CHAMPION ENCAMPMENT FORAGER

The five delegates from Moro at the C. A. R. encampment were a merry lot, and one of them in pursuing his old foraging habits, lifted an umbrella one one of the rainy days. It had a tag on it that read: "I'll be gone 30 minutes. I can strike a 500 pound blow from the shoulder." The Moro veteran wrote on the other side of the tag: "I can travel five miles an hour and I am never coming back." He had the undisputed possession of the umbrella for several days, and on Friday morning went into a barber shop and set his rain shedder in the rack. While he was being shaved the owner, another veteran, came in and recognized his pirated property. Unknown to the man in the chair, he put another tag on the umbrella saying: "I have found my umbrella but I would like to find the man who stole it." The umbrella was put back in the rack as a reward for the talents of the Moro veteran who was awarded the medal as the champion forager of the whole encampment.

ceramics laboratory, is the assay laboratory, which has also a cement floor and is 30 by 60 feet. It will be provided with modern, oil-fired furnaces for all fusion and cupellation work. The north half of the room is to be reserved for solution work, such as cyanide test and assays and the parting operations.

"A balance room is partitioned off and equipped with the highest grade balance obtainable for weighing the gold assay buttons. The northwest room on this same floor will be equipped with appliances for studying the behavior of ores when treated on the various concentrating devices used in mechanically separating ore minerals from the gangue. Class rooms will occupy the entire second floor with the exception of a chemical laboratory for the state bureau of mines work.

"The mineralogical and petrological laboratories occupy the east end of the third floor. Collections of crystal models, natural crystals, labelled minerals, unlabelled minerals for tests, minerals for blowpipe analysis, in all about 6,000 specimens representing the commonly occurring minerals and several hundred rarer ones, will be placed in the mineralogical laboratories. In the other are to be the various rock collections, about 2,000 specimens illustrating those commonly occurring in the better known mining and quarrying districts of the United States, with geological formations and stone for building and ornamental purposes.

"In the geological and mining suitable glass cases will contain specimens of size or particular attractions which are instructive and more permanent when enclosed than when handled."
