PROPOSED CHANGES AT THE WILLAMETTE

No Definite Arrangements Yet Made, But Medical School Will Probably Go to Portland.

Since the fact that the medical school is to go to Portland has been made public, the main query now is, will the college of law go too.

No official statements can be obtained in regard to the matter, but there are two wide-spread reports. One rumor is that the Oregon law school, at Portland, will be merged with the Salem school, and a state law school established in Salem. Some Willamette enthusiasts claim that the school so united will continue to be a part of Willamette and that we would really get the best of the trade.

The other rumor is that the law will be separated from the local university, and conducted at some other place in the city, under the present able faculty, as a private law school.

However nice these plans may seem, none of them can be substantiated by any of the school authorities, and rumors and plans will continue to circulate until the university office finds itself in a position to make a statement.

New questions present themselves, now that the medical school is to go, namely, what is to become of the medical building? Will the university receive additional endowment, without also ridding itself of the law school? If such endowment is available, what is the amount the school will be able to obtain?

In the first place it is understood that the medical building will be turned into a science hall, something badly needed by the institution.

With the laboratories out of the chapel building and the literature societies and Y. M. C. A. moved to the new administration building, which it is expected will be erected within the next three years, the interior of the building could be entirely renovated

MARION COUNTY TO LOSE MARION LAKE

Senate Passes Bill Fixing Boundaries —Several Other Bills Are Sent Through.

Over protest of the Marion county delegation the senate Saturday afternoon passed the compromise bill establishing the boundary line between Marion and Linn counties. By the provisions of the bill Marion lake will be in Linn county. On account of proposed developments of the water power of Marion creek, which flows out of Marion lake, this is considered a valuable acquisition for Linn county.

The water of Marion creek is said to offer a possibility of the best water power in the state. It has been estimated by competent engineers that the power can be utilized so cheaply that power can be sold in Salem for as low as $9 a horsepower. Portland and Salem capitalists are said to be behind a move to develop the power.

Hatchery Bill Killed.
An effort of years on the part of the people of Polk county again ended unsuccessfully in the late hours of the senate session Saturday night, when the bill for placing the Teal trout hatchery under the maintenance of the state failed to pass.

After having all of its teeth drawn in committee the Calkins bill for the prohibition of the shipment of liquor from wet into dry territory passed the senate Saturday night. The bill only prohibits shipments by bootleggers. Carson, of Marion, denounced the legislation as frivolous, declaring that three-fourths of the time of the session has been taken up with matters pertaining to liquor and disorderly women.

Indefinite postponement was the disposal made Saturday afternoon of the Butler bill for the creation of a state horticultural commission, with an appropriation of $50,000.

Looks Bad for Expert.
Senator Carson's bill for the abolition of the office of state printing expert passed the senate. The author of the bill pronounced the office "merely a sinecure," and said that the duties could be performed by the secretary of state. Sixteen senators voted for the bill. McCulloch was suspicious that the intention was to exclude any member of the typographical union from holding the position of secretary in the secretary of state's office to take care of the duties now in the hands of the expert. Carson denied this.

With several senators voting in its favor reluctantly, the morals court bill passed the senate. Malarky and Butler both doubted the wisdom of the bill, but voted in its favor.

By a decisive vote, Senator Keller's bill proposing a license of $200 a year for the use of trading stamps failed to pass.

With its object the prevention of important bills, such as the Panama-Pacific appropriation, workmen's compensation, and good roads being held up for two years, Senator Day's bill for a special referendum election to be held September 2, passed the senate.

Split on Textbook Bill.
Because the bill does not provide for free textbooks for parochial school, the Day bill for free textbooks caused a split in the senate Saturday afternoon, and finally met defeat. A second bill, meeting the objection, may be framed and introduced, if the senate will consent.

Senators Joseph, Dimick and Carson, special committee for the investigation of the Oregon Naval Militia, are the most complete split in the legislature, each having brought in a separate report. The report of Dimick and Joseph are identical in the main, except that Dimick favors the complete abolishment of the militia. Senator Carson approves the state naval forces.

COUNCILMAN MINTON MAKES STATEMENT

Editor Journal:
In the Journal for February 15 you state that "Chief of Police Shodeck has received no further orders concerning the closing of Salem billiard and pool halls and it is evident that the original order issued to him by Councilman Minton is a forgotten subject." I never at any time issued any orders to Chief Shodeck to close the pool rooms or to enforce any law as the charter of the city does not confer such authority on the chairman of the police committee.

Chief Shodeck did ask me what to do about closing the pool rooms, and said he was in doubt about his authority to close them. I referred him to City Attorney Page and told him if he was in doubt at any time about his authority, to consult the city attorney, as he would have to make the prosecutions and if Page advised the arrest, and he made the arrest and furnished the evidence and Page failed to convict the responsibility would rest on the city attorney, and not on him.

Don't think for a minute that Councilmen Jones and Minton have taken a "hunch" from the Journal and ceased any effort to enforce the laws of the city insofar as they have the power. Respectfully,
E. C. MINTON.

THEY RAN A BLUFF ON THE HOLD-UP MEN

Salooneer and Guests Paid No Attention to Robbers, Finally Throw Them Out.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]
Chicago, Feb. 17.—Two desperate-looking bandits, with two big revolvers, walked into the saloon of Edward Waltemede. Waltemede was swabbing the bar and four men were playing cards.

"Hands up," growled the bandits. Waltemede went on swabbing. The card players went on playing.

"Hands up," they roared again. Still the swabber swabbed and the players played.

It began to get uncomfortable for the outlaws. Occasionally one of the men looked up at them and winked. Occasionally one invited them to have a drink. They got nervous.

Then Waltemede walked around the bar.

"Here, you bums! Enough!" he said quietly. Then he took each of them by the collar and threw them out.

UNFORTUNATELY THE REPORTS ARE UNTRUE

J. P. Morgan Wires That Reports of His Serious Illness Are Greatly Exaggerated.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]
New York, Feb. 17.—Direct denial from J. P. Morgan of reports that he was critically ill at Cairo, Egypt, was received here today by H. P. Davison, a junior member of the banking firm of which Morgan is the head.

"We called Cairo," Davison said this afternoon, "when we heard the report, and have just received Mr. Morgan's answer. He said he had entirely recovered from an attack of indigestion, and had changed his plans to return to Italy."

"Mr. Morgan will remain in Cairo at least until the steamer Adriatic arrives. This should set at rest all reports of his critical illness."

Died Today.

The marriage of Miss Nellie E. Derby to Mr. Fred T. Collin, of Portland, took place today at 12 o'clock at the home of the bride, F. N. Derby, Rev. Davis Errett officiating. Only immediate relatives and near friends were present.

At 1:30 this afternoon, the bridal dinner was given in a special dining room of the Hotel Marion, and probably the most elaborate spread ever arranged by Manager Crowe, was enjoyed by the party of nineteen. The decorations consisted of festoons of ferns and a beautiful wreath of white carnations.
