FULL LEASED WIRE TELEGRAPH REPORT

LET US HAVE A FLIGHT OVER THE CITY.

There should be some way of getting the Salem men who have built the aeroplane to fly over the city.

Inventors lead a precarious existence, and when two Salem men have built a flying machine they should be invited to crown their labors with a glorious success.

Messrs. Taylor and Huddleston have spent about $2000 perfecting a biplane and learning to fly it, and all to the credit and good advertisement of Salem.

We make the motion that they be invited to fly the machine over the Capital City on a guarantee sufficient to cover their expenses.

This should not cost over five thousand dollars, and it should come off some Saturday, and would bring immense crowds to the city.

Let them guarantee a flight over the state capitol, or no money, and when they make the flight over the city, witnessed by thousands of visitors, let us give them the bonus.

It would be a splendid advertisement of Salem, and a splendid recognition of the enterprise of these inventors.

Besides, they can get any number of contracts at other places if they make this flight here.

Many people are still skeptical about their being able to fly their machine, and that would set all minds at rest.

Let us make them up a purse conditional upon their flying the Salem-made aeroplane over the Capital City.

It will bring many thousand people to the city on any Saturday the event can be arranged for, and merely advertised in the press.

Let some committee take hold of this matter and The Capital Journal will cheerfully contribute ten dollars towards it.

BRONCHO BUSTING INHUMAN.

The Oregonian makes the following comment on a recent occurrence at Salem:

"A Salem jury declares rough riding and broncho-busting not inhumane to horses. But how about the riders? That depends on what the bronchos do to them."

The above item is incorrect in that it conveys the wrong impression as to what was really done at Salem.

Complaints came to the Salem Humane Society that some men were conducting a broncho-busting show on the east part of the city.

President Keele made an investigation, and, in his opinion, the treatment of the horses was inhuman and cruel and unlawful. A few witnesses were summoned at random and the ladies of the Humane Society attended the trial of the men who rode the horses.

There was also a bull rode by some of the men, and, while that is not generally known as a riding animal, no attention was paid to that.

Neither the district attorney nor his deputy could be present at the trial, and a young lawyer tried the cases.

The owners of the horses, on the other hand, had one of the best jury lawyers in the city, and there was not much of a case made.

The jury found that there had not been sufficient evidence to convict the men of cruel and inhuman conduct under the state law.

Just the same, broncho-busting is cruel and inhuman and against the state law in that respect, and the laws should be enforced.

The Humane Society deserves public thanks for prosecuting all such cases, even though a vigorous prosecution does not follow.

The Mexican bit, murderous long spurs, and the whip cutting the flanks to make the animals exhibit vicious dispositions are cruel in themselves.

Horses are no longer broken by such means in intelligent communities, but are taught to be tractable and useful by gentler ways.

The plea was made that these horses shown at Salem were outlawed horses, or horses that could never be broken for usefulness.

There is no such thing as an outlaw horse, but there are horses whose dispositions have been ruined by cruel and inhuman treatment.

Constable John Lewis did his duty in arresting the men, and bringing them into a court of justice, if they were not convicted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The hum of the grain separator will be the next agreeable music to be heard in Oregon.

A course in domestic science at a high school or college will be a better certificate of efficiency for any young woman than a four-year course in Latin.

All who have not had their fill of hot weather back east can now say they have had an additional touch here in Oregon.

Sales of The Capital Journal on the streets last night, 251, and almost no other papers sold on the streets. What is the matter with a paper that speaks out in meeting once in a while.

Next Saturday's Journal will be a regular booster edition. In spite of quiet times elsewhere, in spite of midsummer heat and lassitude, in spite of many people letting up on pushing business, there is a great demand for property and more improvements going on than ever before at this season.

With a six-story Masonic temple, a fifty-thousand dollar armory, a railroad bridge to West Salem, a new Temple of Justice, ten new state buildings and hundreds of private buildings, Salem has a grand future ahead—right near in fact.

CORPORATIONS NEVER DIE IN OLD OREGON

Because there is no law on the statute books of the state limiting the time in which a dead corporation can be reinstated there are thousands of names on the corporation books in the office of the secretary of state which can not be used by new corporations and as many of them are of a character which makes them of common use.

The law provides that when a corporation fails to pay its annual license fee for a period of two years that it shall be dissolved by the governor and many are dissolved each year. After it is dissolved, however, its name stays on the corporation books as the law says that by paying the back license fees it may be reinstated and as there is no limit to the time in which it may be reinstated, the name must remain indefinitely.

