Gents with loggers' boots will not be allowed on the polished floors of the Marion dining room, however. There will be cards, dancing, singing, eating and drinking of softer varieties, and a general good time. Mrs. Carleton Smith has agreed to warble for the funds of the Ladies Aid Society, who hope to not run the poor in debt on this occasion. The house will be beautifully decorated for the occasion. There will be no free dinner, but special service a la carte will be the order of the evening.

AVIATOR ELY KILLED YESTERDAY

(UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.)
Macon, Ga., Oct. 20.—Eugene Ely, aviator, met death at the state fair grounds yesterday when his machine failed to rise from a sensational dip, and plunged with him 50 feet to the ground. He fell in the field of the race track after almost clearing the machine by a desperate leap, when he realized his peril. Bones were broken in a score of places.

Ely died a few minutes later, retaining consciousness just before the end long enough to mutter: "I lost control. I know I am going to die." With his family he had made plans to join his wife in Norfolk today. They intended to spend the winter in Davenport, Iowa.

Friends of the aviator are incensed today at the action of souvenir hunters, who even removed the collar from Ely's neck, took the gloves from his hands, and stole the cap he wore. Police swept aside by the excited crowd of morbidly curious, and the souvenir hunters cleared the field of every splinter of wreckage.

Ely yesterday made an effort to complete negotiations for night flights, the aeroplane to be covered with phosphorus, but his demand for $1000 was considered too high by the committee.

The body of the aviator was today shipped to New York, from whence it probably will be sent to Davenport, Iowa, for burial. Ely's father, who arrived here today from Davenport, accompanied the remains.

Thousands of persons assembled about the pier of Aviator Ely when the body was started to the railroad station to be transferred to Davenport for burial.

MARKSMEN SCORE 100 PER CENT

San Francisco, Oct. 20.—Artillerymen of the 57th, 60th and 147th companies of coast artillery stationed here, today hold a new world's record for rifle firing. The score of 100 per cent was repeated three times in succession. This is a feat never before accomplished by any nation.

The targets were towed at a rate of 15 miles an hour, and the firing was done by observation.

Bonfires.
My attention has been drawn by the fire chief to the pronounced settling of bonfires in the business portion of the city, which is a direct violation of the ordinance and is subject to a fine of $10. This condition has been particularly noticeable during the past few days and unless due caution is taken there is imminent danger of serious damage to property rights, as the prevailing winds are very apt to carry burning embers in every direction.

The ordinance requires consent from the undersigned for the purpose of burning leaves or other material and any further violation will result in prosecution.

The citizens are requested to desist from burning material of any kind or nature under prevailing conditions and no permission will be granted until conditions are such that danger to property is averted.

LOUIS LACHMAYR,
10-20-31 Mayor.

MINISTER RICHESON ARRESTED.

you, my buying this stuff, but you can keep it secret." Then he left the store with the poison.

Defends Richeson.
Frank H. Carter, a member of the Immanuel church, staunchly defends Richeson. He introduced a new element of conservatism into the case today, charging an unknown party with Miss Linnell's death, when he said: "The man who is responsible of the death of Miss Linnell is walking the streets now free of suspicion. I can prove that. I will not divulge his name now, but when the net which is at present closing in tightly about him is perfected, I will act, and that man will be brought to justice."

Mrs. Frank Riley, one of Rev. Richeson's parishioners, at the Immanuel church, stated that after delivering his sermon on Sunday morning, the pastor came to her home for dinner. She said: "He went to the parlor, where I found him, very pale, lying on a couch. In response to expressions of concern for his health, he stated that he had received the news of the death of a very dear friend. He asked for camphor, and as I had none, I gave him smelling salts. We served dinner at 2:30 o'clock and Rev. Richeson ate practically nothing, seeming on the verge of a nervous breakdown."

"I suppose you'll go to Hyannis and officiate at the funeral?" I asked him. He replied that he would not be obliged to go, but that he supposed that the girl's relatives would expect him. He said he had been notified by telephone of the girl's death. I asked him if he had been with her on Saturday, and he said he had not.

Spoke of Her Death.
"That night he alluded to the girl's death at the church services. He was speaking of the suddenness of death and referred to the fact a friend of his, a very beautiful girl, who had been claimed by death."

The only statement made so far by the accused man was when he was visited in the murderer's cell at the Pemberton Square station.

"God knows I am innocent," he declared. "Everything will come out all right. The public will soon be able to judge as bravely as I can."

Viola Edmunds, whose wedding plans with Richeson were so abruptly broken off by her mother when the minister was arrested, inherits a for-
