EXPECTED AND UNEXPECTED.

NOT only has the expected happened, but some elements of the unexpected have also shown up. Wilson is elected with a big bunch of votes to spare. This was the expected, even to the bunch of votes to spare, for practically from the commencement, from the birth of the Progressive party the defeat of Taft was certain, and that Roosevelt could not win, equally certain. "A house divided against itself cannot stand," says the proverb, and the statement is true of parties as well as houses.

The dispatches last night stated Roosevelt had phoned his friends at the Union club, "I have annihilated the Republican party." His taste in making the statement may well be deprecated, but while his statement is somewhat bombastic and exaggerated for the G. O. P. is far from being annihilated; he certainly hit it in the solar plexus and gave it a couple of black eyes, but it will recover, and is far from being down and out.

Wilson is elected, and if Roosevelt, as he claims, annihilated the Republican party, he at least, like Samson when he pulled down the pillars of the temple, was buried in the ruins, and it is not probable he can ever recover fully from the effects thereof.

That he should boast of destroying the party that gave him the greatest honor possible for a human being to receive—the presidency of this great republic of nearly a hundred million people—is lacking in tact, gratitude and good sense, for while it is in a measure true, it was unnecessary for him to remind the Republicans of it, for they will not forget it.

The unexpected that has happened is the election of Democratic legislatures in enough states that the complexion of the next U. S. senate will be changed, and the Democratic party will be in control of it. This is in a large measure due to Mr. Roosevelt and the breach in the Republican party caused by him.

The indications are that the next lower house of congress will also be Democratic and thus the whole governmental machinery will be in the hands of the Democratic party. This is an unusual condition of recent years, and one that is perhaps not entirely pleasing to the politicians, for it brings them, or at least the Democratic portion of them, out into the open and leaves them nothing to hide behind.

In a sense this is a good thing for the common citizen. With one branch of congress in control of the party opposing the president, his hands are pretty well tied. If it is something he wants to do, he is prevented, and if it is something he does not want to do, but that the people desire, the blame is laid on the opposition. The senate would not let him, or the house refused to stand in, is his excuse and that of the other politicians. This is an excuse that has been of inestimable benefit to the party in power; but with all three branches of the law-making branch of the government, the Democrats are for sure up against it. They must make good, and for this reason, if no other, they probably will. Tariff and all other party questions can, if the political results are as forecasted, be settled on a Democratic basis, and the country will expect this. In other words, it is up to the Democrats to "shoot or give up the gun." That their action in reducing the tariff will be along conservative lines is a certainty, but that there will be a revision of it and that downward is as certain as anything human can be. The Democrats have apparently made a clean sweep, but they are not yet through sweeping.

JOURNAL GAVE THE RETURNS.

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL'S leased wires were kept hot with election news all day yesterday and up to midnight. So soon as the paper went to press a big bulletin board was placed in front of the office and the dispatches placed thereon as fast as received. That it was appreciated was evidenced by the big crowd that gathered. As dusk settled down, Captain Baldwin, who has a basso profundo voice that would make a megaphone go hide itself, kindly volunteered to read the dispatches, and they kept him busy and the big crowd keenly interested.

About 6 o'clock the big stereopticon, kindly furnished by the management of the Grand opera house, was put in operation, and from that time until midnight, the returns were flashed on a big screen on the Marlon hotel.

The intense interest taken in the election was shown by the enthusiastic cheering of one side or the other, as news pleasing to it was flashed upon the screen. The pictures of the candidates were given an ovation, especially that of Wilson, it being understood he was to be our next president.

The big crowd remained practically intact until about ten minutes before midnight the words, "Gentlemen, our next president" were flashed on the screen, followed by Wilson's picture, which awakened a great and long continued cheer, and when a moment later the screen said: "The Capital Journal bids you good night," the crowd still lingered, reluctant to quit the fascinating game of politics.

Oregon is still in doubt, though it looks like Wilson. The result will not be known, that is the full returns will not be in, for two or three days, though enough will be known to show who wins.

Roosevelt's boast of having annihilated the Republican party is much like that of a tramp who would boast of burning the barn of the farmer who had fed him, and permitted him to sleep in it.

President Taft received the election news last night over a private wire, and what his opinion is, or was, is of course, not known. It would probably make strenuous reading.

The writer overheard a voter yesterday say he would not vote for Bourne but would support Selling because "he was tired of seeing millionaires sent to the senate."

Anyway, President Taft made a clean, manly campaign, in strict accord with the dignity of his position and the importance of the contest.

A woman at Tacoma declared she would die if Roosevelt was not elected. Her obituary is due today—unless she was mistaken.

The bed-quilt ballot has probably reached the length of its crinoline, and next year will be smaller.

Voting yesterday was much like examining a table cloth for soiled spots.

The senatorial question is not yet settled, though it looks like Selling.

Would Be Spokesman of Nation

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Princeton, N. J., Nov. 6.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson dictated this afternoon the following statement to the newspapersmen:

"The result gives us the hope that the thoughtful voters of the nation may at last unite to give the country freedom and enterprise and a government released from selfish and arrogant influences, and one devoted to justice and progress.

"There is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business man of the country to fear. No man whose business is conducted without violation of the rights of free competition and without such private understandings and secret alliances as violate the principle of our law and the policy of all wholesome commerce and enterprise, need fear either interference or embarrassment from the administration.

"Our hope and purpose is to bring all the free forces of the nation into an intelligent co-operation and to give our prosperity a freshness and spirit and a confidence such as it has not had in our time.

