FULL LEASED WIRE TELEGRAPH REPORT

POPULAR CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

Hon. J. P. Rusk, speaker of the last house of representatives, is a candidate for congress in the Eastern Oregon district.

By all the indications Rusk has the qualities of becoming a popular success.

He became speaker of the house of representatives by hoisting loud for reforms and promises of economy.

When the legislature had adjourned all records had been broken in the opposite direction.

More big appropriations were log-rolled through, more jobs and commissions created than ever before.

In accomplishing that result Rusk only did what his predecessors for the past twenty years have done.

As speaker he put up a bluff occasionally for economy, and got lots of newspaper notoriety, but the result was the same.

All the deals for the big jobs and appropriations were made before he got the office.

As usual, he locked the stable doors after the horses, harness, halters and curry combs had been stolen.

He has all the qualifications of a successful candidate for congress, according to popular political ethics.

He might as well have the $7500 a year, $1000 mileage and $1500 clerk hire as any other political gazebok.

There is not one congressman out of twenty who can make $2000 a year at any other business in the world.

What a farce the whole political grafting system has become, anyway!

It is rapidly building up an official plutocracy whose whole stock in trade is to fool the people.

The producer and the taxpayer must struggle for an existence, while the billion-dollar congress and the three and one-half-million-dollar Oregon legislature assemble and wallow in the public revenues.

MASSACHUSETTS IMITATING OREGON.

Following are the main points of the message of the governor of Massachusetts:

One side of American politics today "is reactionary and the other is progressive, dedicated to the progress of legislation of commerce, industry and prosperity."

"We must first strengthen and perfect" the direct primary system, making the ballot secret.

The initiative, referendum and recall "I again urge" upon you.

Direct election of United States senators and presidential and vice-presidential primaries are favored.

Laws against corruption of the ballot should be strengthened.

Distribution of an election pamphlet at state expense in which each candidate may state his claims will give "equal opportunity."

The question of extending the franchise to women should be submitted to popular vote.

Legislative interference with internal city affairs should be prohibited by constitutional amendment.

"I also recommend empowering the governor to veto specific items in appropriation bills."

A public utilities board, with centralized and increased power, is needed to replace the gas and electric light commission and supervise the telegraph and telephone service.

"I recommend the creation of a labor bureau" to see that labor laws are enforced.

"Government is under a moral obligation to extend every opportunity for reform to inmates of prisons."

Larger appropriations for agricultural societies and exhibitions and the establishment of a state fair are proposed.

An appropriation of $50,000 for 400 free scholarships in any college in the state is favored.

The "most desirable graduates" of the state's normal schools should be obtained for teachers in Massachusetts.

"I particularly urge you to investigate the so-called bread trust now in process of formation in this state."

Public ownership of railroad terminals is recommended, if necessary for securing the entrance of the great trunk lines of Canada into Boston.

Improvement of the harbor and transportation service is imperative.

A merchant marine is favored and the removal of the "discriminating tariff provision" is held necessary to United States commerce.

The barrier to American exports is said to be the tariff on raw materials and foodstuffs.

"We must have an absolute reduction in tariff rates and a further special reduction through reciprocal trade agreements with other countries."

SHALL WE HELP THE FELS FUND.

The editor of this paper is asked to subscribe to the Fels fund to help carry Oregon at the next election for what is called "industrial freedom," better known as Single Tax.

We are asked to remit the money to A. B. Du Pont, treasurer, Tribune building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

He tells us that if Oregon is not carried for the Single Tax in 1912 "the cause of industrial freedom will receive a terrible setback."

"Equality of opportunity and the prospects of abolishing poverty in the world" will get a black eye.

The money to be raised is to be spent in Oregon to carry the Single Tax campaign to success this year.

"The time when you and your children shall be free from the fear of poverty" depends on how the election goes in Oregon.

How the election goes in Oregon depends on how much money is contributed to the commission.

Mr. U'Ken has a large force of clerks at work at Oregon City preparing literature for the voters.

If you believe in the Single Tax, and want to help along the reforms promoted by this commission, send your check to the above address.

Rev. Avison, of the First Methodist church, is a little bit old-fashioned. He is conducting special meetings during the week of prayer, and is not doing any stunts in sensational revival methods.

The day of the loud and noisy exhorter are almost over in intelligent and progressive communities. The appeal of Christianity must be made along lines of intelligent and persuasive argument to accomplish enduring results.

The sky-cracking, jumping-jack style of converter has outlived his usefulness in cities the size of Salem, and even smaller communities.

HIS OPINION OF GOVERNORS' EASTERN TRIP

Governor West Says the Western Governors' Special Has Proved to be the Greatest Advertising Feature Ever Attempted in Interest of the West.

St. Paul, Minn.—"The Western Governor's Special has proved the greatest advertising feature ever attempted in the interest of the West. News of its coming was abroad in the land and thousands awaited at the stopping points not only to receive us with open arms, but to hear of the great resources and possibilities of the Western states."

The tour of the Western Governors will result in the bringing about of a better understanding and close friendship between the East and the West. The eyes of the East were not only opened to the possibilities of the West, but its people were brought to realize that our interest is their interest and whatever is done to develop the West is bound to redound to the benefit of the East. They know that a movement of the "landless man" of the East to the "manless land" of the West is one not only in the interest of business, but one which will make for government.

"When told of the great variety of resources of a state like Oregon—of its 2,900 square miles of virgin forest of water power which increases twice that of New York, Massachusetts and Maine combined, of its great variety of grains, grasses and vegetables and fruits, of its mines and fishing, of its orchards and hop fields, of its live stock industry, and last but not least of its delightful climate—they could hardly believe the statements true. As a result of the trip thousands are becoming interested, and I am sure the coming year will see a westward movement such as never was seen before."
