THE LEGISLATURE MEETS.

THE legislature is again in session, beginning its 27th sitting this morning. At this writing the organization has not been completed, and there seems to be a general idea that there will be a pretty warm time before this is accomplished. Of course, the proper time, the only time to comment on its work is when it is done, and it is idle to even hazard any guesses as to what it will do. It is composed of an unusually bright and brainy lot of men, and its work should show their ability. There are many important things to come before it, among them being the appropriation for the Panama exposition, over which there is a wide divergence of opinion. It is agreed that Oregon should make a good exhibit, one worthy of her, but the amount proper to be expended, and sufficient to make a showing the state may take pride in, is the debatable ground, and it will no doubt be fully debated.

Another thing that will occupy some time is amendment of the initiative law. There is a general feeling that the law is weak, in that, under it, hundreds of matters can be taken up at any election, and the ballot so encumbered that the voter is unable to vote intelligently. This is, no doubt, true, it is easy to diagnose the disease, but the discoverer of the remedy will be a Jenner or a Freudmann. Many suggestions have been made, one by Judge Lowell, which would restrict the number of measures on the ballot, but this has the fatal defect that any so disposed by proposing the given number of initiative measures, any old unimportant thing, could prevent the people voting on measures of real importance.

The legislature may find the remedy, but we doubt it. There seems to be a general sentiment among the members that they should get down to business; protect the state's finances, cut out graft and humbug and petty politics, and get right down to brass tacks and business.

Marion County Poultry Show Begins Tuesday

Special premiums to be competed for by the enthusiastic fanciers of the mortgage raiser, at the Marion county poultry show, commencing tomorrow in the armory, are on display in the show window of G. W. Johnson, on Commercial street. Among these premiums are some extraordinarily handsome and valuable articles.

A $20 loving cup, given by Ladd & Bush for the highest scoring bird in the show, looks up proud enough to tempt the winners at Madison Square Garden. A pickle dish, given by S. N. Thompson, jeweler, for the second highest scoring bird in the show, is a beautiful piece and will cause much anxiety until the awards are made.

A handsome fern bowl, offered by Barrs' jewelry store, to the lady making the best exhibit, has caused a large entry by women interested in poultry. J. L. Stockton, the dry goods man, ever thoughtful of the comfort of the fair sex, has offered a fine pair of shoes to the lady making the second best exhibit.

The Capital drug store believes in doing a cash business, and has offered $5 in cash for the best exhibit from Salem or vicinity.

Many other valuable premiums too numerous to mention, are shown in the window, which demonstrates the loyalty of Salem business men to public enterprises, and particularly to the Marion county poultry show.

As a means of encouraging the children in industrial work some very attractive premiums have been offered for them to compete for, and a free pass ticket will be issued every pupil in the city schools and nearby country schools.

Superintendent Kholsten and the secretary, Mrs. Ella Plank, with a large force of enthusiastic boosters, are busily engaged at the armory today receiving and coupling birds, many having been exhibited, and won coveted prizes at previous shows.

A large display of the Oregon pheasant family, furnished by the state, through the courtesy of Superintendent Steiner, of the State Hospital, will be a very attractive feature of the show and to see them alone will be well worth the price of admission.

The show will open tomorrow in all its splendor, and from present indications, 800 birds will be on exhibition.

Monmouth Notes.

Monmouth, Ore., Jan. 11. Prof. J. B. Livingston, of the Monmouth high school, is starting a movement to get tents on a building to be placed on the school grounds, under which he will install gymnasium apparatus for the benefit of the high school students, as the high school has no gymnasium at the present time.

Mrs. J. M. Haines is dangerously ill, there being two trained nurses in attendance at all times.

The wireless telegraph station located on top of the Monmouth hotel has been removed on account of the loud noise it emits.

Legislature to Keep Check on Lobbyists

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.]
Olympia, Wash., Jan. 12.—Fear of a contest of Ernest Lister's election as governor, to be decided by both houses of the legislature, in joint session, which is controlled by a decided Republican majority, has stamped the Democratic legislators into a coalition with the Republicans and will result in the election of Howard D. Taylor as speaker and Senator Phily Allen as president pro tem.

At a caucus of Democratic house members here Sunday afternoon 15 voted for Taylor on the first ballot, and only two opposed him.

It is openly charged here this morning that Republican leaders agreed to put a stop to the talk of a governorship contest in return for the votes of the Democrats for Taylor and Allen.

The progressives are charging that the Democrats have further agreed to stand by the Republicans on important legislation. This will be determined soon after the legislature convenes at noon today, when the progressives plan to force a vote of the whole house on the proposition of electing the rules committee, instead of allowing the speaker to appoint the members.

Following this motion the progressives will ask for a referendum of the house members on all house calendars, to determine the order in which bills are to be considered. In addition, they will also make a fight to have the committee clerks keep records of the committee meetings, with special reference to the names of those who appear before the committee, so as to show the various lobbyists interested in the outcome of the various bills.

And Olympia is full of these lobbyists today, the number exceeding by far those of the 1911 session.

A Great Classic Feature.

The management of the Wexford theatre has engaged for three days, namely Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 14, 15, and 16, "Mlle. Arthmore Grey," the dainty English comedienne, in a series of Egyptian and Grecian classic dances and high class songs. Mlle. Grey has appeared in the best houses in this country, and her wardrobe is beautiful.

Mlle. Grey is a pupil of the famous Senor Rossi, ballet master of the Alhambra theatre, London, England, and it is through the endeavor of the Wexford to please its patrons that Salem will have an opportunity to hear and see Mlle. Grey at such a small admission.

Her performance is strictly high class and should appeal to the music-loving people of Salem. Mlle. Arthmore Grey has her own version of the Vision of Salome.

The world is usually willing to let a man have his own way—if he is willing to pay liberally for it.

Bethel School Notes.
District No. 125, Bethel, enjoyed one week's vacation which ended January 6. School is now in session, and is progressing nicely with Miss McClain, of Salem, as teacher. A debate was held Friday, January 10, at the school house. The subject was: Resolved: That wood is more useful than steel. The debaters were: Affirmative, Harlan Hoffman, Madison Nichols and Miss Alice Schrank; negative, John Clark, Miss Lueck Nichols and Miss Bessie Schrank. The judges after a deliberation of about five minutes, returned a verdict in favor of the affirmative. There were several visitors who were Mrs. Routenberg, Mrs. Evans, Miss Rosa Battalion, Miss Susie Bahnen and her cousin.

The attendance in school has been perfect for the week, with the exception of Miss Alta Matten, who has been visiting her sisters, who are teaching in the hills.

TWO FIRE ALARMS.

The Salem fire department responded to two calls yesterday, neither of which was of a serious nature. The first call was turned in from the corner of Court and Seventeenth streets, where a chimney fire was in progress. The second was from the Japanese cleaning parlors located between Court and Chemeketa. A fire had been started by a defective flue in the latter building, but was quickly extinguished by the department, with very little damage resulting.
