WILL VOTE MONDAY.

BEFORE the next issue of The Capital Journal is issued, the city election will be practically over, and Salem's women will have voted, if they so desired, for the first time. It will be interesting to note the results on a proposition or two that will be voted on then; for from this, we can form some idea of what the new element in the election stands for, what their ideas are concerning the political business of the city, and an intimation of the effect on results generally. It will show whether we are to have a radical change, or simply a larger vote; whether the women will follow out a line of reasoning peculiar to the sex, and give us something new, or whether they will, as the men do, simply divide, split their votes and add to the voting population without changing the results. It is probable the latter will prove more nearly correct, and that, outside of some special matters, they will vote much as the men do now, along political lines, and, like a large proportion of the men, for no particular or special reason other than that their social life for years belonged to the party with which they vote.

At the same time, it is pretty certain that in some things the women voters are going to have their own way. No one can pretend to say what these things will be, but whatever it is they set their minds on getting through the ballot, they will get.

The fact that they, here in Oregon, at least got the ballot without having a chance to vote for the proposition, is the best evidence of what they can do if they make up their minds to accomplish certain results. And then again—but what's the use speculating about it? Watch the returns in Tuesday's Journal, and do your own stint of drawing inferences and reaching conclusions.

CAN WE HAVE A BAND?

ONE of the measures to be voted upon Monday, it being passed up to the people to decide, in the question as to whether or not the city shall appropriate for the purpose of maintaining a band the sum of $1500 yearly. The matter has been presented to the council with the proposed plan of conducting the band all outlined. Under it a band director would be employed, and the band would play at stated times in the parks, and on certain occasions, the full detail of which has been published, but which the writer has not by him. However, the substance of it is: "Shall Salem maintain a band? Shall she be able in case of need to procure the services of a band without sending away for it? Shall the whole city assist in paying for what is in these days an absolute necessity, or shall it force the expense on a few willing but, in this time, overburdened shoulders?"

This is one of the measures the women of the city, in casting their first ballot, will in a measure decide, and, with their civic pride and love of music, it is believed the band measure will carry by a handsome majority. In this connection a figure or two may not be out of place, and may tend to a better understanding of the situation.

Salem has assessable property totalling in round numbers $12,000,000. To raise the $1500 necessary to acquire and maintain the band would require property owners to put up one cent and a quarter for every hundred dollars they owned, or $8000 worth of property to pay one dollar.

In other words, the maintenance of the band all summer would cost for every $8000 worth of property the price of an average theatre ticket. It would cost almost as much for each $8000 as it taken to see a football game which lasts an hour or two, and then perhaps does not turn out to suit you, and the band would be here all summer.

The women will vote on this question Monday, and, if the horse editor has not lost his wisdom, as well as his beauty, he opines that they will be largely in favor of the band.

It is undoubtedly true that Salem women beat the band for beauty and brightness, but that is the very reason they will not assist in heating it any other way.

WHY SET A LIMIT?

PRACTICALLY every limitation that is set in the matter of having the best of conditions under which to live, are set by ourselves. Men put queer limits on themselves. The progressive of one period is frequently the standstill of another.

To illustrate, the people of the United States insist that every child must be educated. Why should they hesitate to demand certain home conditions of light, air, cleanliness, moral and physical health? Educated workmen are no blessing to society. Why perpetuate a condition so easily remedied?

The first law of nature, self-preservation, demands interference, prompt and far reaching, in all particular cases where men, women and children are living in an environment, common under a despotism, but fatal under a form of government "conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

Foolish wealth is as dangerous to liberty as ignorant poverty and its abnormal manifestation must be as firmly met and overcome.

with absorbent cotton saturated with witch hazel, then apply a pure vegetable powder. Never, under any circumstances use a powder in a wet or liquid form.

Three—An oily skin does not line very easily, but it becomes porous and is liable to become coarse unless carefully watched. To keep it refined an astringent lotion—not too strong—should always be applied after cleaning.

Bathe the face at night with warm water and use instead of soap almond-oil compound made into a paste by mixing it with water. If the skin is delicate add a few drops of almond oil.

Four—The most effectual way of eradicating the deep lines leading down from the mouth and from the nose is by wearing the chin strap. This draws the muscles back in place. It is the drooping of the cheek muscles that cause these lines and make also an ugly neck. The chin strap of very finely knitted silk has become recognized as the only real cure for a double chin and since it answers two valuable purposes it is money well spent. Those made of knitted silk elastic do not contain rubber and give sufficient ventilation.

Five—For lines between the eyes dissolve five cents worth of gum Arabic in water; when dissolved, if too thick, add more water, and pour the lotion on thin sheets of writing paper. Tear off in zig-zag fashion a piece of the paper when dry and while holding the lines smooth paste on the gummy paper as you would a postage stamp. This can be done while reading or sewing, as well as being put on at night. If persistent, the results are surprising. Haphazard work of any kind is of no value whatever. Yours for charming womanhood.

MADAM QUVILLA

Things We Should Know and Do

Madame Quvilla will be glad to answer any questions pertaining to womanly beauty. Personal replies will be given if a stamped and self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

So many questions come in to me that are of interest to all women that, instead of answering the individuality, I will give them as a whole, giving all the benefit. I will necessarily repeat some points that have already been written upon.

One—As to the use of cream and powder, I can do no better than quote from an issue of the New York Medical Journal, the most staid professional periodical of the physicians in the East, says:

"The use of face creams and make-ups is universal, and the moral aspect of the question is becoming settled. Our women now fearlessly and scientifically handle the complexion brush, the face cream and the powder puff. Why is the face of the country woman of 60 years faded and wrinkled, while the face of the city woman of the same age is smooth and beautiful? On account of protection against the elements. The city woman has been using her cream and powder puff for 40 years, and has yet to experience any deleterious effects. The idea that the faces of actresses are old looking off the stage is pure superstition. Many an actress courted by our fathers has a complexion the envy of our own daughters. These are things the physicians should know, and not be afraid to say."

Two—A dry skin will wrinkle much sooner than an oily one and any woman living in a dry or damp climate who has a dry skin cannot be too careful or too persistent in keeping the wrinkles and the annoying little lines away. It should be cleaned with a liquid emulsion of pure almond oil, and in the morning give it a dash of tepid water. For a facial massage, soap it with warm (not hot) water. Wipe it gently then massage with upward movement with a massage cream—not a cold cream; wipe off and bathe it specialists, and this fact tends to increase a demand for specially trained teachers in all of the other departments of the public schools. One school in Douglas county is planning to secure from the state normal school for next year a normal trained teacher for each grade.

In Favor of Rural School Supervisors

After attending and participating in teachers' institutes in nearly every county in the state, Assistant Superintendent E. F. Carlton returns to his office in the state house reporting that a big majority of the teachers with whom he has associated in the institutes are in favor of a law providing rural school supervisors. The rural supervisor plan is in effect in Marion county, and has been found very efficient in building up the country schools.

Mr. Carlton also brings back the report that modern buildings are becoming more numerous; that trained teachers are in greater demand, and that the study of agriculture is being taken up almost universally.

"An increasing percentage of trained teachers; more modern school buildings; greater interest in the study of agriculture, were some of the noticeable features of these institutes," said Mr. Carlton. "The institute in each county was usually held in the high school building, and this building, in nearly every case, is a new one, well lighted, heated and ventilated. At least one high school in every county has a well-planned domestic science room and manual training room. The teachers in these departments are
