REMARKABLE SHOWING ON LIFE INSURANCE.

The annual report of the Oregon Life insurance company shows $5,220,000 paid on insurance written in six years.

Greater showing still is the fact that in six years the death losses were only thirty-eight thousand dollars.

Every stockholder and every policy holder is a citizen of the state, and all the surplus capital is invested in Oregon.

The income of the company for 1911 was $208,300, and the surplus for the policy holders is $123,540.

The company spends its money in Oregon and makes its investments in Oregon, thus returning to the people the money they spend.

All losses are paid the day the proof is made and the company has never litigated a death loss, in whole or part.

The people generally may not comprehend the significance of some of the figures.

But they do prove that an all-Oregon combination is a strong one for business purposes.

The Oregon Life Insurance company has all Oregon men, and all Oregon capital is back it.

It has back of it the business ability, the personal character, the good habits and the good health of Oregonians.

The productiveness of the state, its remarkable climatic conditions, the temperance and morality of its people all count.

The success of Oregon Life Insurance proves that an all-Oregon enterprise can be placed upon its merits before the people.

An all-Oregon proposition that has merit can rely on the support of the people of Oregon, if intelligently presented.

What has been done with Oregon Life Insurance can be done with other lines of business by using brains and character.

The success of Oregon life is one of the best evidences of the hold the Oregon first idea has on the people.

The letters sent out by the labor organizations of Portland to all parts of the United States warning laboring men against coming to Oregon will have a good effect in preventing the overcrowding of this state with unemployed people.

There will be a constantly increasing immigration of home-seekers. People who wish to buy orchard tracts and ranches will not be deterred from coming to the state by that letter. Neither will legitimate investors. It is some times a good thing to get a dash of cold water, and the letters warning laborers against overestimating the chances for employment is a dash of cold water that will help bring everybody to their senses.

THE LOAD THAT FATHER HAS TO CARRY.

Owing to the incompetency of some of his offspring the load that Father Oregon has to carry is quite large.

One of the finest business properties in Salem has a tax bill this year of about $3000, or six months rent at $500 per month.

Any ordinary good piece of business property or mercantile business will pay rent in the shape of taxes of $50 to $100 per month.

The governmental load that father has to carry does not worry the bad boys who go to the legislature.

They like it and they all want to go back and do some more of the same kind of political business.

It is jolly good fun to go to the legislature, hire clerks at two or three times what you would pay them yourself.

Indeed, these boys who hire stenographers at five to ten dollars a day would not hire them at all if they had to pay them.

But the bills are added to the load that Father has to carry and Father is long-suffering and patient.

The sheriff's office is kept busy for the next six months gathering about a million dollars in Marion county.

Father will have to hustle and hump and sweat and swear to raise the money, while the boys play the game.

Most of the men who go to the legislature do not pay any taxes, or if they do have a come-back that helps them out.

Will Father ever get tired? Does the Oregon system help Father any? Mr. U'Ren says the Single Tax will fix it all. Well, maybe.

Wm. Esch, the hard-working deputy in the Marion county sheriff's office, will try for the nomination for that office on the Republican ticket. He is a man with a family to support. He is thoroughly familiar with the work of the office, absolutely honest, and not disposed to demand any increase in the salary. That kind of a man is worth consideration. The office further requires a man who is fearless if it comes to walking into a gun-play, and Bill Esch has the coolness and the nerve necessary for that kind of a festive occasion. He would neither lose his head nor his gun.

TAKE-OFF ON DR. WOODS HUTCHISON.

Following verses are a good natured burlesque on a man who originated in Oregon and fills the magazines with more or less scientific disquisitions on every conceivable subject for which he can get a buyer:

Dr. Woods Hutchison, dally I wonder
If there is one of you, if there are ten.

Magazine here and there, magazines yonder—
All of them teem with the work of your pen.

Now it is colds and again it is rabies,
Or 'tis the freckle that some cheek adorns,

Coughs, indigestion, lumbago and babies,
Callouses, stomach ache, fever, or corns.

Open air living, the need of more quiet,
How to dress warmly in nothing at all,

Meats, nuts or vegetables for the diet,
Why we are bruised when we bump when we fall,

Earache and headache and ap-pen-di-citis,
Baldness and nightmare and red on the nose,

Bowlegs and nearsightedness, tonsillitis,
Flatfoot and why do we have pigeon-toes?

