

MOBILIZATION OF WARSHIPS IN THE HUDSON

THE mobilization in the Hudson river at New York of the battleship fleet of the United States and the review by President Taft were not events of fleet discipline or routine. They were intended as an educational opportunity for the American public.

In the issuing of orders for the ships to assemble in New York Secretary of the Navy Meyer believed that millions of people would have an opportunity to visit and inspect the ships, would realize their value as a national defense and would appreciate the necessity of building modern Dreadnaughts and keeping our navy the equal of or superior to that of any foreign power.

No matter what may be our natural resources, no matter what may be the strength of the army, it is to the navy we must look if we would preserve the integrity of the Monroe doctrine and if we would guarantee the protection of our shores from foreign invasion. No better example of the value of a large and efficient navy can be cited than the case of the present Turko-Italian war. Turkey, with a magnificent, efficient and modern army, finds herself helpless and her foreign possessions taken from her one by one owing solely to the strength of the Italian navy. Not only does Italy's navy prevent the transportation of Turkish troops, but it offers ample protection and convoy to her own.

The entire fleet was in command of Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus and consisted of the following ships: Con-

Woman's World

The New Empress Ornament to Japanese Throne.

HER MAJESTY EMPRESS SADAOKO.

The new empress of Japan is greatly beloved by the Japanese people. Her majesty has often betrayed sterling and gracious qualities that will make her an ornament to the throne and a mother to the people. As a student at the Peereses' college the young Princess Sadaoko showed untiring ability in all branches of knowledge and was especially marked for her humble and womanly demeanor. She always walked to and from school like any one else and in her studies never fell below fifth in her form. The young princess ever evinced admiration and respect for her teachers and on all appropriate occasions still invites them to be present.

Her method of bringing up the young princes born to her has won the admiration of the nation. They are being educated after the manner of their father, the new emperor, in the plain and frugal manner of the soldier. Certain companions from among the sons of the nobility are chosen for them as playmates, and they have good times like other boys, playing in the afternoons in the imperial gardens. The young princes attend school regularly every forenoon at the Peers' college, play from 2 to 4 o'clock with their playmates and spend the rest of the evening at indoor amusements, being especially fond of moving pictures. Not infrequently the imperial parents join in the children's fun and add to the afternoon's pleasure.

MODERN WOMAN FARMER.

"College Bred, Cultured and Charming" Is She.

There is a woman farmer living in a suburb of Plymouth, Mass., who is considered by William D. Hurd, director of the extension work of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, as far and away the most successful and altogether the most worth while person of the feminine gender drawing her pay envelope from Mother Earth, and she is just the most refined and cultured and charming sort of college bred woman that can be imagined, says Suburban Life Magazine.

"She lives in a great and wide and treasured century old New England farmhouse, set at the front of its own 200 acres (which this woman farmer has reclaimed and cultivated under the most modern scientific methods and buttressed at the back by its own outbuildings for the clean as a whiff, pure white pigs; the pure blooded Holstein cattle, the delicately tinted Buff Orpington pullets, the wedding, shower bouquet and funeral pillow of peace greenhouses and the high and broad and original old barn for young stock, painted ox blood red, with a tower pointed silo nesting in the corner of it."

Where Men Were Scarce.

Tales of the scarcity of men—particularly the eligible kind—at summer resorts have been told until the joke is almost classed in with the mother-in-law brand. One more, however, has been added, coming from a little town in Pennsylvania.

There was a stir in the dining hall of the hotel when the door opened to admit a group of three new arrivals, all of them masculine, young and passably good looking. The half of femininity tried to appear unconcerned, but side glances and many little primpings and giggles followed the progress of the trio to their seats. A general appearance of decorum was preserved, however, until the very smallest specimen of young ladyhood in the place—a mite of a youngster barely four years old—looked up from her plate and spied the three. She opened her eyes wide and then, in an awestruck little piping tone that somehow reached all over the room, she exclaimed, "Mamma, dey's men!"

Afraid of Drafts.

"Did you ever see any one so afraid of drafts as Aunt Martha?" "No; she'd put a wrap on if she came into the room and found the bureau drawer open."—Judge.

That big blast of 20 tons of powder at Monroe, was billed to be fired this afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock.

For the Children

A Young English Farmer Training His Pet Goat.

© by American Press Association.

The smiling young gentleman shown in the picture is a son of A. W. Sheppe, who maintains a big goat farm at Guilford, England. The children of the farm spend much of their spare time among the kids of the flock. Kids are like lambs in their gentle and playful nature and make most amusing and agreeable pets. Young Master Sheppe had harnessed one of these gentle creatures and was teaching him to mind the rein when the watchful photographer snapped his picture. The expression on the boy's face shows how much he is enjoying the frolic.

Harvest Moon Party.

