

JUDGE BUSHEY EXPLAINS HIS STAND ON ROADS

The following letter received by The Journal from Judge Bushey explains his position on the matter of county funds for the Pacific highway.

"The article in reference to the construction of the Portland-Salem highway, which appeared in the Sunday Statesman, requires some explanation; for it appears that some one is trying to deceive the public in reference to the part the county court is taking in this matter. I have endeavored for two or three weeks to get the people living in the vicinity of this highway to vote special taxes as they are doing in many other districts. We have made them the same offer of assistance that we make to any district that tries to improve the roads. I went with the governor's commission among these people and explained very fully what the county court was doing in road matters. We explained that we had secured cheap freight rates on the railroad and were perfecting plans to get rock at the lowest possible cost.

Last Friday in the presence of the county commissioners I informed Governor West that we would proceed to construct this road as soon as the money was voted by those districts and the proper season had arrived. It seems that some one is in a very great hurry to start this work. It will do the cause no good to lay the blame on me. The governor and his commission will know that as soon as we are sure of the money that the court will start this improvement. But I shall not start this work until I know that we can make a success of it, and treat the people in that section of the county just as we do in other parts.

No Money in Sight.
"What more do you want? It appears that you want to start immediately. There is no money in sight, moreover you will have to handle all the material twice. Why not get ready and proceed in a practical way? However, put up the money and we will start for you. Unless you have more money than I think you have, it will last but a very short time. I will invest your money in this way if you desire, but I shall endeavor to proceed differently with the district funds. And again it is not necessary for you to wait for this court. It seems that you have made terms with the construction company, and as it is a very easy and expensive matter to carry this work forward, how would it do for you to go ahead with this work of procuring and delivering rock? If the districts vote the money we will take it up where you quit and build as far as the money goes. If the districts vote the necessary amount of money, we will need the assistance of all the help we can get, and I am confident that all parties connected with the improvement will conclude before the work is done that it is no small job to build a small section of the Pacific highway. W. M. BUSHEY, Salem, Oregon, Oct. 9."

LIBRARY MUST NOT EXCEED ITS PURSE LIMIT

Giving it as his opinion that the city library, with an appropriation of $3000 a year, ought to live within its income, Mayor Lachmund, when a petition was presented by the library board asking for a refund from the council for expenses incurred in moving the library, made it clear last night that, while he would sign a warrant for the amount prayed for in the petition, that in the future the institution must not come before the council for additional aid.

Asked for $472.37.
The board asked for the refund of $472.37. The amount, it was stated, was incurred as extra expense in moving the library from the city hall to its new quarters, and also in extra expense for maintenance. "This council appropriated $3000 for the support of the library," said the mayor, "while the preceding council appropriated but $1800 for it. That is considerable of an increase, and I believe that the institution, despite its additional expenses should live within its means. I believe you (indicating Councilman Durbin, who championed the cause for the library) have been heard to advocate a similar policy with relation to other departments of the city," the mayor sarcastically concluded. "and I want it understood now that, while I will sign the warrant for this amount, that the institution must not come and ask for any more financial assistance."

To Combine Libraries.
Councilman Durbin stated that there was a movement on foot to combine the public school and city libraries, and that this would bring $1200 for the support of the city library from the school board. It would be of benefit to the city in a financial way, he stated, and also to the school, in that it would give the children the benefit of a library during every month of the year. He also stated that the specifications of the new Carnegie library would be completed in a few days, and that within three weeks construction work would be under way. There is available for the erection of the building $27,000, he asserted, and he gave it as his opinion, that the library would not need any more assistance before it was ready to move into its new home. The expenses, he asserted, were legitimate, and the refund could not be made for a better cause than the library.

Briefly, her command in Canada included the following special features: The reception and care of refugees during the Armenian atrocities, the inauguration of army day schools throughout Newfoundland and the opening of work on the Yukon during the rush for gold to the Klondike, also the birth and growth of prison work, for which she has personally gained the approval of the highest government officials in the land.

Besides a winning personality, an attractive womanliness, and a spirit of grace and heroism Miss Booth is endowed with a silvery tongue, and ranks as one of the first orators of the age. Wherever she goes, the largest buildings are inadequate to accommodate the crowds. A contemporary writes of her thus: "A peerless leader, a master mind, a strong and tender heart; she holds a position few could occupy and none could fill, consolidating the army's work and captivating poor and rich alike wherever she goes."

Midnight in The Ozarks.
And yet sleepless, Hiram Scranton, of Clay City, Ill., coughed and coughed. He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home. Hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it. "I believe it saved my life," he writes, "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work again." ### WEAK MINDED AND SO HELD IRRESPONSIBLE

Upon the recommendations of the jury which indicted him, Judge Kelly this morning dismissed the charge of larceny from a building, preferred against Mat Effer, and he will be returned to his home at Portland.

Effer is a comparatively young man, and weak mentally and it was this latter fact that influenced the jury to make its recommendations and the judge to carry them into execution. He was charged with stealing three razors from Andy Hansen. He admitted stealing them, declaring that he was broke and unable to get work and that he took them with the hope of obtaining enough money on them to get a meal and a bed. His mother resides at Portland and he will be provided with enough money by the county court to convey him back to her.

again and again proved the herald of an era of peace. In the riots of Torquay, White church, Eastbourne and Ryde, she figured as a very Joan of Arc. She protested the army's rights for open-air work at these places and personally led the parade through yelling and blood-thirsty mobs, who offered rewards of 500 to any man who would knock her down or capture her bonnet. Her courage and boldness on the street were only equalled by her tact and wisdom behind the scenes.

She finally took the matter to Parliament, to interview the members of the commons and representatives of the lords, and at last won the repeal of the obnoxious bylaws which forbade the army's privileges.

Her last appointment in England, under the title of Field Commissioner, was in command of the London Province and as principal of the International Training Home, in which position she had 21,000 Salvation soldiers, 600 officers and about 300 cadets always under her control.

From here she received orders for Canada, where as commander for nine years, she wrought magnificent service in the work to which her vast abilities are consecrated.
