THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The Document Deals With Foreign Trade and Peace Problems

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The foreign relations of the United States are as necessary to national welfare and safety as the maintenance of the armed forces. The tutto is of the Union is a degree of harmony and security that has been preserved by the wisdom and efforts of all previous generations, and it is for us to continue the work of preservation. It is not enough to depend upon the armed strength of the nation, but it is also necessary to maintain the peace and prosperity of the nation. The work we have undertaken to promote the welfare of the United States and the peace of the world must be continued. The President, by an executive order dated this day, has determined to enter into negotiations with foreign countries for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the United States and the peace of the world. These negotiations shall be conducted in good faith, and shall be directed toward the achievement of the following objectives:

1. To promote the welfare of the United States and the peace of the world.
2. To maintain the security of the United States.
3. To foster international understanding and cooperation.

These objectives shall be achieved by the following means:

1. By the establishment of diplomatic relations with foreign countries.
2. By the exchange of diplomatic representatives.
3. By the establishment of economic and cultural relations with foreign countries.
4. By the establishment of military alliances with foreign countries.

The President shall have the power to negotiate treaties, to conclude agreements, and to make treaties and agreements, with the consent of the Senate, for the purpose of achieving the objectives of this message. The President shall have the power to appoint and remove ambassadors, ministers, and consuls, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Senate informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the House of Representatives informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Congress informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the President of the United States informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of State informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Navy informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Commerce informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Labor informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of War informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of the Treasury informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.

The President shall have the power to keep the Secretary of Agriculture informed of all his negotiations, treaties, and agreements, with the consent of the Senate.