

Dr. Stutz Confident of Result

Prominent Physician Taking Tuberculosis Treatment Predicts Complete Recovery—A Boon to Humanity

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Washington, Feb. 6.—Tuberculosis victims from Portland, Maine, to San Diego, Cal., today are flooding Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, with pathetic appeals for information concerning the turtle serum discovered by Dr. Frederick Franz Friedmann, of Berlin. Hundreds of letters have arrived from Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico alone.

On Senator Gore's resolution the official report to the state department on Dr. Friedmann's cure was ordered printed for general distribution. The printing has been delayed, however, because of the necessity of translating the 100-page report, which is written in German. The report, it was announced, will be published in 10 days.

A Patient Confident.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Humane motives, and not a desire to withhold his discovery to amass a fortune, is the real reason for the continued silence of Dr. Frederick Franz Friedmann, alleged discoverer of a tuberculosis cure, according to letters received here today from Dr. Otto Stutz, the first physician to subject himself to the treatment.

"Dr. Friedmann," Stutz wrote relatives here, "is not trying to dispose of his cure, but is working day and night in his laboratory in Berlin to give his real worth. He realizes what a blow it would be to sufferers of tuberculosis to raise their hopes before he is certain of its worth, and he wants to absolutely prove its efficiency before giving it to the world."

Dr. Stutz is a practicing physician of Upper Sandusky, and is himself a tuberculosis sufferer. He sought relief in Dr. Friedmann's treatment, and predicts his complete recovery by March 1.

Brings First Serum.

New York, Feb. 6.—Bringing with him the first Friedmann turtle serum ever brought to the United States, Dr. Austin Held, of Pittsburgh, arrived here today. He brought only enough to treat one patient in Pittsburgh, and at once started for that city.

Dr. Milton Foster, of the Ellis Island immigrant service, questioned Dr. Held as to the efficacy of the Friedmann cure. The Pittsburgh physician said he had no doubt it was an absolute cure for tuberculosis.

The Spanish Method.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

San Salvador, Feb. 6.—Shooting him several times through the body a party of assassins attempted to slay Dr. Manuel A. Araujo, president of Salvador, and he is in a serious condition today.

A Guatemalan, who gave his name as Virgilio Mulatillo, was arrested.

A Daily Event.

White Earth, Minn., Feb. 6.—Jealousy is attributed today as the motive for the slaying here last night of Maude Sweet, aged 30 years, by Peter King, a former member of the Indian agency police, who then ended his own life. The couple formerly lived together, but the woman left him. King shot the woman when she refused to return to him.

Last Day New Bills Can Get in

Senate Has Twenty Six New Measures Brought Before It in Morning and More Are Rapidly Ripening

Twenty-six bills were introduced and given first reading in the senate in the forenoon session today. Today is the last day on which bills can be introduced without the consent of two-thirds of the members of the body.

The bills introduced today were as follows:

By Perkins, exemption of dentists from jury duty. By Wood, creating the Thirteenth judicial district from Multnomah and Tillamook counties. By Wood, by request, authorizing district attorney to employ clerks. By Joseph, to maintain a fish hatchery in Polk county. By Joseph, for the issuance of bonds to defray the expenses of construction of county roads. By Joseph, relating to the registration of voters. By Butler, by request, relating to the time juries may be kept together after receiving charge from the court. By Butler, relating to bills of exception. By Thompson, amending section 5288, Lord's Oregon Laws. By Kellaher, prohibiting the increase in salary for any office while any person is a candidate, or during his incumbency in office. By Moser, relating to deposits of county money in Multnomah county. By Moser, to regulate the licensing of electrical firms, and creating a board of electrical examiners. By Moser, an act enabling Multnomah county to transfer certain land to the city of Portland to be used for playground and park purposes. By Smith of Coos and Curry, relating to the time of holding court in the second judicial district. By Moser, providing for the appointment of a county commissioner in Multnomah county to fill the vacancy caused by the abolition of the office of county judge. By Day, for a survey of the Columbia river at The Dalles. By Day, providing for the compensation of laborers who are victims of accidents or their dependents in case of the death of the laborer. By Barrett, providing for the maintenance and support of the state normal school at Weston. By Thompson, relating to the salaries of county officers in Lake county. By Barrett, creating a state highway commission. By Stewart, relating to bills of sale for livestock. By Carson, for the erection of a statue of Geo. H. Williams in Memorial hall, Washington, D. C. By Patton, for free text-books. By the judiciary committee, relating to the appointment of special officers by the governor.

