THE SALEM WATER CO. IMPROVES

IS EXTENDING MAINS, PUTTING IN NEW PUMPS AND SPENDING THIS YEAR IN IMPROVEMENTS ABOUT $50,000.

The Salem Water company opened its offices in the city hall 15 years ago at the unanimous request of the common council. In the same unanimous manner they were invited to pull out of there a few weeks ago, and have now established comfortable offices in the building formerly occupied by the Salem Flouring Mills company corner of Commercial and Trade streets. The same force is there employed. Mr. Chas. A. Park, who succeeded the late A. M. Wallace as president and manager, is in charge. All bills for water are payable there. All records are kept there. All construction work is directed from there.

Extensive Work Being Done.
 To meet the rapid growth and expansion of the Capital City for the past 15 months, an enormous amount of construction work is being done in the way of extending the mains, and enlarging the whole plant. Large mains are being laid in East Salem, North Salem, and South Salem and on all hard service streets they are being laid with pavement water mains are being put in for permanent service and to meet the demands for years to come.

Keeping Its Pledges.
 When Mayor Lachmund recently vetoed the bill passed by the common council for the purchase of the plant he said that while it might be expedient, there was no immediate hurry about municipal ownership. He meant by those words to convey the idea that the plant could be bought by the city at some time in the future. President Parker took him at his word and began at once the work of meeting the demands of a growing city. Between now and New Year's the company will spend about $50,000 in enlarging the service of the Salem Water company.

President Parker Interviewed.
 "We are carrying out just what we said we would do when we made our statement to the people after the mayor's veto was filtered. We will keep our pledges and do what we would have done long ago if we had not entered into negotiations with the city. It is our policy to improve the property and give the people the best possible service. We are running our mains now and are going to meet the demands for irrigation. We are delivering three and one-half million gallons per day to the people of Greater Salem. We have ordered a large new pump to be manufactured of the most modern pattern, to be driven by electric power and to be installed as soon as it can be delivered. There will be no complaint from the people as to our activity or keeping good faith with this community. We have always done so in the past and we mean to keep up our reputation. It was not our fault that these improvements were delayed for nearly two years."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Secretary Ben Oleott does away with the office of assistant secretary of state and does that work himself. He cuts down officially padded payrolls. The office of attorney-general must have a second assistant attorney-general, and that department worked up the job and got the law passed creating the office. That is merely mentioned to show the two tendencies of public servants. One has regard for the interests of the public service and the taxpayer. The other has not. Which do you prefer?

The Salem Auto club, by simply hiring a few men to rake the borders off the roads leading into Salem has done more to give the people good smooth highways than was ever done before for the same expenditure of money. President William Brown deserves credit for his enterprise and common sense. Care takers on the highways we now have would make the roads travelable, but there would not be any big contractor's rakeoff on hiring a few care takers, and no expensive machinery to buy with public money.

Now comes the best sign of returning good times we have yet seen. One thousand men are wanted at Spokane to work in railroad and lumber camps at $2.25 a day. With good crops and fair prices, and the labor market improving there are bright days ahead. With reciprocity established and general progress in local and national affairs and a stable administration back of it all, the country has nothing to fear.

There is a county judge to appoint down in Washington county. There is the usual rustling for the job among the two-bit politicians, and there is not a jack-lawyer or political heeler in that county has any doubt but that he was cut out for the job by the Almighty himself. Governor West should pass them all up and consider that Washington county has been the most non-progressive county in Western Oregon in road building. It has less miles of good roads than any county in the state so close to Portland. If the governor can find a man there who has any intelligence on this question he should appoint him county judge, with the distinct understanding that he make good on the line of modern road building.

It will be highly becoming for the Salem fans to back up the Salem team with a good crowd at the Woodburn ball game.

This copy of The Capital Journal is a good one to send to people who are talking of coming to Oregon to locate.

The hot spell is not over yet, but soon will be.

HALF A MILLION IN BUSINESS BLOCKS, SALEM'S 1911 RECORD

Work on Capitol, Armory and Carnegie Library Building to Commence in Short Time—Some Fine Business Blocks Projected on State and High—Hundreds of Residences Built Will Make a Grand Total of More Than a Million Dollars in Buildings Erected in Salem This Year.

With definite assurances that the Masonic Temple will be constructed by the Masonic lodges of the city on their site on the corner of High and State and with many business structures already under process of construction and business men making plans for the erection of other before the building season is at an end it is certain now that the present year will go down in the history of the city as the greatest building year of them all.