The responsibilities of the task are tremendous, but they are common responsibilities which all leaders of action and opinion must share. And, with the confidence of the people behind us, everything that is right is possible.

"My own ambition will be more than satisfied if I may be permitted to be the frank spokesman of the nation's thought in these great matters."

Things the Democrats Promised

Here are some of the things advocated or promised in the national Democratic platform, and which it will now have a chance to act upon:

Immediate downward revision of the tariff, articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products which are sold more cheaply abroad than at home to be placed on the free list.

Vigorous enforcement of the civil and criminal laws against trusts and trust officials, so far as may be necessary to abolish private monopoly in the United States.

Prohibition of corporations from contributing to any campaign fund. One term for president of the United States.

Physical valuation of interstate railroads, express companies and telegraph and telephone lines.

Laws to prevent carriers from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their patrons; laws against over-issuance of stock by such corporations; legislation to require the reduction of transportation rates, so far as conditions will permit.

Revision of banking laws and system of competitive bidding for deposit of public funds in banks.

Permission to national banks to lend a portion of their funds on real estate security.

Co-operation of federal government with states in improvement of inland waterways.

National aid to local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

Trial by jury in case of indirect contempt of court.

Employees' compensation law, wherever federal jurisdiction extends.

Union of various governmental agencies for the control of pure food, quarantine, vital statistics and public health.

Reorganization and extension of the civil service.

Immediate declaration of nation's purpose to recognize independence of Philippines.

Full territorial government for Alaska.

Parcels post and extension of rural mail service.

Curing Conceit.

In an article on "The Training of a Child" in the November Woman's Home Companion, the author, Mary Louise Graham, writes, in part:

"I know what forgetfulness of self can be attained, even when it has been conspicuously denied by nature. This is a very little intimate little story that I am about to tell, but I feel that it has a lesson of real value.

"When I was myself a young girl, I was very conceited, and for no greater cause than that I had a good intellect, and could learn easily what the other girls at school found hard. The realization of my own conceit came to me through other people's criticism of me. For some time I puzzled over what to do. It is so long ago that I do not remember whether the solution came all in a moment, or whether I gradually lived into the understanding of the truth, that I might know that I was clever, but that it would never harm me so long as I placed no emphasis on the fact. Every time I found myself dwelling with satisfaction on some display of my own intellect, I tried to shut out the thought. It was very hard at first; I did so love my complacent, conceited thoughts, and for a time I would occasionally indulge myself in them. Still in time the device actually did work, and it set in motion other subconscious processes. Whenever I came back to thoughts of myself, I found a new humility, which I learned to feel more precious than my old conceit.

"After a time conceited thoughts ceased to give me any pleasure; instead they brought a curious sense of shame, as if some one had praised me for a noble act that I had not done. I had come to see myself in a true proportion, and to realize the absolute unimportance of my poor little mind. This is not words; it is the literal truth."

California Is Claimed for Wilson

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—California is claimed by the Democrats by 20,000 majority. Chairman Davis, of the Democratic state committee is strongly of this opinion, and as he was inclined on Tuesday night to claim the state by 20,000, even while Los Angeles' showing was far better than it is today, his estimate is considered conservative. Definite figures are not expected before tonight or tomorrow.

The surprisingly large Wilson vote in San Francisco aided by the Wilson pluralities in San Diego and Fresno counties, with a few of the smaller counties not previously counted upon by the Democrats, were responsible for the turning down of the Roosevelt electors. The Taft followers, of course, were the main factor. They "plumped" for Wilson all over the state.

To Control Election of Senator

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Chicago, Nov. 6.—The estimated plurality of Edward F. Dunne, Democratic candidate for governor, is from $5,900 to 120,000.

Returns from 1814 precincts show that his plurality is greater than was calculated last night. The figures are: Dunne, 420,872; Funk, Progressive, 316,668; Deneen, Republican, 290,292.

Judge Dunne carried the entire state and Cook county Democratic ticket to victory, and while the legislative results are still in doubt, it is not believed that either the Democrats or Republicans will have a majority, and that the Progressives hold the balance of power in the naming of the senators.

The total vote in Chicago for president was: Roosevelt, 154,174; Wilson, 127,697; Taft, 72,605; Debs, 54,677; Chafin, 2,895. Roosevelt's plurality was 26,477.

Colorado Turns Down Measures

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Denver, Colo., Nov. 6.—The fate of all the reform constitutional amendments and initiative measures submitted to the voters at yesterday's election is very much in doubt. The officials of the Direct Legislation League, which initiated them, admitted today they believed most of the measures had been defeated, including the "headless ballot," recall and recall of judicial decisions, Oregon pamphlet law for publication of initiated and referred legislation; women's 8-hour law, public utilities court and the proposal to open the schools for a freer use by the people.

Juvenile Judge Ben Lindsey, who was especially interested in the mothers' compensation measure, said today he feared the proposition had been defeated, along with other proposals. The judges said that the corporations of the state had made a concerted attack on all these reform measures, and that mothers' compensation had gone down with the rest.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy was Found. Miss Minerva Heminger, Upper Barn, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many remedies, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured." Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous diseases. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden sage and sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color. In a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out, but will start to grow as nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance. Agent, J. C. Perry.

Standard Oil Jolted. [UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] New York, Nov. 6.—A raid on Standard Oil of Kansas stock because of disappointment in regard to the recent dividend declaration was an early market feature today. The stock broke from 370 to 275, rallying later to 292.

"It is a pleasure to tell you that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best cough medicine I have ever used," writes Mrs. Hugh Campbell of Lavonia, Ga. "I have used it with all my children and the results have been highly satisfactory." For sale by all dealers.
