The November St. Nicholas.

Every number of St. Nicholas, from November to April, is announced, is to have the beginning of a new serial, or series of articles. In the November issue will be the first chapters of "Croton Clums," the new serial by that favorite writer, Ralph Henry Barbour. These first chapters promise a serial along rather new lines for Mr. Barbour; but a narrative full of the fresh and wholesome interest which characterizes all his stories.

Another beginning of good things in this number is the first of a story, "The Knights of the Golden Spur," by Rupert Sargent Hughes, author of "Historic Boyhoods," "Historic Girlhoods," etc., presenting a novel and delightful treatment of famous old legends.

Of many short sketches and stories, one of special interest to the older readers of St. Nicholas is Day Allen Willey's "The Little Brothers of the Y. M. C. A.," a sympathetic account, with many pictures, of the splendid work among boys being done by the Young Men's Christian Associations of this country.

It is good news that Hildegarde Hawthorne's splendid series of talks to boys and girls on "Books and Reading" will continue through the new magazine year. These talks are helpful and inspiring essays, opening a new world of enjoyment and profit to boys and girls who read them.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

James C. Dahlman, "Cowboy" Mayor of Omaha, "Throws the Lariat"

Mayor Jas. C. Dahlman is of an interesting and impressive personality. Starting his career as a cowboy, he is at present mayor of Omaha, and has the following record to his credit: Sheriff of Daves county, three terms; mayor of Chadron, two terms; Democratic national committeeman, eight years; mayor of Omaha, six years, and in 1910 candidate for governor of Nebraska. Writing to Foley & Co., Chicago, he says: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and they have given me a great deal of relief, so I cheerfully recommend them." Yours truly, (Signed) "James C. Dahlman."—Red Cross Pharmacy (H. Jerman.)

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for 15 years," says Enoch Lollar, of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

MARTIN CASE IS NOT YET IN THE DISCARD

That Lee Martin, though he was successful in avoiding extradition to the state of Colorado, where he is wanted for an assault upon his wife, Pearl Martin, with intent to commit an abortion, has not evaded all criminal prosecutions, and that his arrest will follow in the state is the prediction being made by those closely connected with the case.

SALVATION ARMY TO THE FRONT AGAIN

The Salvation Army is to again be favored with a visitor of international reputation. Colonel Samuel L. Brengle, who is acknowledged to be the army's greatest holiness evangelist, will arrive in Salem tomorrow and will conduct services at the Army hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Again on Sunday at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. At 7:30 Sunday evening at the First M. E. church. The Colonel was born in Indiana in 1860; his father was an officer in the Union army and lost his life at the siege of Vicksburg. The Colonel graduated from Depauw University, Greencastle, Indiana, in 1883. He was a member of the Delta Kappa Upsilon fraternity, and represented his Chapter in the national convention at Brown's University in 1882. He was also active in college Y. M. C. A. work and represented his university in the international convention in Milwaukee in 1883. He was particularly interested in the study of oratory, gaining all the prizes given by the university, and was its representative in the state oratorical contest in 1883. It was while studying theology in Boston University that he met the Salvation Army, which he joined in 1887. He has a world wide reputation as an author. His books have been translated into German, Swedish, Finnish, Japanese, French, etc. Six years ago General Booth commissioned him to world-wide evangelism. During that time he has visited and conducted large gatherings in Germany, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, Finland, France and Great Britain, and last December returned from an extended tour around the world, conducting meetings in Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Ceylon, etc. Mrs. Brengle is accompanying the Colonel. She is a very brilliant woman, being the author of a number of books which have been translated into other languages. The Colonel is also accompanied by Ensign Geo. Cook, who has marked ability as a singer and musician.

Some time back Captain Ryan heard that Colonel Brengle was to visit the larger cities of the Pacific Coast. So the Captain got busy and succeeded in getting a stopover for the Colonel at Salem. The Army members are highly elated and are looking forward with keen anticipation to this visit. The Army hall has been enlarged and fixed up for the occasion so that it will now accommodate a very large crowd. There will be no charge for admission. The public is cordially invited to attend all of these meetings.

TALKS THROUGH WALL

Five Miles of Solid Rock no Obstacle to the "Aerophone."

Experiments have been conducted for some time past near Chestnut for the transmission of the human voice over long distances with the aid of the natural elements. The inventor, Grindel Matthews, it is stated, submitted his discovery recently to a severe test in the presence of a number of experts. He was placed in the strong room of a big London commercial house and locked in, with nine inches of armor steel, nine inches of fire brick, and six feet of concrete between him and the outer world. By means of his small portable apparatus, he carried on a conversation with an operator in another room on the farther side of the building. So distinct and faithful was the transmission that the experts in attendance were actually able to hear the tick of his watch, notwithstanding the almost impenetrable mass between the two instruments.

The inventor contemplates a further test through five miles of solid rock between Chestnut and Tintern. He is engaged in long distance tests in connection with the war office, and September 9, 1911, spoke from Beachley, in Gloucestershire, to a point more than five and a half miles away near the Severn tunnel outlet on the opposite side of the river.

