

MISS WARRINGTON

Diggs leaned forward in his chair at this point in Miss Warrington's testimony. Attorney Roche patiently made it as easy as possible for the girl to relate the intimacy charge. Asked if Diggs had a pet name for her, Miss Warrington stated that he had often addressed her as "Pickles."

The famous "pickles" letter was then identified by the witness.

Asked if she knew Miss Laura Borton of Sacramento, the girl named in the subornation and perjury charge against Diggs and his attorney, Charles Harris of Sacramento, Miss Warrington admitted that the Borton girl had called on her after the return from Reno.

The prosecution then relinquished the witness and she was at once submitted to a grueling cross-examination, with Attorney Nate Coghlan, for the defense leading.

Introduced by Saloon Man.

"I met Mr. Diggs when I was waiting for a street car," stated Miss Warrington. "He was with Mr. Austin, formerly of Sacramento, a friend of mine. He was in the saloon business—I mean Mr. Austin."

"Were you introduced by Mr. Austin under your right name?" queried Attorney Coghlan.

"No. Mr. Austin told me then that Diggs was not living with his wife at that time."

The first questions by the defense indicated that Miss Warrington would be subjected to a merciless examination.

Stopped at Roadhouses.

"Didn't you ride frequently with Diggs in his automobile and stop at road houses?" demanded Coghlan.

"Yes, occasionally," she admitted, but Mr. Caminetti was usually around, and I knew he was a married man."

"You had met Mrs. Diggs at Santa Cruz before meeting her husband, had you not?"

"Yes."

"Didn't Mr. Austin tell you to leave Diggs alone; that he was a married man?"

"He told me he was not living with his wife."

All Four Stopped at Hotel.

"Did not the four of you go to the Grand hotel in February, 1913?"

"Yes."

"And you stayed there all night with Diggs?"

"Yes."

"We desire to show," said Attorney Coghlan when interrupted by an objection, "that previous relations existed between Miss Warrington and the defendant Diggs."

Miss Warrington admitted that Caminetti and Miss Norris also remained at the hotel all night.

"I didn't see the register," she replied when asked if Diggs registered as "man and wife."

"The same room was occupied by me with Diggs alone," she testified.

"And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris occupy the other room?"

"Yes."

"And at San Jose February 2, did you four stop at the New Montgomery hotel?"

"Yes."

Another Escapade.

And then she admitted that she had again remained with Diggs all night alone and that Caminetti and Miss Norris had shared a room at the same hotel.

"Did you give a false reason to your absence on that occasion?" pressed

"Yes."

"And did you go to Stockton on a certain Sunday in January with Diggs in an automobile with Caminetti and Miss Norris?"

"Yes."

"Were you ever persuaded to go to Reno with Diggs to become his mistress?"

The court interrupted at this juncture.

"That is a matter of conclusion," stated Judge Van Fleet before Miss Warrington could answer. "The question cannot be permitted in just that form. Only specific acts and conversa-

HEAD OF FEEBLE-MINDED SCHOOL RESIGNS PLACE

Dr. Frank E. Smith, superintendent of the Home for the Feeble-Minded, tendered his resignation today. He reports the institution in fine shape with plenty of funds for conducting it, and the health of the inmates as good. His resignation comes as a surprise as he had given no intimation of it. He gives no reason for his resignation, but states that he will go east. His management of the institution was highly satisfactory, and the record he has made will be hard for his successor, whoever he may be, to improve upon. The doctor has many friends here who will regret his leaving Salem, and who will be glad to see him back again, for of course he will return. They all do.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS.

Salem People Have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills, for Salem kidney sufferers, have made their local reputation. Proof lies in the testimony of Salem people.

C. W. Hill, wagonmaker, 1939 North Front St., Salem, Oregon, says: "I had more or less backache and my kidneys were disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills have always relieved me in a short time. I know of several other people who have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. You may continue publishing the testimonial I have before given."

"When your back is lame—remember the name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Hill had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50¢ all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

An Education Free to Every Reader

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL announces that it has completed all arrangements for performing the biggest work ever undertaken by a great newspaper on behalf of its readers. Beginning Monday, Sept. 15th, it will conduct a great correspondence school in the interest of its readers, under the direction of picked men from America's foremost universities. Every famous university and technical school in the United States will be represented on its faculty.

Tuition by Professors of America's Leading Universities

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL Correspondence School will teach practically every trade for which there is a demand and also supplement the school courses. It will teach you whatever you want to learn. Professions, trades and all the fundamental branches of study will be represented in the courses offered. Both cultural and practical subjects will be included. The lessons will be given by well known instructors in the leading universities.

The Capital Journal Will Pay the Cost

For a long time education has been within the reach of only those who could spare the time to go to the public schools. College learning has been possible only to people of means. But now anyone who has the cost of a daily newspaper can have the best instruction in America free of charge. Courses that cost several dollars a week in the private correspondence schools, will be given to the CAPITAL JOURNAL readers without expense.

The Capital Journal's Correspondence School

Lessons Every Day

Upon careful investigation we have found that the following courses have been and are now the most popular with the various Correspondence Schools. THE CAPITAL JOURNAL, therefore, will publish as its first courses.

Every Monday a lesson in	English and a lesson in	Engineering
Every Tuesday a lesson in	Politics and a lesson in	Shorthand
Every Wednesday a lesson in	Arithmetic and a lesson in	Salesmanship
Every Thursday a lesson in	French and a lesson in	Bookkeeping
Every Friday a lesson in	Business Law and a lesson in	Mechanical Drafting
Every Saturday a lesson in	Science Applied and a lesson in	Practical Building

These courses will be followed by more advanced studies. For instance, Arithmetic will be followed by Algebra, Business Arithmetic and Geometry; Engineering in general by specific courses, such as Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering; Bookkeeping by Auditing, French by German and other languages, and so on. Every general trade and profession will be covered.

Courses will run from ten to twenty lessons. Readers can begin at any time. At the end of each course examination questions based upon the lessons will be published. Readers may submit papers answering the questions and these papers will be returned to them carefully corrected in red ink. All who earn satisfactory marks will receive a

Diploma from The Capital Journal Correspondence School

These diplomas will state that you have passed the final examination in the course. Twenty cents will pay the cost of handling papers, engraving diplomas, postage, mailing, etc., and Students who take examinations will send in stamps to cover this when they send in their papers. These examinations are optional.
