TWO DROWN IN RIVER NEAR GRANTS PASS.

Grants Pass, Or., Jan. 15.—M. M. Kohler, a prominent farmer living near Waldo, and William Henry Lovell, an aged man from Timwater, Wash., who was living with Kohler, were drowned Friday afternoon in the Illinois river, in this county.

The news came to Grants Pass today, when a teamster arrived here to purchase coffins for the victims. Kohler owned a crude bridge over the Illinois river, and the two men were standing on this structure attempting to guide driftwood and prevent it from injuring the bridge, when the structure was suddenly carried away.

Kohler's body was found four miles below, minus a pair of gum boots he had worn, and Lovell's body was found six miles below entirely nude, the clothing having been stripped off in the raging waters. Around his neck, however, remained intact a string to which a miniature bag was attached which contained $110.
