Weist Files Suit.

W. A. Weist, the former principal of the Englewood public school today, through his attorneys, John A. Carson and Grant Corby, commenced suit for damages in the Marion county circuit court against School District No. 24 for damages in the sum of $5000.

It is alleged in the complaint that the plaintiff was employed as principal of the Englewood school on June 1, 1912, and that in 1913 he was accused of immoral conduct with Laura DeBoard, a 17-year-old pupil and later discharged. The plaintiff alleges that the charges were untrue and that by reason of the injury inflicted by the false charges, he is damaged in the sum of $5000.

Seven Killed in Suburbs.

Lincoln, Neb., March 24.—Seven persons are known to have been killed by the cyclone between here and Omaha. At Ashland, Mrs. Frederick Hoyt was caught in the cyclone and hurled to the ground. Her body was frightfully crushed and mangled.

At the Friends Church, Highland.

Meetings will be held tonight and Tuesday night, also an afternoon service at 2:30 Tuesday. The house is filled, all are serious, many fully surrendered, numbers have fully surrendered and been born of the spirit as definitely as were born in the flesh, to which they joyfully testify. Between 60 and 70 have come to the altar. Mr. Homer Cox and wife are the main speakers. Come; you are more than welcome.

WHY A BASEBALL CURVES.

For the Same Reason That an Open Door Slams in a Draft.

All have wondered at some time or other why a door opened nearly to the limit will close when there is a draft or wind going through the opening. Certainly the wind does not get in behind the door and shove it, for the draft is through the opening.

The explanation of this fact lies in a fundamental principle of moving fluids and is the same principle that makes a baseball curve. Whenever there is a current in the air, wherever pressure is least in that current, so when the draft blows through the opening to the door the pressure on that side of the door is decreased, and consequently the pressure on the other side will start slowly to move the door, making it go faster and faster till the door swings into the draft itself and starts going in the direction of the draft. When it does so go in this direction of course the draft helps it along, because it is now not the sideward motion that counts, but the forward motion.

When a ball is rotated in the air it carries around with it a good deal of air sticking to the sides. This, then, is the same thing as saying that a current of air is flowing round the rotating ball in the direction of rotation. Now, if a wind blows against that ball it is easy to see that the little rotating current will be with the wind on one side and against it on the other, so that on one side the velocity of the air will be increased and on the other diminished. So the greater pressure on the slow side will shove the ball against the low pressure on the fast side. Now, throwing a ball in the air is the same as making a wind blow against it, so if a ball be thrown and rotated at the same time it will necessarily curve.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Grammatical Oversight.

A correspondent has complained that in a story the other day we used "scissors" in the singular number. If we did so it was an oversight. But this kick just goes to show another one of the foolishnesses of our beloved tongue. If there were any logic in it a three lined fork is a triplet and should always be called "they." Why isn't a glove plural if a scissors are? If a shears is two, what are a sawbuck?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disappointed in Love.

"What's wrong with that melancholy man you were talking to just now?" "He has been disappointed in love." "Too bad! Did some other fellow get the girl?" "No, he got the girl, but she won't support him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Would Meet the Demand.

Indignant Wife—I wonder what you would have done if you had lived when men were first compelled to earn their bread by the sweat of their brows! Indolent Husband—I should have started a little notion store and sold handkerchiefs.—Chicago Tribune.

Very Scornful.

"Our waiters must say 'Thank you,' even when the tip is small." "That rule does not prevent them from showing their scorn, my friend. Some of your waiters can say it with seven different inflections."—Pittsburgh Post.

Four Cabinet Wives Well Known at Capital—Two Looked Upon as Leaders

AMONG the cabinet hostesses, all of whom have been given the complete approval of Washington society, four at least are looked upon as previously well established favorites of the capital. Two of these are looked upon particularly as coming leaders of the capital set.

Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Josephus Daniels, whose husbands have been frequently active in unofficial as well as official business at Washington in past years, have gained many friends in that city. Both have been the right hand partners of their distinguished husbands through all the distinctions of political ups and downs.

It was, of course, natural for the wives to fulfill roles in social activity at the capital during the times when their husbands made headquarters in that city intermittently.

Mrs. Bryan first became enderred to Washington matrons when Mr. Bryan was representative from Nebraska. The friendships she established in those days have been kept fresh by numerous subsequent visits.

Mrs. Albert Sidney Burleson, whose husband is now postmaster general, and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, whose husband is secretary of the interior, are the other old acquaintances renewing their social relations in Washington.

Mrs. Bryan took but a moderate part in social affairs while her husband was congressman, during which time the family occupied a home on Capitol hill, quite remote from the fashionable residence center of the northwest. Her three children, all of whom are now married, occupied Mrs. Bryan's time then to the exclusion of society. Since then, however, Mrs. Bryan has traveled extensively with her husband both in this country and Europe. She passed several weeks in Washington last spring, when she was a promoter of the famous Dolly Madison breakfast, attended by about 400 women of the Democratic ranks.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, figuratively knows Washington inside and out. Her acquaintance there is chiefly in the naval set, of which she is considered a part because of her frequent visits with her mother, Mrs. Adelaide North Bagley.

Mrs. Daniels has a son training for the navy. Born at Raleigh, N. C., Mrs. Daniels possesses the affability and whole soulfulness of southern society women. She is easily met and not soon forgotten. Her father was Judge William H. Bagley, clerk of the supreme court of North Carolina. Euzig Worth Bagley, the first American officer to fall in the Spanish-American war, was her brother.

Before her marriage Mrs. Daniels was one of the reigning belles of Raleigh. She is still considered one of the most beautiful women in the state. The secretary of the navy and Mrs. Daniels have five sons, one of whom bears the name of his lamented uncle, Worth Bagley, and is a middy at Annapolis.

Mrs. Albert Sidney Burleson has been the wife of a congressman for sixteen years. Thus she has been pretty steadily a member of capital society in the congressional set. Mrs. Burleson comes of a family possessing privileges. Early in life she had extensive travels. She has quite a reputation as a story writer and writer of plays. Her productions have frequently formed the entertainment at charitable and big social affairs.

Mrs. Franklin K. Lane is a graduate of the University of California, her native state. She gives much attention to music and art.

If Mexican rebels are ever all killed off, the country will be so depopulated that sane and decent men may have a chance to do something in it.

REVEREND ERRETT LEAVES.

organizations. This has been strikingly true of the organizations of women, which have shown a remarkable growth in membership and in results. The retiring minister says these organizations have done much work that a pastor cannot do. Mr. Errett declares that the last year of his service in the Salem church has been the best year of his pastorate here. More members have been added to the church than in any previous year, and the unity of the congregation has been stronger.

Was Newspaper Man. Mr. Errett began his career as a preacher in Omaha in 1888. Before that time he was a newspaper man and a lawyer. For a number of years he was editor and publisher of the Saline County Republican, at Marshall, Mo. He is a nephew of Isaac Errett, who founded the Christian Standard, and who was also founder of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society.

Shortly after entering the ministry, Mr. Errett took up evangelical work, as head of the State Bible school work in Nebraska, and held that position for four and one-half years. From Nebraska he went to Kirksville, Mo., to become pastor of the church at that place. His next pastorate in Missouri were at Palmyra and at Kunt. From Missouri he was called to Waco, Texas, and from Waco to Salem.

In Oregon Mr. Errett has received state-wide recognition by the Christian church. For one year he was president of the State Ministerial Association, and for four years served as president of the State Missionary Board, with headquarters at Portland. At present he is chairman of the committee on ministerial standing in this state.

