

CITY TURNED OVER TO ANTLERED HERO

gives its "money's worth" every noon at the races.

Police to Assist Lodge

The chief of police has assured the committee that he will lead every assistance in behalf of the carnival and there will be extra men appointed by the mayor to aid in taking care of the crowds. It is not to be understood, however, that the police will interfere with any one having a hang-up time during the week but their presence is always necessary in large crowds to help in avoiding accidents, quiet little disturbances, etc. Both the police and the city council are anxious to assist the Moose lodge in every way possible to make the carnival a success and with the aid of every energetic business man in the city, there is no reason whatever but that the week should be one that will be long remembered by every one taking part in the big celebration.

The Moose lodge is the first order of the kind to arrange such a celebration for Salem and its efforts should meet with encouragement from not only the business men but every suburbanite and farmer in and around Salem. In fact the entire county will owe something to the Cherry City order of Moose and should respond by sending delegations from every district some time during the week of the carnival.

Several lodge members have already received letters of congratulation for the boosting spirit the Moose lodge can modestly claim in arranging such an affair at this time of the year, and the glad hand is being extended the order on every corner here.

Do You Like Confetti?

That merry little game of compelling the other fellow to swallow particles of little round papers commonly known as confetti, will probably be a leading game on some street which the Moose will set aside for that game alone. This endeavor will be named "Confetti Avenue" and those who are not desirous of sipping the product of the carnival spirited person will do well to fight shy of that locality. The Moose committee on entertainment has not fully decided whether or not to introduce confetti as a pastime during the carnival week but in the event it does, the throwing of the paper will be confined to one certain location.

It is not the intention of the lodge to revive any former custom known in the carnival world that will prove unpleasant to either the visitors or Salem people, but in the event the lodge committee find that confetti throwing will not be objectionable to everyone in general the staff will be allowed on certain grounds and no further.

Possibly the city will be decorated elaborately for the occasion as the Salem Board of Trade is now taking a great interest in the coming carnival and has assured the Moose lodge of its support. It is believed by many that if the different mercantile establishments would come in gala attire during the week, and the overhead wires of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern company be decorated with flags, Salem will present a most beautiful appearance to the many visitors who are intending taking advantage of an opportunity to "do things up brown." The Moose home will be grandly decorated while the streets in which the carnival company will post its tents will float banners and emblems of all kinds.

The county court has given permission to the carnival company to hold its free acts on the court house lawn.

Entertainments A-plenty

Following is a list of what will be seen at the different shows which will be brought here by the Browning Amusement company:

The Minstrel Shows

A good laugh and an all around pleasant hour are the results of visiting this attraction. The show is clean, wholesome and moral, and has an educational value as well as being interesting and entertaining. Here you see all of the new acts in the shape of refined dancing and singing and advanced gymnastics. Laughter and humor run riot and gloom is a thing forgotten when you see the antics of the comedians and the dainty girls who make up in a large measure the best part of the show. All of the latest dances will be shown here on a large and attractive stage and the music will be of the kind that makes the vanderbilt show so popular. There is nothing shown here but the very finest in each of the different lines represented, and you will never regret the small admission fee asked to see and hear all the latest dances and popular airs. The same attention is paid to the staging of this show as is given the best of the troupes on the large circuits; the scenic and lighting effects are the best that can be procured, and the large, commodious seats are comfortable to a degree never before attained in the art of arranging portable theatres, each and every seat affording a full view of the magnificent stage. This is a guaranteed production and one you cannot afford to miss. It is the opportunity of a lifetime to witness the new stunts from the comedy world staged by pretty and attractive young ladies whose whole aim is to entertain the audience. All in all, this show provides the means for passing one of the most pleasant hours of your life; and if you have not had a good laugh for some time just call at this feature—they will pull them out of you involuntarily.

