The Judge's Instructions a Surprise

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 25.—Judge Quinn instructed the jury today that a first degree murder verdict could not be returned in the case of the union men on trial here.

Judge Quinn's instruction came as a surprise to both the prosecution and the defense. The court, however, directed the jury that Caruso might be convicted of either first or second degree murder.

Hundreds of Italians stood outside the court house as Judge Quinn delivered his charge. An extra force of deputies preserved order in the courtroom.

harm done in putting glasses on the growing boy or girl who does not absolutely need them. On the other hand it is a serious mistake for parents to let this matter go unheeded when the need of glasses is actually indicated.

The mission of proper glasses is to correct the errors of the eye, and the time to do this, so as to affect permanent relief, is while the child is growing. There can then be some hope of later, discarding them.

Our theatre has a seating capacity of 550, and our performance will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, and will continue for two hours, with the doors open free to your school, and we will appreciate a full attendance.

Willamette Has no Endowed Scholarships

There are numerous students on the present rolls at Willamette university who are being helped by the university through the several loan funds of the institution.

The orphan fund of the university a donation years ago from Mrs. J. L. Parrish, gives a life each year to at least four students who have lost one or both their parents and who are in need of the assistance.

The local fund started by Robert A. Booth is increasing gradually. Money from this fund is loaned to the student benefited and he is expected to pay back the money after he has graduated from the institution.

In addition there is a general church fund which draws from $700 to $1000 a year. Money from this fund also is loaned to the students who need the assistance.

Willamette university has no endowed scholarships as yet. It is stated that such assistance will come at a later date, but while working to increase the general endowment of the university, endowed scholarships are not being pushed.

Marion County Poultry Show

The board of directors of the Marion County Poultry association met in Salem Saturday and completed arrangements for holding their next show, which will be held in Salem January 14 to 18, inclusive.

E. A. Rhoten, field manager for the Pacific Homestead, was elected superintendent of the show to succeed Tom Davidson, who has moved to Tillamook.

Mr. Rhoten is widely known, not only in Marion county, but throughout the entire Northwest, where he is constantly coming in contact with the poultry farmers, and as a result, many of the older brooders and exhibitors will be influenced to exhibit at this show that did not last year, and that do not exhibit at the average county show.

Mr. Rhoten's plan in good condition. Mrs. Ella Plank, of Woodburn, secretary of the association, is compiling the premium list, which will be ready for distribution about December 10. Many special and club premiums will be offered.

Tells How Salem Is Growing

Bigger figures are contained in the Salem write-up that is to appear in the bimonthly report which is to go out of the office of the state labor commissioner in time for perusal by the state legislature.

The Salem apiece in the report has been revised by Mayor Louisa Luchmum. It will show that the assessed valuation of Salem city property has increased in the last two years from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000.

SENT BACK TO ASYLUM IN WASHINGTON

W. O. Spence, who three months ago shot the manager of the Pantages theatre in Portland, while laboring under the insane delusion that a certain chorus girl with whom he had become enamored, was to be taken to a road house, and who was subsequently admitted to the Oregon state asylum, has been returned to the hospital for the insane at Stella-cum, Wash.

Spence spent only a few weeks in the Washington institution, when released there about a year ago. He was not pronounced cured, but was allowed to be taken out of the asylum by his parents on the promise that they would take him East.

When Spence became possessed of the delusion that the ballet girl was to be taken to one of the road houses that at that time were much in the limelight, in an attempt to save her he attempted entrance to the stage from the rear of the building.
