A HOT OLD TIME IN CHICAGO.

will appear for the Roosevelt delegates, and the declaration of National Committeeman Knight of California, that the delay "would leave a bad taste in the mouths of the people."

After settling the California dispute, the committee, it was expected, would consider contests today from the 1st, 3d, 4th and 13th Indiana districts. The contests from Arizona and Kentucky will come up next.

Will Fire Roosevelt Men.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, member of the national committee, and a leader in the Roosevelt fight, expects the committee to oust all of the Roosevelt contestants. He said today: "They have the votes, and will stop at nothing. They have decided to steam-roller us out of all shape. They probably will give us a few votes, to indicate that they are disposed to be fair, but this will be done simply to delude the voters."

Francis J. Heney, who represents Roosevelt in the California contests, shares Borah's opinion. He said:

"I expect the steam roller to seat all the Taft contestants, even those from Texas and Washington. I am satisfied that Taft will not be nominated. I am positive Roosevelt will be named."

When the convention convened some one moved that the Arizona and California cases be postponed until Wednesday. Committeeman Mulvane, of Kansas, wanted to put these contests at the bottom of the list. This angered Committeeman Knight, who shouted:

Row Over California.

"Are we to be tricked here? Let me tell you, gentlemen, that the rights of a sovereign state are involved in this. The California contest was postponed until today at my request. I demand that it be now called."

A general debate followed, and Mulvane then withdrew his motion. The California case was called.

Francis J. Heney and former Governor George C. Pardee, of California, then entered the committee room to argue the Roosevelt side of the case. Senator Borah, committeeman from Idaho, first moved that all other California delegates, except those from the contested fourth district be seated. Committeeman New, of Indiana, said that he saw no reason for such action, as the other delegates from California were not contested. General Charles Dickens, Taft's contest manager, asked for a delay in the California matter, saying:

Springs a Technicality.

"We believe some of the California delegates whose seats have not been questioned were elected without authority from the national committee. The primary law of California conflicts with the committee's call. The California primary provides that the election of delegates shall be by a state-wide vote. In the fourth district the two men we believe should be seated received a majority of votes in their district, and they refused to be bound by the state-wide primary law. You must meet the question of whether the district representation shall be abandoned, or whether we shall return to the unit system. I am contending only the fourth district now, but I want to lay the entire question of the California situation before you. The papers dealing with this case are now en route here from California. I ask a postponement of this case until these documents arrive."

S. Fred Hogue, editor of the San Francisco Post, speaking for the Taft contestants, said:

Would Disfranchise 400,000.

"The papers in question include a message from Governor Johnson and an open letter from Senator La Follette regarding California primaries. The California law, as passed, shut all delegates except those favoring a certain presidential candidate. This law cost President Taft six delegates and La Follette four."

Senator Borah here asked if the uncontested delegates already were on the temporary roll call, and Chairman Rosewater answered:

"The chair so rules. They will remain there, unless the committee decides to recede on passing these cases."

Francis J. Heney demanded immediate disposition of the matter. He said:

"Does this committee want to disfranchise 400,000 voters? Let me tell the committee something. We will stipulate anything these people want us to. In view of rumors that there is a plot to throw out all of the California delegates. I want to protect our rights."

Chairman Rosewater here interrupted Heney, ordering the San Francisco attorney to "confine his remarks to the district he represents."

At this point Senator Borah broke in with: "He will not. If you do not hear his remarks, because you call him an outsider, you will hear a long speech from an insider."

Indiana Taken Up.

Thomas Devine, of Colorado, holding a proxy, then demanded that Heney be not allowed to speak. This also aroused Senator Borah, and he hotly replied.

The motion to defer action in the California case to Wednesday was then put, and it carried, 35 to 13.

Senator Borah demanded and was granted a record vote. Cecil Lyon, committeeman from Texas, a Roosevelt man, moved that the contested delegates from California be seated. Committeeman Shackelford, of Alaska, offered as a substitute a motion providing that "all uncontested delegations in every state be put on the temporary roll. Lyon's motion was unanimously carried by a viva voce vote, and the Indiana contests were then called.

The Roosevelt men asserted they were denied representation in the Indianapolis primaries, which controlled the state convention. Charges of fraud and corruption were freely voiced, the Roosevelt men filing a long brief outlining their claims. Merrill Moores answered for President Taft.

Heney Makes Charges.

Outside of the committee room Francis J. Heney declared that he had proof that the Taft people planned to oust the entire delegation from California, but he refused to go into details.

During the hearing of the Indiana contests, Horace Stillwell, a Roosevelt man, referred to the steam roller, but was warned by Chairman Rosewater.

"Please confine your remarks to the contests," he said. At this point a clash occurred between Committeemen Borah and Devine. Chairman Rosewater interrupted Borah, and ordered Stillwell to proceed, but Borah, mad clear through, shouted:

"I want it thoroughly understood that the chairman is not the whole committee. He has no right to interrupt every speaker who does not confine his remarks to subjects pleasing to his ear. This committee is not a school, and the chairman is not a school master. He is only a member of this committee, and I am tired of the little school masterly speeches with which the chairman interrupts speakers here. Let the members of the committee do their own objecting."