To Prohibit Treating.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Olympia, Wash., Feb. 6.—Advocates of the no-treating law are in great hopes today, as the result of the test vote Wednesday, which saved Senator Davis' bill from being indefinitely postponed. The vote stood 23 to 19. The bill will make state-wide the Tacoma ordinance, which prohibits treating in places where liquor is sold.

Girl Is Heroine.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Plunging in after five Vassar college girls, whose sled had broken through the ice on New Lake, here, Miss Phoebe Briggs, of Sacramento, Cal., managed to hold the heads of two of the girls above water until rescued. Miss Elizabeth Mylod, of Poughkeepsie, another member of the party, was drowned, while the two remaining girls were rescued by Professor Sattlock, of Vassar.

It Refuses Consent to Bond Issue

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Over-capitalization is the reason assigned by the railroad commission here for turning down the application of the United Railroads to issue $2,350,000 of 6 percent, five-year bonds, and the application also of the Market Street Railroad company to issue, as collateral for these notes, $2,150,000 in five percent bonds. The commission further questions the legality of the alleged payment to Patrick Calhoun, former president of the company, of $300,000 back salary for four years, at the rate of $75,000 annually.

"No explanation," the commission says, "is made of this item, but it at once suggests the necessity of a thorough investigation to determine the items claimed by the applicants as operating expenses of the United Railroads over a series of years."

The commission flatly charges that the United Railroads operates on a frenzied finance basis, saying:

"If the company were conservatively capitalized there would be ample funds from earnings to put the property in first-class condition, make all necessary extensions, and pay fixed charges and dividends on a reasonable amount of capital stock."

Other findings of the commission were:

First—That the provisions of the United Railroads trust deeds with reference to the establishment of sinking fund reserves have not been complied with.

Second—That the company has exchanged with its owners their own promise to pay and has set them up in an account as sinking fund investments.

Third—That a fictitious surplus or profit and loss account has been created.

Fourth—That dividends have been paid out of such fictitious surplus, to the detriment of the equity supporting the bonds.

Fifth—That instead of setting up a heavy reserve to aid in retiring bonds, which it now seems the company will be unable to pay at maturity, the company is continuing to pay out dividends.

All members of the Moose and their families and all persons receiving invitations are requested to be present to join in the Grand March at 9 o'clock p. m.

The House Ground a Big Grist

Organization's Steam Roller Struck a Stump in the Public Accounting Bill, and Could Not Get Over It

Partly heeding Speaker McArthur's request to dispense with silver-tongued oratory and work diligently, the house transacted a large grist of business this forenoon, passed a number of bills of minor importance and killed several others. Very little time was wasted with useless oratory.

Strong opposition arose over the public accounting bill of Abbott of Multnomah, which resulted in its untimely death. The organization's steam roller was not working good, for the bill got only 29 votes, lacking two of passage.

The bill provided for a state board of public accountancy of five members, from which every public accountant who wished to use the title "certified public accountant" must obtain a certificate, after passing an examination before the board. Abbott, Latourette and Carpenter of Multnomah contended that this measure would protect accountants, and was a much needed law.

Blanchard, Bonebrake, Peirce, Gill Massey and Johnson, however, declared themselves as opposed to the creation of any more state boards and commissions. They denounced the bill as a nefarious measure which would allow a few big accounting firms virtually a monopoly or trust in the accounting business, and argued that the bill would virtually outlaw any accountant, no matter how good, if he did not care to have or use the title.

Hughes of Marion created a laugh when he suggested that if the initials "C. P. A." were changed to "A. P. A." the bill might pass.

Hereafter no divorced person in Oregon can legally marry again until six months after the divorce decree is granted, as the Abbott bill with this provision was passed. The present law has been inadequate on the subject, although the circuit judges of the state have been inserting this provision in all their decrees.

The Schuebel bill making every county judge a fire warden ex-officio, was passed, as was the Multnomah delegation bill to permit property owners along road in Multnomah county to establish assessment districts for the paving of roads.

The Meek bill to prevent the sale of adulterated food stuff, used for feeding farm animals, was passed. It provides that every package or lot of such food shall bear on its outside a printed statement certifying to the name, brand or trademark, the name of the dealer, importer or manufacturer, and give the composition of the contents.