The inventor has named his instrument the aerophone. A complete set of instruments for a five-mile radius would cost about $48. It is possible through this system to carry on long conversations, and each speaker can distinguish the voice of the person he is talking with. No expert knowledge, it is claimed, is required to operate the system, as the box with the instrument would be self-contained, including the battery, motor, transformer, and everything else necessary for transmission.

Too often optimism means simply ignorance. Sometimes the wish is farther than the thought.

STATE NEWS.

Flat Communities.

When a corporation goes into new territory to build a plant, it is by that act inviting men and women to come and live in the community. When it does that it owes it to its employees, and to society even more, to see to it that the community is a decent place for men and women to live in. You cannot erect a tenement in a city without submitting specifications to a public official and securing a permit. And if you do not in certain precautions, you cannot have the permit. Neither will it avail you anything that you are a well intentioned person, and that you cannot afford the prescribed material, or the kind of plumbing demanded, if you cannot afford it, you do not build. I think that sometime we will demand of a corporation that, before it commences building a plant in a district unsupplied with dwellings, it shall show to a state official plans for the development of a town where people may live amid healthy, decent surroundings. And if the company cannot afford, after paying the experts who have built its plant, to invest something in starting the town as a town should be started, with due regard to public health and morals, it should not be permitted to open its plant. This will give the community which the plant is to call into being the same protection that we now afford to the dwellers of a single tenement.—John A. Fitch in "The Survey."

The November Outing.

A vivid account of a new sport—lion chasing with fox-hounds, is given by Paul J. Hainey in "The Royal Sport of Hounding Lions"—November Outing. His account of the cinematographing of a wounded lioness while actually charging the camera, provides an exciting climax to a story bristling with thrills—and lions. With excellent photographs.

Stewart Edward White takes us among the ducks and "coons" with a very amusing installment of "The Ranch," and Horace Kephart opens a series of practical gun articles with "Rifles and Ammunition"—summarizing the author's wide experience.

Folks Past Fifty Must Use Cascarets

What Glasses Are to Weak Eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—a 10-cent box will truly amaze you.

Most people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at 50.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

"ZEE HATS WERE SMALL, ZEE RATS—ESS NO MORE"

(UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.) New York, Oct. 20.—The rat must go. So says Countess De Villajume-Sombriel here yesterday from Paris.

"Zee hats," she said to the reporters. "Ah, they will be very, eh, very small, and the collars will be small. Zee rat—it ees no more."

Getting even isn't so hard as remaining in that condition.

Skill in dodging never brought a man a good situation.

It is difficult to make a stupid person understand, and it wouldn't matter if we could.

ONE OF THE VERY BEST OF COMEDIES

THE TRAVELING SALESMAN WHICH COMES HERE NEXT MONDAY, IS WITHOUT A PEER IN ITS CLASS—DON'T FAIL TO SEE IT.

Few dramatists have traveled more extensively than James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady" and "The Traveling Salesman." In search of local color. When Mr. Forbes was writing "The Chorus Lady" he spent 16 weeks with a one-night stand opera company, studying the various types of chorus girls, so that he could give a faithful portrayal of the character. The thoroughness of his method of playwriting was attested by the immediate popularity of "The Chorus Lady."

When Forbes was commissioned to write a new play, it was stipulated that he adopt the same line he followed in "The Chorus Lady," and create a distinct and novel comedy character, one that would rival Patricia O'Brien. Accordingly, Mr. Forbes commenced to look around for a suitable type to use for the principal character in his new play. After taking up and rejecting several ideas, he decided that the sort of play wanted could be best written about a traveling man, since he believed that this type could be made sufficiently funny, without exaggeration, to entertain through a four-act play.

Mr. Forbes decided to use as a model a breezy young clothing salesman he had known for years, and, with this end in view, he arranged to make a road trip as the salesman's assistant.

The success of "The Traveling Salesman" was fully as great as Mr. Forbes' first play, and other dramatists might well follow his example.

In seeking an actor who in general appearance could typify the popular impression of the American drummer Mr. Forbes' choice fell on Don MacMillan, who fills all the requirements of the role. "The Traveling Salesman" will be shown at the Grand opera house on Monday, October 23.

Jelly Roll Recipe

Only Two Eggs Required
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks.

One cup sifted flour; scant half teaspoonful salt; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; grated rind of 1 lemon; 2 eggs beaten light; 1 cup sugar; 1/2 cup hot milk; glass of jelly; powdered sugar.

Beat the sugar into the eggs; add the lemon rind, then the flour, sifted three times with the salt and baking powder; and, lastly, the milk. Bake in a buttered dripping pan; turn out on a damp cloth, trim off the crisp edges; spread with jelly and turn over and over into a roll while still warm. Dredge the top with powdered sugar.

Hot milk used in the jelly roll enables it to be rolled without danger of cracking. Have the milk scalding hot, also be careful to have the eggs and sugar beaten together until very light and creamy. Bake in a moderate oven.

K C Jelly Roll is illustrated on page thirty-two of the new and handsomely illustrated 64-page K C Cook's Book, which may be secured free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAGURS MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.