Some time ago it was announced that the Masonic lodges had decided to build and that an architect in Portland had been employed to draw the plans. The announcement now comes that all the money necessary for the erection of the building is subscribed and that everything else is in readiness so that just as soon as the plans are completed, the work of constructing the building will commence. It is to be a seven story steel structure and will cost approximately $75,000.

The Capitol Building.
 First, the members of the state board comes the cheering news that just as soon as the state architect can prepare the plans, and it will not be long now before he will have them completed—the work of constructing the additional capital building will commence. The block lying just east of the state house grounds has been secured as a site—and it is a handsome one. The legislature appropriated $150,000 for the purchase of the site and building. The former cost $50,000, leaving $100,000 for the building, but as convict labor will be made use of in some cases, and brick made by convict labor at the state penitentiary be used, a building that would otherwise cost considerably in excess of that price will be built. The work of erecting the building will probably be commenced next month and it is estimated that it will require a year to complete it.

Armory Building.
 Another fine building which will be erected and upon which the construction work will be commenced soon is the armory building which will cost about $40,000. This building will be located on the ground just back of the Hotel Marion, and its erection will mean the improvement of the block between Ferry and Trade streets.

The library committee is waiting for the plans for the Carnegie Library building and when work commences upon it in the next month it will mean still another public building for the city. The money, $26,000 is here and as soon as the committee receives the plans back from Andrew Carnegie's secretary, contracts for the erection of the building will be awarded.

Will Be Fine Brewery.
 The construction work on the brewery building of the Salem Brewery association is going forward at a rapid and satisfactory pace. He able to complete the city will be able to boast of one of the most complete brewing plants in the northwest. This building, together with the machinery, will cost between $75,000 and $100,000.

Work on the White & Son building on State and just west of Commercial, is progressing rapidly, and the same is true of the Ingelbart building, which is in process of construction on Twelfth street near State.

Both are two story brick buildings. White & Son will occupy all of the lower floor and part of the upper of their building and the remainder will be used for office rooms. The lower portion of the Ingelbart building will be used for store purposes and in the upper store there will be apartments.

Hamilton to Build.
 Clarence Hamilton contemplates building a three story block on his property near the McGilchrist corner, and this will mean another fine building for the city. It is estimated that it will cost about $75,000.

McGilchrist has not yet made any announcement as to whether he will build on his property on the corner of Liberty and State or not, but it is understood that he is considering the proposition. It is understood that a business merchant recently offered him $500 a month for the first floor, and that now he has even a better offer than that.

In the residential sections homes are springing up everywhere, and all are of a substantial character and modern in architecture.

THEY FAILED TO UNDERSTAND THE OPINION

Many Corporations Would Dodge Paying License Because They Have Declared No Dividends—Their Thick-headedness About Attorney General's Opinion Accounts for the Non-dividend Condition.

Misconstruing an opinion rendered by Attorney General Crawford the other day at the request of the corporation department of the office of secretary of state, and which was to the effect that only corporations organized for gain or profit were compelled to pay an annual license, fee and that eleemosynary corporations were not liable for a license, scores of corporations organized for gain are claiming that they come within the terms of the opinion on the ground that they have never paid a dividend, and are urging it as a ground against the payment of their license fee.

What the attorney general intended to say and he probably did say it, only his language has been misunderstood was that any corporation organized for profit and under whose articles it is possible for it to engage in a business in which it might reap a profit, must pay an annual license fee, and it would not matter whether it had ever paid a dividend or not. The only corporations excused from the paying the fee are such as are organized for charitable, benevolent, literary and religious purposes, and in order for them to be excused it must appear in the articles of incorporation that under no circumstances do they give power to engage in a business where a profit might be reaped.

The corporations, however, construed his opinion to mean that if they had never declared a dividend that they were excused from paying the annual license fee, and hence the flood of letters to the corporation clerk. One corporation—a packing concern—says that its only purpose is to acquire information along this line, but the articles show that it is empowered to do a general packing business and to declare dividends among the stockholders. A brewery wants to be excused because during all the years of its existence it has never paid a dividend and therefore cannot, says its secretary, be declared to be a profit-making corporation.

Corporation Clerk Babcock is spending the day in answering the letters and explaining the opinion of the attorney general.
