PULL LEASED WINE THEOGRAPH REPORT

VOLUNTAR YPETITIONS FOR ROOSEVELT. Roosevelt Petitions keep coming in from all parts of the state and they are voluntary petitions. A number of counties have completed petitions, and they are filed with the secretary state. There is no chance whatever but that the name of Theodore Roosevelt will go upon the presidential preference primary ballot.

It should be remembered that the machine in Oregon is all for Taft and the machine press is all for Taft, and that all Roosevelt sentiment is suppressed, even his speech at, the Columbus, Ohio, constitutional convention, and that only one newspaper in Oregon in any city of any size has even been willing to allow his petitions and utterance to go before the people—The Capital Journal—there keeps growing a sentiment favorable to him not only in this state but all over the nation. Why do the machine papers and the machine politicians fear even the mention of the name of Roosevelt? He is not a perfect man by any means, and he has made mistakes. But he is his own boss, and that is what the people demand in a president.

For instance, in one county where the county clerk very haughtily returned the Roosevelt petitions, and wrote an insulting letter to this paper because it merely suggested that the people had a right to have an opportunity to express themselves for Roosevelt, if they desired to do that, and in a week he was hauled up for not turning in game and fishing license fees for three years. In that same county a prominent business man wrote him for the Roosevelt petitions to circulate, and he wrote him that he had given them all out, (which was a lie, as he returned them to this office), and now asks this office for blank petitions. That is the way the grafting element hates Roosevelt, and will do all in his power to keep his name from even getting to the people. But the peopl will win out, and the delegation from Oregon will be instructed for Roosevelt at the direct primary, which the machine is trying to set aside.

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT COLUMBUS.

The Public, which is Democratic and progressive and is never neutral, and which is, editorially, probably the strongest paper in the country, has the following editorial concerning Roosevelt:

'Mr. Roosevelt's speech last week before the congressional convention of Ohio in session at Columbus, was an event of first importance. No man in American public life possesses in so great a degree as Mr. Roosevelt, or uses so freely and acutely the faculty for catching and reflecting public opinion. He seems never to reason out his convictions, but always to get them from public opinion by some sort of chameleonic instinct. Wasn't this so with him at the time of the Cuban war, and again during the dreadful era of imperialism? Wasn't it so when Big Business was in the ascendant in public opinion, and so again when public opinion began to find Big Business out? It is this instinctive faculty of his and his habitual use of it—with the narrow perfections that characterize all instinctive processes—that give transcendent importance to Mr. Roosevelt's Columbus speech.

'Mr. Roosevelt has not been known heretofore to have had pronounced convictions favorable to the initiative, referendum and recall; and he gives now only verbal testimony to convictions thoughtfully arrived at on that subject. Plainly, his Columbus speech is an instinctive reflection of public sentiment. It is, too, unusually definite for him. There are no 'weasel-words' on that subject in this speech, as there were, for instance, in his woman suffrage editorial. Although there are spots in it which look like traces of a tendency toward 'weasling,' the weasel words, if they were ever in the manuscript, were blue-penciled out of it before its delivery. Mr. Roosevelt's declarations for the initiative, referendum and recall are unqualified and definite. His speech is, therefore, of the highest importance as a sign of favorable public sentiment. It proves better than newspaper editorials can, almost as well as a census on the subject could, or an election at which it was the dominant issue, that the people of the United States demand the initiative, referendum and recall, demand them all, demand them in their fulines, and demand them now.

X-RAYS AND SMILES. *

Surgeons in New York City have already been paid $19,000 for attendance on Mayor Gaynor, when he was shot not long ago, and one of them, who was paid $2,500 for 11 hours' attendance, intends suing the mayor for $13,000 more. The surgeons say the fees are fixed by the importance of the individual and that is one of he reasons the horse editor cannot afford to get sick.

Last year trades' unions in the United States distributed $7,000,000 in dek, and death benefits, which shows that in spite of the assertions of some rabid employers, it is doing considerable besides "going on strike and holding up the poor capitalists."

Everything else having been turned over to the school children to set the example, some wise one has now submitted the presidential preference as between Taft and Roosevelt to a straw vote. This should settle it.

The eating of the bark of young trees has been ascribed to bears, porcupines, squirrels, in fact about everything from a wampus to a watr snake. The real truth is, there were no trees, they didn't have any bark, and the bark was not eaten "by nothin' nohow."