When the case of the Indiana delegates at large had been completed, Senator Borah demanded that he be allowed to present an affidavit purporting to substantiate charges of fraud and corruption, which the Roosevelt men asserted prevailed in the Indiana primaries. Committeeman Shackelford raised a point of order, claiming such action would be illegal. After wrangling, however, the committee permitted Borah to question the Taft lawyers.

Responding to questions framed by Borah, former Senator Hemenway, of Indiana, denied that employees of the city of Indianapolis had been told that they would lose their jobs if they voted for Roosevelt.

Fairbanks Gets In.

By seating the four delegates at large from Indiana, the Taft people gained a material advantage, as former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks is one of the number. The latter had been selected for chairman of the committee on resolutions, should Taft control the convention.

In explaining his attitude in the Indiana contest, Senator Borah declared that, while he believed frauds had been perpetrated, and that he did not believe he ought to endorse them, still he was satisfied that the evidence showed a primary was held, and that Taft carried Marion county. Because of this, he announced, he would vote to seat the Taft delegates. Committeeman Kellogg took the same attitude, and the decision seating the Taft delegates was then made unanimous.

The first of the Indiana contests was then called. By unanimous vote the committee seated the Taft delegates from the First Indiana district.

The committee finally seated the Taft delegates from the Third Indiana district. The contests in the Fourth Indiana district was withdrawn by the Roosevelt leaders.

General Charles Dick the Taft contest manager, this afternoon denounced the report that the national committee might re-open California contests outside of the Fourth district. He said:

"The committee is through with California except for the contest in the Fourth district."

SALEM HAS PLAY GROUNDS ASSOCIATION

President, George F. Rodgers; vice-presidents, Rollin K. Page, Joseph Albert, Mrs. Gaylord Patterson, B. J. Miles and Rev. P. F. Schrock; secretary, Miss Emma Culver; treasurer, W. A. Wiest.

The following permanent committees were elected yesterday:

Finance—George F. Rodgers, F. G. Deckerbach, Mrs. A. N. Bush, Jas. R. Linn and Mrs. P. F. Schrock.

Location—Mrs. Gaylord Patterson, Miss Cornelia Marvin, Mrs. William Fleming, W. A. Wiest and P. H. D'Arcy.

Administration—E. T. Moores, Miss Cornelia Marvin and Mrs. R. K. Page.

The officers chosen, together with the chairmen of the several committees, will constitute an executive board. Modeled after those of the Massachusetts playground associations, a constitution and by-laws were adopted by the meeting yesterday.

The association is desirous that all persons interested in the movement to provide playgrounds during the summer months for those children of the city who are unable to take summer outings, should become members of the association. The idea of the association is to give the movement a trial in Salem, and if it is found worth while, to continue it. The grounds will be maintained through July and August, beginning July 1. The institution is to be equipped as simply as possible this year, but may be added to in the future.

ALASKAN VOLCANO.

far over the surrounding country, obscuring the sun and shutting off from view the troubled mountain.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Dorap was 70 miles from the volcano, total darkness came and ashes began to fall in thick clouds upon the deck, covering it in a short time with a white layer that increased in thickness until it was three inches deep.

The stifling atmosphere gave the passengers violent headaches, and the whole ship's company was in misery, while all night long the Dorap steamed through the dust-laden air, and was rocked by the earthquakes that lashed the water while the mountain thundered menacingly in the distance.

Safety Is Reached.

At 5 o'clock Friday morning, the Dorap having steamed 50 miles out of her course, clear air was reached and the passengers were able to breathe freely again. Looking back they could see the column of smoke and ashes still pouring out of the volcano.

The Dorap was engulfed in darkness again Saturday as she neared Seldovia and felt her way carefully to Seward.

The volcano disturbance is the most violent ever recorded in Alaska. It is estimated that an area of 300 square miles, much of it fertile territory, has been covered to a depth of several inches by the volcanic ash.

The town of Kodiak is at the northeast extremity of Kodiak Island and is farthest removed from the volcano. Grave fears are entertained for those on the other side of the island, which is 75 miles long and 50 miles wide, as there is no means of communication with the settlements and word cannot be received until a steamer touches at the points or messengers travel cross to Kodiak. Some of the most important fishing stations in the north are on the Shelikof shore of the island, and large crews of men are at work in the canneries.

Three Quakes Are Recorded.

Seattle, Wash., June 9.—Three slight earth shocks were recorded on the seismograph at the University of Washington, indicating that the volcanic disturbance in southwestern Alaska, which has agitated the delicate instruments in the observatories throughout the United States the last three days, are still in progress. Professor Henry Landes, geologist at the university, said that the shocks recorded today were not as severe as those of yesterday and this led him to believe that the eruptions are slowly subsiding.

The three shocks were of about half an hour's duration each. The first came at 12:31 a. m., the second at 8:21 a. m. and the third at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

A sprained ankle may as a rule be cured in from three to four days by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle. For sale by all dealers.
