PREPARING FOR THE THANKSGIVING GAME

The varsity squad were given another hard practice last evening, preparatory to the Thanksgiving game. MacLae, who is out again, is holding down left end, and, with Francis, the other end, completes a duo that may be depended on to figure prominently in the big Thanksgiving day game. Both men are large and exceedingly fast, they are very successful in breaking up interference, and both seem to kick the ball right out of the other fellow's hands on forward passes.

Coch Sweetland is directing the most of his attention to the center of the line, which seems to be the weakest point at present. Bollinger, who is again wearing the regalia, is working out at guard.

Taken throughout, the men are all doing good work, and under Sweetland's able direction are perfecting a machine that will be able to play any team in the Northwest a good game. However, since Washington State College cancelled their game with Montana the predictions that Willamette would win the fight turkey day have been rather minus, and although Montana is not expected to have a walk-away, Willamette boys are preparing for a tussel such as they have not been in this season.

GEORGE KEARNS HAS ONE OF HIS EYES PUT OUT

George Kearns, a dairyman, residing on a farm 14 miles south of Salem, near Ankeny bottom, had the misfortune to lose the sight of one eye yesterday, as the result of an eight-penny nail which he was driving in a plank flying and striking the optic point first, penetrating the eyeball and remaining fixed in it.

Mr. Kearns extracted the nail, and hurried to Jefferson for medical assistance. He then came to this city, where Dr. Stoves gave further attention to the injury.

SAYS THE SALEM WOMEN ALL LIKE THE JOURNAL

I too have noticed the compliments in your paper in regard to its many improvements, and consider all that has been said is fully merited. I think I failed to send you replies from your women readers; perhaps your reporter did not interview them. They certainly are the closest readers you have, for they read "ad." and everything. I thought I could do a little interviewing myself, and I found them all ardent admirers of your clean, noway sheet. "Always did like the Journal." That's what they all say.

But no, not all. A few like myself, feel hurt over a short article that appeared once, you twice last week, in the effect that "to see a woman built like a bale of hay trying to be sentimental makes one tired." Or something like that. (Ha, ha.) Well, we who are built along the lines of the said "bale of hay" claim the same rights of our more ethereal sisters, and several of us are all out up about that article.

If you will not let it appear again in your columns, I assure you I will always sign myself.

AN ADMIRER.

NEWSPAPER MAN MAY FACE MURDER CHARGE

Lawson, of Sioux City, Iowa, is hovering on the point of death in the Finny Paddock hospital here, and James Madey, a newspaper man, formerly employed on the San Francisco Call, is under arrest, being held on a charge which will be filed as soon as Lawson's condition is fully determined. Madey beat Lawson over the head with a steel bar in the Tourist hotel at 9 o'clock this morning, while attempting, it is alleged, to rob his victim of $70.

Home Missions Work.

In observance of Home Missions Week the First Congregational church unites with the Central Congregational church at Ferry and South Nineteenth streets. Rev. P. S. Knight, that pastor of surviving Oregon home missionaries, is to tell of some early experiences, while Rev. F. P. Schrock, pastor of the First Congregational church, is to present conditions today in the state.

The good die young, but most of us outgrow it.

HOLBROOK BLINN IN "A ROMANCE OF THE UNDERWORLD."

Successful plays of the day seem to fall naturally into certain classifications, one of the most popular of which is the plausible melodrama. Such a play is "A Romance of the Underworld," in which Paul Armstrong will present Holbrook Blinn at the Grand opera house, Saturday, Nov. 23.

There is no disguising the fact that these plays are melodramatic, nor is there any purpose in doing so, unless one wishes to prevent their confusion with the lurid form of entertainment that held sway in the popular-priced theatres for many seasons. Three out of four plays that are really worth while are essentially melodramatic, and as long as Paul Armstrong can write such other plays as "Sabine Jane," "Going Some" and "The Hero to the Hoorah," to add the spice of variety to his dramatic menu, his melodramas will always be welcome. This brilliant playwright seems to have made himself master of the knack of giving modern melodrama flesh and blood, and transcribing an interesting phase of life into a popular stage success. First he took one of O. Henry's short stories and made it into "Alfas Jimmy Valentine." Then, with the collaboration of Wilson Mizner, he wrote "The Deep Purple," a dramatization of the underworld of New York City, and out of its muck matters and confidence men, built a realistic and exciting drama that interested, entertained and certainly thrilled. Then came "A Romance of the Underworld." The experienced play-goer who can no longer get the cherished "thrill" from the artificial melodrama of the old school, may find it here in a play where real life and real conditions are depicted. During its long run in Chicago the fine interpreting cast commanded much attention. There are many splendid parts, played by actors of reputation, all of them of the naturalistic school and almost, if not quite, of stellar calibre. All in all, it is one of the best companies of the year. In addition to Mr. Blinn, it numbers among its players Ruth Gussner, Anna McDonald, Leonard Hollister, Charles Mylott, James Marcus, George Miller, W. Hammy Young, Norman Phillips, Benjamin Piazza and Robert Stevens.