Vanderbilt

You have no doubt often wondered at the marvelous ability of the old southern plantation negroes along musical lines, but it is a matter simply explained. It is an inherent trait with them, they take to it naturally. Soothed by generation after generation of lullabies and an easy, carefree existence, the environment of the southern negro is naturally adapted to creating inspirations for the already attuned ears of the Ethiopian, and the modern, wonderful exhibition put on by the Minstrel Troupe with this aggregation is the result. In this veritable palace of music you see the same old scenes that were the inspirations for some of the most beloved pieces of music ever produced in America. With little effort you can imagine yourself down in good old "Dixie," you can hear the cheerful singing as the happy lot come in from the day's toil amid the cotton and tobacco plants, and, as you hear again those good, old-fashioned tunes that used to make home so pleasant, you wonder more and more at the capabilities of this race of one time slaves who so easily and sweetly interpret the scenes that have played such an important part in the making of history for your country. The Minstrel Troupe who perform at our shows are all recruited from the better class of southern negroes and each is an artist within himself. With their usual and much talked of wit, they get off some of the latest hits from the world of jokes, and if you wish to hear again the good old music, as well as the very latest—to see again the negro in his natural environment doing the stunts that have made him famous as an entertainer and to see the clog and buck dancing that has become so popular through the efforts of the management of this show—all we ask is that you call on this stand. You will be surprised at the quality of the production and you will be pleased to tell your friends and relatives of the exhibition witnessed.

Moose Officials

The following compose the Moose official board:
D. R. Yantis, past dictator.
Guy Smith, dictator.
Roy Shields, vice-dictator.
John I. Savage, prelate.
H. H. Turner, secretary.
W. H. Wolf, Geo. Prunty and Geo. Gosser, trustees.
H. W. Ross, sergeant at arms.
Dr. Harry E. Clay, lodge physician.
Dr. R. Yantis has been elected as a delegate to attend the Moose convention which is to be held in the east shortly.
What the Cherry City lodge of Moose has done for itself in the way of up-building the organization can only be surmised by the fact that it was organized in the year 1911, Jan. 28 and at that time but 150 members composed the total roll. Now the Moose claim a membership of over 500 and will during carnival week, take in 100 more members.

Not only has the lodge prospered in membership and finances, but it now has an elegant home in the Derby-Lafayette building, which is seen in this Moose addition. The home is located on the north-east corner of the intersection of High and Court streets and the Moose lodge occupies the entire top floor. Besides a gentleman's reading room, a beautiful apartment is fitted up for the wives and relatives of the members of the lodge and this feature has been one causing favorable comment by all who have visited the quarters. A spacious lodge hall, equipped in mahogany and constructed upon plans of the latest architecture is located in the southwest section of the building, while the club rooms in which are located billiard and pool tables, card tables and everything pertaining to pastimes indulged in by the ordinary man, can be found.

AUTO PARADE WILL BREAK THE RECORD

preparations to swell the number to be seen in the auto parade, and under the able directions of Walter Toome, Jr., the citizens of that place will do themselves proud on Salem-Dallas day.

Portland to Visit

Salem will have good cause to make Portland a return visit during the Rose Festival, which is to be held in that city soon, when the people see the fine representation "the village down the creek" will pay the Capital City. Not only members of the Moose lodge will come from the Metropolis, but a train load of other citizens will respond to the invitation sent them to visit this city especially on Portland day.

"You want to get busy, as we're going to show you something new in the way of drilling," was the note attached to a letter written by a Portland Moose to Secretary Turner. The Portland lads have fine uniforms and will make a splendid showing according to their lodge members.

The Oregon Electric company is planning upon some special service during carnival week also. Some special trains both early and late will be operated north and south, and there will be more cars added to each train if necessary.

There are five or six hundred Woodmen of the World coming from Portland and other points on Portland day to take part in the convention to be held here by that order, and between the Moose and the W. O. W., a large throng will visit Salem that date.

