$10,000 for the purpose and that its home merchants. would give the city $30,000 to build bridges with. The paving work in progress in the city makes it imper-ative that certain bridges be built and the bridge on Capitol street is necessary as the people living beyond the creek are now without fire protection. The council because of those conditions will probably avail itself of this clause and use that amount of money for bridge conneeds of the city.

CROWDS ATTEND OREGON SHOE COMPANY'S SALE SPECEL

The Saturday before Easter Sunday certainly proved a record day for crowds on the streets of Salem. There was without question a center of attraction from early morning to closing time at the Oregon Shoe company's store on Commercial

There must have been many hundreds that attended the sale. Twenty-five clerks were in attendance and there was not one "let-up" during the whole day. There will be a continuance of the crowds during the present week, without any question.

YODER HELD TO GRAND JURY GIVES BOND

After listening for a whole day to the evidence adduced at the preliminary examination of A. H. Yoder, superintendent of the Woodburn schools, and who was charged with assault and battery, Judge Webster Saturday evening bound him over to the grand jury. W. J. Jerman, mayor of Woodburn, and Eugene Mosh. berg, of the same place, signed his bonds, and he was given his liberty until the grand jury convenes, when the charge against him will be fully investigated.

The offense is alleged to consist in Yoder calling Ledia Shimback, a 14-year-old girl into his office, and taking liberties with her person, At the examination he was represented All patent medicines or medicines adthat there was a conspiracy on the part of certain teachers to oust Yodtr from his position. Evidence was introduced along that line, and also to the good character of Yoder.