They Made Some Very Easy Money

(UNITED PRESS LEADED WIRE.) San Francisco, Nov. 20.—True bills against former public officials, Henry C. Ford, attorney, and former United States commissioner at Eureka; John A. Prentiss, attorney, and former deputy United States marshal for Humboldt county, and William Murphy, former county clerk of Humboldt county, are expected to be returned Friday by the federal grand jury, according to United States District Attorney McNab here today.

The indicted men are charged with arresting saloon men for selling liquor to the Indians, and accepting $100 cash bail from them, which was never received by the government. The arrest of 13 saloon men was made in one day by the defendants. All of these 13 are here as witnesses.

The expose followed a silent investigation on the part of government officials lasting more than three months.

HOME FACE PEELING BECOMES POPULAR

(From Fashion Reporter)

No complexion treatment yet discovered seems to have become so generally and so immediately popular as the mercolized wax process. Evidently the reason for this is that this method actually gets rid of a bad complexion, which can hardly be said of any other. To temporarily hide or bleach the defective skin with cosmetics, cannot compare with the effect of literally removing the skin itself. Mercolized wax takes off the offending surface skin in flour-like particles, a little at a time, until there's none of it left. The new complexion thus produced exhibits a healthy glow and girlish beauty obtainable in no other way. This wax, which you can get at your druggists, is applied at night in the same way you use cold cream, and washed off next morning.

Here is the only thing I know of that actually does remove wrinkles, remove them quickly, and at trifling cost. Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in 1/2 pt. witch hazel. Use as a face bath.

BIG HERD OF ELKS ATTENDED DEDICATION

One hundred Elks went to Oregon City last night to assist in the dedication of the new Elks' temple recently completed in that city at an expense of $50,000. The Salem delegation left here at 6 o'clock and returning reached home at 2 o'clock this morning.

"SATISFIED"

A True Story

We had the pleasure last Monday of selling suits to two gentlemen who were extremely hard to fit. We fitted them perfectly; so well, in fact, that one gentleman bought two suits.

The gentleman buying two suits wore a 42 long stout and we fitted him without a single alteration. The other gentleman wore a 42 short stout. We had one slight trouser alteration, and both gentlemen were frank in admitting that no tailor had ever fitted them more satisfactorily.

One gentleman is in business in Salem, the other in Independence. Their names will be given upon request.

Such is the character of the Stein-Bloch line of Smart Clothes.

It not only fits to perfection, but it wears exceptionally well, and we will replace any garment that fails to give service. We carry all sizes for all the different built men, in a beautiful array of patterns in Cheviots, Tweeds, Cassimeres and Worsteds. Every garment fashioned and tailored in good taste, not freakish, but with plenty of dash, giving the wearer that individual, well-groomed appearance.

Now, shouldn't your next suit be a STEIN-BLOCH? At least, do yourself the justice of seeing this splendid line.

Modestly Priced $18.00 to $30.00

The House of Reliability Over 30 Years in Salem.

Ing, which was as scheduled. The Southern Pacific gave the boys good train service, and all were much pleased with the trip. The Salem delegation was the largest, as well as the liveliest delegation there, with the exception of the Portland bunch.

Doubles the Reward. (UNITED PRESS LEADED WIRE.) Olympia, Wash., Nov. 20.—Governor Hay has added $500 to the $500 already offered for the capture of the slayers of Charles Newell, federal employe and son of the coroner-elect, who was shot to death last night. Government operatives are working on the case.

It was a genius that got his start in life by selling lemonade from the lemons fate had handed him.
