"WAPPY" IS ON TRIAL IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., June 26.—The second trial of Charles W. Wapenstein, the eight times indicted ex-chief of police began today. In the first trial the jury disagreed. A special venire of 100 was summoned by Judge Ronald, who will preside in place of Judge Main, from whom a change of venue was secured by Wapenstein. The examination of jurors began this morning, and the first talesman, Robert Avon, a grocer, was challenged by the defense on account of his admission of prejudice, and he was excused. Wapenstein is accused of accepting a $1000 bribe from Gld Tupper and Clarence Gerald for the operation of two resorts.

REFUSED TO ACCEPT BIG BRIBE

NEW YORK, June 26.—Refusal of a bribe of $300,000 to abandon investigation into jewel smuggling in which three millionaires are alleged to be involved today has cost Richard Parr, exposé of the giant frauds of the sugar trust, the life of his infant son, and, perhaps, will also cost that of his wife. Parr declared a Wisconsin millionaire, a Tennessee capitalist and a New York banker were involved in smuggling jewels for a beautiful woman known as "Mrs. Helen Jenkins." When the men found, Parr says, that they were being trailed, a private detective in their employ offered him a bribe of $300,000 to abandon the case, and intimated that if he thought the sum insufficient he should name his own price. All the evidence Parr has gathered has been turned over by Collector Loeb to District Attorney Wise, and a huge scandal is expected to result from the prosecutions of the rich smugglers before the United States courts. Parr's information of the affair first came from the beautiful Mrs. Jenkins, who will be the government's chief witness against the millionaires, because one of them, with whom she had quarreled, had her trailed by detectives. Parr says, the man he was hunting had some unknown person call Mrs. Parr on the telephone and make charges against the customs sleuth's intimacy with Mrs. Jenkins. Parr's wife at the time was in a delicate condition. On hearing of her husband's alleged perjury she at once became hysterical. Yesterday her baby was born dead, and today Mrs. Parr herself is on the verge of the grave.

PRACTICED WHAT SHAW PREACHED

Chicago, June 26.—Comparison of G. Bernard Shaw, the noted English dramatist and social writer, with Evelyn Arthur See, prophet of the "Absolute Life," is one side issue here of the trial of See for causing the delinquency of Mildred Bridges, the girl disciple who lived with him and another girl, Mona Rees, in a house styled "The Junior Commonwealth." Neighbors of See's "Commonwealth" were the cause of Shaw's name entering the case. When they circulated petitions that the police See to move, the defense contended that See's writings in his "Book of Truth" were no worse than the tenets advocated in Shaw's writings. This, the attorneys for the state practically admitted. "But," they said, "the difference is that while the views of Shaw and See are much the same, Shaw did not practice what he preached." And the circulation of the petitions that the "prophet" should move is going merrily on.

THE TIRESOME LORIMER CASE IS UP AGAIN

Washington, June 26.—Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, whose allegation that Edward Hines, a millionaire Chicago lumberman, asked him to contribute to a $100,000 "slush fund" to pay for United States Senator Lorimer's election, testified today before the senate committee investigating the Lorimer affair. Funk admitted that he watched all political activities which might affect the harvester trust, but denied that the company lobbied, either in the Illinois legislature or in congress. He declared that he did not regard Lorimer as an enemy, and had never heard of the accused senator's name mentioned as the person responsible for a great increase in the harvester company's taxes. Funk told of the request he asserted Hines had made for a contribution to the slush fund of $100,000, alleged to have been used to elect Lorimer. He said the request was made in the rooms of the Union League club, Chicago. Every man is just enough of a liar to keep himself amused.