A harvest moon party would be clever for October.

Help your mother make the arrangements for the party and you will be surprised to find out how much more you will enjoy it. In the first place, cut out moons of every description to be used in decorating. These may be made out of gilt paper. They may hang from ribbons and may be festooned all about the house.

Of course moon games must be played. Hang a big moon with a man's face on it to a curtain and give a little favor to the one who pins the eye nearest the place for it.

Another game could be played with the beloved and well known cobweb game, changed to meet the requirements of the harvest moon party. The boys and girls would be asked to choose strings from a basket which should hold the ends of as many strings (or ribbons) as there are guests. These strings should lead all through the house, from garret to cellar, through as many hard places as may be found. Instead of a cobweb this game should be the sky search, and on the end of each string should be a star (made out of cardboard and silver paper), one only being different, and that a green cheese (cloth) moon. Give a little favor to the guest who gets it.—Woman's World.

A Dutch Wonder Ball.

Little girls in Holland learn to knit when only four or five years old. They begin with two needles, and their mothers teach them how to make fairly wash rags, lamp mats and ever so many useful things. When they have learned to use five needles they make wristbands and stockings, and every Dutch girl gets from her mother a wonder ball for the first piece of work done with five needles. And no wonder the girls call it a wonder ball! Candles, trinkets and many pretty things are hidden in a large ball of wool, which is put in a handsome case with a set of needles. As the girl knits away one thing after another is brought out from this ball of wool, and when the whole is used up they find in the center a gold piece or a ring or some fine gift.

Origin of Old Sayings.

For many years in front of the pulpit in Scottish churches persons under censure sat during the service. Afterward they stood to receive public rebuke. From this practice we derive the "wood of repentance."

"To eat humble pie" is to be ascribed to the fact that in feudal days the umbles, inferior parts of deer, were baked in pies for the poor retainers.

Conundrums.

What is the highest public building in Washington? The public library has the most stories.

Have you heard the story about the rabbit? It's only a short tail.

The Knothole in the Fence. My chum and I have lots of fun. He lives next door to me. And there's a high board fence between His yard and mine, you see.

But still we've got a meeting place. We think it's just immense. We see each other often at The knothole in the fence.

I traded there my pocketknife For two long pencils new. The hole was plenty big enough To push the bargain through.

The other day he spent a cent For taffy-on-a-stick. And passed it through the hole to me. So I could have a lick.

We meet there many times a day On this or that pretense. I don't know what we'd do without The knothole in the fence.—Advance.

THIS WOMAN'S TROUBLES GONE

Terrible Cramps, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Misery—Her Story of How She Got Well Again.

Hindsboro, Ill.—"Your remedies have relieved me of all my troubles. I would have such bearing down misery and cramps and such weak, nervous, dizzy spells that I would have to go to bed. Some days I could hardly stay up long enough to get a meal.

"The doctor's medicine did me no good so I changed to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got good results from the first bottle. I kept on taking it and used the Sanative Wash with it, until I was well again. I think every woman who suffers as I have, could take no better medicine."—Mrs. CHARLES MATTISON, Box 68, Hindsboro, Ill.

Testimony of Trained Nurse.

Cathlamet, Wash.—"I am a nurse and when I do much lifting I have a female weakness, but I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot say enough in praise of it. I always recommend it for female troubles."—Mrs. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS, Box 54, Cathlamet, Wash.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

Yew Park in Favor of Bonding

At the meeting last night at the Yew Park school house to discuss the sewer bond question, Col. E. Hofer made the principal speech. Mr. Hofer spoke in favor of the bonding system, saying that as the old city sewers built through the center of the city were built by bonding the entire city and on that account it would be an injustice to require those in the outskirts to build their own sewers, which has been the plan under the present charter. There were other speakers, but all spoke along the same lines as Mr. Hofer, and the general opinion seemed to be favorable to a bond issue.

The same resolution that has been passed at all the other meetings, which favors the bonding of the entire city for the construction of all sewers except the house connections, was passed. This resolution also favors selling bonds to our own citizens.

Joe Adolph to Blame for It All

The smell of the pipe does not pervade the Journal composing rooms, or the horse editor's private stall today. Instead there is the delicate aroma and delightful fragrance that rises a perfumed incense, when the devotees of tobacco burn Gus Huckestein's magnificent Coronas on the altar of their idol, the dream-giving Nicotine. It was not suddenly acquired wealth through the passing of some aged and distant relative, not a sudden and inordinate desire to "blow" themselves that caused this sudden appearance of prosperity, nothing of that kind or character. The rather unique event was caused by Joe Adolph sending a box of coronas down to the office with his compliments. If all the kind wishes the boys expressed for him today should materialize, he will be in a position to look down on Rockefeller and win the presidency of the United States, hands down.