The Hurd law amending the present law relating to the levy and collection of the tax for road funds by the county judge, and amending the present law

A Sound Snorer.

Winsted, Conn., Feb. 6.—"One hundred dollars to the man who will cure me of snoring."

This is the offer made today by Charles H. Barruther, the champion snorer of Winsted, Barruther raised a riot in a Turkish bath recently when several patrons of the place whom he had awakened, threatened to eject him.

Oratorio Society to Entertain

WILL PRESENT "THE ROSE MAIDEN" FEBRUARY 19, AND ON THE 26TH WILL PUT ON MINSTREL SHOW UNDER THE DIRECTION OF H. C. EPLEY.

On February 19, the Salem Oratorio society, under the direction of R. B. Carson, of Portland, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A., the cantata "The Rose Maiden," which will be one of the hits of the season. The oratorio society now numbers over 50 of Salem's most talented singers, who are bending every effort to make this number a grand success.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., at its monthly meeting yesterday noon, after discussing this proposition at some length, decided that popular prices should prevail, it being their intention to issue season tickets for the two numbers, and canvass the town, in order that every one in Salem may have the privilege of attending these two magnificent productions.

Another play for the Y. M. C. A., will be given on February 25, when an old-fashioned minstrel show, under the direction of Dr. H. C. Epley, Ray Chapter and Stanley Barton, to whom is largely due the credit for the success of the minstrel show staged three years ago, will be given, in which will appear local celebrities in songs and dances, and clean, down-to-the-minute hits. This attraction is one of the two numbers mentioned above and promises a wealth of fun for those who are fortunate enough to be present on that date.

POLICE INSPECTOR CONFESSES CROOKEDNESS

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

New York, Feb. 6.—Arrest of a New York police inspector is expected today, as the result of the confession of Police Captain Thomas Walsh that he divided between $25,000 and $50,000 graft money with this official. Walsh is near death, as the result of the effect of the graft disclosure on his weakened heart.

The confession was made to District Attorney Whitman. It covered the charges against Walsh by Patrolman Eugene Fox, who confessed to having paid him large sums of money, extorted from dive keepers.

Oil Still Higher.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Lima, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Ohio, Indiana and Illinois oils rose three cents a barrel today to the highest price recorded since the opening of the oil fields in this territory.

Mountain Water for the State

Senator Day's Bill Is First Step Towards Providing Pure Mountain Water for All the State Institutions

Senator Day's bill to direct the State Board to bring in mountain water for the state institutions is in the hands of the committee on public lands, of which Senator Stewart is chairman. The committee has decided to give a hearing to experts on engineering propositions, and former City Engineer J. W. Culver, who has made all the surveys to the forest reserve, and City Engineer C. E. Birdsell, who planed the Salem sewer system, will be invited before the meeting as soon as a date can be arranged with them. The senators are determined to leave nothing undone to get hold of the facts, and know why Salem cannot have a supply of pure mountain water for the state institutions. In the past two years the state has built another surface well at the asylum, costing about $10,000, with all equipments. At a low estimate $100,000 have been spent at different times on water supply for state purposes at Salem, and many of the institutions are without an adequate supply for sanitary purposes in the dry season. The Day bill proposes to tap the nearest available mountain stream with a pipe line laid with convict labor, on a continuing basis of $50,000 a year to start the work. It is believed it can be done in this way for not to exceed $200,000, and generate power for lighting all the state institutions at the same time. The plan is to bring a concrete pipe line from the Little North Fork of the Santiam to the top of the hills at the asylum farm, and from there distribute the water to the nine state institutions at the Capital City. This is considered by engineering experts the only practicable and feasible route for a pipe line at the lowest cost to the state. Governor West has a bill in the house to give the State Board more power to condemn lands and water rights for the same purpose, and this legislature may not adjourn without solving the problem of a water supply for the state institutions.

MONMOUTH HAS TROUBLE WITH ITS WATER SUPPLY

[Special to The Capital Journal.]

Monmouth, Feb. 6.—The superintendent of the city water works and his force of helpers are at work today testing the water mains leading from the reservoir to the different branch pipes, and the only trouble seems to be that of the plugs continually blowing out. As soon as one would be fixed another one would be reported blown out, and kept the force on the lookout constantly.

Several weeks have been consumed in filling the reservoir, as the main line was not strong enough to hold the water, and consequently most of it leaked out before it reached the reservoir.