Holds Local Honors. Locally, Mr. Errett has held positions of responsibility and honor outside of the church with which he was connected. He has been an active member of the Ministerial Union of Salem, and has served both as president and secretary of the organization. He has been in close touch with the Young Men's Christian Association since coming here and has co-operated with the different secretaries who have been stationed in Salem. For several months he has conducted a Sunday school class for men at the local association. Yesterday he closed a series of lectures on the life of Christ, which have been well attended.

At the close of the lecture yesterday afternoon speeches of appreciation were made by several of those who have been associated with him in the work. Mr. Errett is 59 years old. While not the oldest preacher in Salem, he is the senior minister in line of service.

Wife Helps Her Husband.

Mrs. Errett has been of great assistance to her husband in his pastorate in Salem. She has been honored with the vice-presidency of the State Christian Women's Board of Missions, and is president of the Ladies' Missionary Society of Salem. She has been a constant worker in the Bible school of the church. Her chief work with this department has been as instructor of the Loyal Daughters. This is a class in teachers' training, and numbers about 80 members. Mrs. Errett is a woman of literary talent. Poetic contributions from her pen, both of a humorous and serious nature, published in local papers, have pleased Salem people. Notable among her contributions is her "Owed" to Governor West.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Errett express regret at leaving Salem. They declare that they will always feel strong ties of friendship connecting them with the city. Mr. Errett has not confined himself to church affairs, and his influence has been felt in other lines.

Has Seen City Develop.

"The nine and one-half years that I have been in Salem has seen the making of a city," said Mr. Errett this week. "Salem was not a paved street in town, and no large buildings in the business section. The last ten years has been an era of prosperity for the Oregon capital."

"I have kept in close touch with the public affairs of the city, and place great value on my general acquaintance with the people. I am glad to be able to say that I have many friends to cherish, and no enemies to punish."

The official board of the Christian church will begin at once to cast about for a man to succeed Mr. Errett. If a pastor has not been procured by May 1, the time set for Mr. Errett's departure, arrangements will be made temporarily until a permanent pastor is secured.

In accepting the Boise pastorate, Mr. Errett goes into one of the largest churches in the Northwest. The membership is not as large as that of the Salem church. A magnificent church building was dedicated only a few months ago, however, and all is said to be in readiness for work of big proportions in the Idaho capital. Mr. Errett succeeds L. L. Chapman in the Boise church.

WHAT JONATHAN WANTS

JONATHAN GETS

Of all the pestiferous individuals they have ever had occasion to put up with, Jonathan Bourne, ticket distributor and general information bureau for the Southern Pacific company, at the passenger depot, is the dingiest one in the city, according to the street car men. Jonathan is sure in bad with the guardians of the nickels and the juice applicator on the cars running from the city to Yew Park.

The act which split in twain the feeling of tolerance of the actions of the principal under discussion occurred yesterday noon at the intersection of High and State streets. Bourne, knowingly and with evident malice, posted his meagre form on the opposite of the entrance to cars, as required by the rules of the company, and, with a grin, waited to have the door opened for him. The car flooded by, and Jonathan, seeing he would be left, unless he got busy, calmly pulled the 'stinger' off, and the motorman was helpless. The villain then stepped aboard, notwithstanding the glare of the conductor, and gave up his time to studying the pictures in the advertising racks.

"What I want, I get," says Jonathan.

"And the next time you tamper with the juice rod on this car," said the conductor, "you'll get something, whether you want it or not."

Passengers smiled; so did Bourne, and the conductor continued to glare.

Entertained Thursday.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. W. R. Kane entertained the members of the W. A. E. club at her home in Englewood. A pleasant afternoon was spent and plans for future work discussed. Luncheon was served after which officers were elected for the ensuing three months: Edith Welch Fuller was elected president, Irma Cooper Minister, secretary; Those present were Margaret Lansing Pooler, Edith Welch Fuller, Irma Cooper Minister, Miss Lloyd Bullifer, Edith Cleaver Kane, Mrs. Elroy Stiffler, Mrs. Laurence Greene, Mrs. L. Michelson, Mrs. C. Cleaver.