Will Be Feature

Chris Schuman, The Journal's pressman, will be one candidate for initiation in the Moose lodge during the big initiation, who his friends venture to predict, will not be either asked or "compelled" to ride the goat or perform other antics customary in putting a new applicant through the ante room door of an order. Chris is about six feet, five inches in height and his other plans and specifications are of the Dresden type, and his weight—nothing short of wagon scales can tell you. The big pressman has an arm as big as the ordinary man's thigh and a kick can be turned loose from the shoulder that would put the notorious male "Maad" to shame. However, Chris is a pleasant good natured fellow, and the initiating committee need not fear for their lives in the event they desire to get funny.

TO "DOLL UP" THE CITY.

At the meeting held by the Salem Board of Trade last Wednesday evening, Roy Wasson, a member of the reception committee of the Moose carnival, requested the members of the Board of Trade to take into consideration the matter of decorating the city for the occasion.

Although the Board of Trade is somewhat short of funds, the executive committee was instructed to do rate both funds and labor towards "dolling" up old Salem in all the fashionable colors and visiting every business man and requesting him to add a little color to his establishment. The Board of Trade is with the Moose hand and foot, and horns, if necessary) to make the carnival a success and the members will exert every effort to assist the order in advertising the occasion throughout the state.

So far there has been no laggards to curtail the progress made by the Moose in arranging for the big event. Everyone has manifested a desire to aid and assist the Moose committee in every way possible and that the business men will respond to decorate, remains without saying.

There are two enterprising businessmen in Salem who, last Thursday, lead all others in decorating. They were Ed. Blessing, proprietor of the Senate wagon and George Brothers, the proprietors of the White House restaurant. Both of these business men came to the front in great style early in the game and their places of business were dressed up in bright colors several days before the big event.

Every business man in Salem should come to the front now and "show his colors." It is not very expensive to drape one's building with some hunting or post a few flags on the corners and every business house in the city would do well to prepare for the big occasion.

The city council will be requested to make use of the many wires strung from lamp post to lamp post before the date of the carnival. These wires extend for many blocks in the business district and will be decorated with appropriate bunting and flags. It is suggested that the Moose lodge furnish the street committee with a sufficient number of pennants to form one solid line along each block supporting the display wires and that the Moose pennants be also distributed to the state officials with the request that they be hung on the trees on the state house lawn.

Will Be Commercial Benefit

That the coming carnival will do more to advertise Salem spirit than any event of the kind ever occurring here, is the opinion of local business men who are not even members of the Moose lodge. The carnival will attract attention far and wide and the different railroad companies and feature writers will take notice of the fact and the Moose carnival will be in many of the magazines and periodicals. In other words, Salem will be on the map in more ways than half a dozen and all her resources will be thoroughly advertised.

Bridge day manifested what Salem people can do in the way of appreciation of something that will do them future good. The Moose carnival should appeal to these very same people in the same way. Boosting the carnival well, means a repetition of the great event, and a repetition means a still larger and more enthusiastic meeting of manufacturers, laboring men, merchants and farmers. Get the habit of stirring things up and creating what all live commercial clubs term an enterprising spirit, and dear old Oregon will have the pleasure of pointing a proud finger toward her Capital City, saying: "She's been long a-coming, but she's here."

Write your friends in the East; tell your friends in the East, West, South, and northern Oregon to come to Salem and have one of the highest old times they ever imagined. Tell them that next week there is going to be one Dickens of a time in this city and if they want to get in on the excitement, they must get out right along.

This is the first event of the kind ever pulled off in this city at this time of the year and in view of the fact that it fits in nicely with other occasions, both early and late, it is the desire of the local business men to make it a permanent feature. We have no more horse shows; cherry fairs are scarce, and while there are other occasions which spring up in the night and which last but a day, Salem has been absolutely destitute of amusement for years in the past. If the Moose carnival is a success, it will be a permanent fixture here and every one should do his or her part to make it so.

If the Moose carnival is a failure it will not be for the reason the members of the order have not exerted every effort to make it a success. It is now up to every Salomite to do their part—boost.

The man who throws himself at a young widow's head will soon find himself under her thumb—or foot.