Hiccoughs, and stone-bruises, and why sleep on feathers?
Heartburn and stammering, rubbing the chin,

Whiskers and sleeping outdoors in all weathers,
Lindments that one can never rub in,

Facial blemishes, fits of hysterics,
Why men grow skinny in spite of their food,

Why men grow fat till folks lift them with derricks,
Why sudden shocks may do invalids good—

All of this Doctor—and much more beside it—
I have read constantly, signed with your name;

How I enjoy it! I'll not be denied it!
Truly, I'm glad you have won such great fame.

Still I am puzzled, dear Doctor; the fact is
That is the reason I'm writing this rhyme:

How in the world can you keep up your practice
When you are turning out thoughts all the time?

THE RED ROSE DELIGHTED A BIG AUDIENCE

ONE OF THE FINEST MUSICAL COMEDIES THAT EVER VISITED THE COAST MADE THEATREGOERS GLAD LAST NIGHT.

"The Red Rose" has come and gone, but it has left in the memories of the big audience that completely filled the house, as delicious a fragrance as lingers after the presence of a real red rose. There were two faults that could be found with the production of the play. The stage was hardly large enough for the big company, and the time between the first lifting of the curtain and its final fall—was an hour too short. Outside of that there is nothing to criticize, but a wealth of material to enjoy.

The stage settings, in the second act especially, were very beautiful; the costumes were new, elegant and dainty, the "hats" being enough to make every lady in the audience envious, and the men admiring, that is those of them that managed to see higher than the pretty faces and bright eyes of the bevy of handsome girls. While the parts were well taken, the whole play centered around "Lola," the artist's model, (Zoe Barnett) who showed wonderful emotional powers, as well as a grace and agility rare even among the top-notchers. The horse editor feels that she has a great future, if she ever takes up genuine tragedy. Her posing and quick changing from one to another, expressing "feeling" were really wonderful.

Maurice Darcy, as "Alonso Lorimer," and American millionaire, was a favorite from the first moment of his appearance, and Edward Burns, as "Silas Plant," another American millionaire, had a make-up as an old man that was simply perfect, and they were both fine old boys—and sports.

Ernest Leeby as "Lord Tallboys," was a decidedly unique Englishman, but a charming one. He not only saw the point of a joke, but perpetrated some good ones; and Sidney Broughton, as "Dick Lorimer," lover of Lola, was pleasing, amusing, witty and had a fine voice.

Grace Elsworth, as Mme. Joyant, was piquant, insouciant and delightful, and, with Chic Burnham, as "Raphael Spiegel," a picture dealer, occupied the center of the stage a goodly portion of the time. Burnham is immense. His face talks, and every joint and motion of his body was eloquent. As a comedian it is doubtful if his equal was ever seen on a Salem stage.

The music was the very "catchiest," the costumes superb, the company from top to bottom strong and well balanced, and the show was "lively," yet at all times kept within the proper bounds.

That it was appreciated was evidenced by the not-to-be-denied encores, dozens of them, that were generously responded to.

Manager Waters has the thanks of all present for giving them the opportunity to see, hear and enjoy one of the finest comic operas that ever made glad the theatre-goers of the coast.

Mrs. Sarah P. Laughlin, one of Oregon's oldest native daughters, died at Carlton Monday. She was born near Cornelius, Washington county, in 1846.

None is suffering from a fuel famine while Gifford Pinchot, in Washington, is conserving Alaska's coal supply—great.

The hens will sing quite as cheerful despite the loss of the insane asylum market. It takes more than that to make an Oregon hen change her lay.

Attorney-General Crawford is opposed to Governor Went's state highway proposition. Mr. Crawford calls attention to many defects in the proposed bill, points out the temptation to graters, and advances a dozen reasons why the plan should not be put into action, and any one of the dozen reasons is enough to settle the proposition for all time.

A Bend man wants Uncle Sam to let him pasture 10,000 turkeys on the Deschutes reserve. It looks like a simple request on the face of it, but still those turkeys might interfere with the Gifford Pinchot plan for the conservation of the federal government grasshoppers.

"Will the friends of the Statesman please not line this newspaper up with any of the reputable Republican candidates at the primaries"

This is the request our contemporary made this morning, and from it we judge the morning daily is getting particular as to its associates, without being overly choosy, or unduly proud.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help.

Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, J. C. Perry.
