

"Oh!" Exclaims Mrs. Marshall. "Beauty!" Says Miss Harriman

Photos copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

MRS. THOMAS R. MARSHALL, wife of the vice president of the United States, was an interested spectator at the recent annual horse show in Washington. This snapshot proves it. Mrs. Marshall was caught just as she started to exclaim at some particularly interesting bit of horsemanship. She is an ardent horsewoman herself when she finds time to ride. She's up on many of the fine points of horsemanship and can tell at a quick glance whether the judges are going to have a hard time rendering a decision or not. Mrs. Marshall was sitting in the box with a friend when this was taken. Another interested spectator was Miss Harriman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York. This young society bud is shown here getting one of the horses in the stalls.

He left a note to the girl's father which read: "This is the kind of wedding you will see—a funeral instead." Becker was despondent over his inability to get work. Alas for the young man whose only claim to distinction is a little straw lid with a multi-colored band.

LORD'S CODE IS SHOT FULL OF HOLES

Owing to the large number of changes, amendments, etc., that resulted from the acts passed by the legislature, the Oregon code will be practically worthless insofar as expediency is concerned, according to the local lawyers. Before the code can be used at all it will be necessary to insert annotations in almost every page, as about every section has been affected to some extent by either new laws passed or old laws amended. The session laws for 1913 have not as yet been received by local lawyers. A Portland firm is sending out stickers on which is printed the annotations necessary and it will require four or five days for one person to place the code in shape to be understood. A heavy sermon makes a light correction plate.
