be able to place on the free list products of the labor of the farmers of the West. But the inevitable result of the adoption of this policy will be that the farmer, his income cut down, will seek to buy the manufactures that he uses in the cheapest market in the world."

"And while the fact will remain that the cheap laborers from Asia will be excluded from this country

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY CHICAGO

As a result of tariff policy of free products and free raw material and free food products with moderate protection for manufactured articles, it will follow that the agriculturists will demand that the products of cheap labor in the form of manufactured goods shall be brought in free of duty.

"Already they have awakened in the West, or at least they are beginning to awaken from the fact that they are outnumbered in the East and that their theory of local protection is not the one that is to be adopted by the schedule revisionists who follow the idea that a tariff should be revised after the program laid down by a tariff board. It is the local protection idea of New England and the Eastern states that has been adopted."

Senator Flint declared he would favor a tariff board providing it was made up with the understanding that the work of the board will be taken up in the order in which schedules were set forth in the present tariff act and that no report is to be made until the board shall have completed work on the entire schedule. Otherwise, he declared, he was unalterably opposed to the tariff board.

TWO UTAH BANKS CLOSE THEIR DOORS

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.] Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 24.—Inability to realize on their assets rapidly enough to meet heavy withdrawals of cash on the part of depositors, is given today as the principal reason for the suspension of the Utah's Banking Company's banks at American Forks and Lehi, Utah.

The banks closed their doors on orders of State Bank Examiner C. A. Glazier, who took charge of the two institutions.

There has been a steady withdrawal of deposits for over a week.

COLD KILLS THE GERM

Lieut. Perry Says There Are No Bald Heads in the Arctic Region.

The people who come back from Klondike testify to the fact that no native bald heads are there. The evidence is that the cold climate kills the germs that eat the hair off at the root. Lieut. Perry, who went to the Arctic regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. It kills the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, and the hair grows again. Herpicide is the first hair remedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10 cents in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. One dollar bottles guaranteed. J. C. Perry, druggist.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION In a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for dressing the hair and making it grow. In older times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.