The law further provides that a new corporation can not use a name which has already been used by a corporation and hence the daily conflict when new articles are received. Incorporators Dead. As an illustration of the effect of the present law may be cited the case where the Farmers Mercantile company, of Haynes, applied to the secretary of state to file its articles of incorporation.

ARTHUR PIERCE SUSPECTED OF THE MURDER

Olympia Wash., July 13.—With a $1000 reward, offered half by Thurston county and half by the state for the capture of the murderer of Archie and Nettie Coble, Sheriff Gaston and his men are scouring the county for evidence against Arthur Pierce, a half-witted man at Tenino last night. "Before I heard of Pierce in connection with the murder," said Gaston today, "the people in Tenino told me that he had been acting strangely all day. I thought his mind, always weak, had been affected by hearing about the murder."

STATE BOARD IS BACK FROM A LONG TRIP

After an eight-day tour of inspection of the various irrigation projects in the state, the members of the State Board and the State Desert Land Board returned to the city last evening, and this morning resumed their labors at their respective offices in the capitol building. The first stop made by the party was at Klamath Falls, and from there it proceeded to Lakewiew. Its mission to this place was two-fold—the inspection by the members of the Desert Land Board of a project in the north end of Warner valley, and the examination by the members of the State Board of lands owned by the Warner Valley Stock company, and about which the company is in litigation with the state. An effort is being made to compromise the dispute, and the merits of the compromise were fully gone into by the members of the board.

Settlers Want the Land. From Lakewiew the party went to Paisley and here its members were surprised to find about 12,000 acres of almost level land subject to irrigation held up, because of the inability of a Portland concern to carry out its contract under the Carey act to reclaim the land. The settlers are anxious to have the land restored to entry, so that they may appropriate it under the dry farming laws.

At the Ann River project the party found several steam shovels and dredges at work constructing canals to irrigate 31,000 acres of land, and at Bend it looked over the canals of the Central Oregon Irrigation company, which now irrigate 60,000 acres of land.

From Bend the party journeyed homeward, arriving late last night.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to prepared medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious.

MURDER AND SUICIDE AT WALLA WALLA

Walla Walla, Wash., July 13.—After shooting and fatally wounding Dallas Marquis, a hack driver killed himself with the same weapon as he was entering the police station in custody of an officer. Marquis was shot through the head and can not recover. The two men had engaged in a fist fight late last night and about 1:30 this morning Meinecke sent in a call for a cab. Marquis answered the call and the shooting followed a resumption of the quarrel. Meinecke went to police headquarters to surrender, but refused to part with his gun. He then left but was brought in by Patrolman Wilcox. As the officer entered the door with his prisoner, Meinecke slipped his revolver from his pocket and fired a bullet through his brain before he could be disarmed.

SELECT ALL THE OFFICES BUT TREASURER

San Francisco, July 13.—Carroll G. Pearce, of Milwaukee, will be the next president of the N. E. A. In the nominating meeting this morning Pearce had 27 votes to 20 for A. E. Winslip of Boston, the "old guard" candidate.

Durand W. Springer, the present treasurer, received 24 votes to 23 for Miss Katherine Devereaux Blake, of New York, the insurgent candidate. Undismayed by this, the insurgents will carry the fight for the treasurership to the floor of the convention.

"We will win for Miss Blake there," said Miss Margaret Healy, of Chicago.

The following were nominated for vice presidents: Mrs. E. E. Young, Ill.; George H. Carpenter, Tex.; C. F. Phillips, Ark.; Mrs. Helen M. Wick, Colo.; Dr. Samuel Andrews, Penn.; R. H. Wilson, Okla.; F. S. Stockwell Wyo.; Edward Hyatt, Cal.; Woodland C. Phillips, Md.; E. D. Kessler, Ore.; Vaughan McCaughey, Honolulu.

As there are only 11 vice presidents to be elected, the nomination of those named is equivalent to their election.

THE DATE OF M'NAMARA TRIAL IS NOT FIXED

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13.—The date for the commencement of the trial of the McNamara brothers charged with the murder of 19 persons in connection with the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building will be set by superior Judge Walter Bordwell at 10 o'clock Friday morning. The attorneys for the defense today said that on account of the great mass of evidence yet to be collected they would like to have the date set as late as December 1.

District Attorney Fredericks lists that the date should not be set later than October 1. The impression prevailed around the courthouse today that Judge Bordwell would set the date for about November 1. Defense attorneys conferred with the district attorney relative to the date for the trial, but no agreement was reached.
