THE BALL PLAYER.

He Faces Many Trying Ordeals In His Early Experience.

MAKING A BIG LEAGUE CLUB.

Tribulations of a Veteran Star Who Started In With a "Swelled Head" and Got Fired and Then Worked His Way Back Into Fast Company.

In the American Magazine Hugh S. Fullerton writes an article entitled "The Making of a Big Leaguer." It is a true story of the development of one of the greatest ball players in the United States as told by himself to Mr. Fullerton. This player, of course, began the game as a boy and passed through all the stages from amateur to minor league teams and then into the big league. In this early experience he became a great victim of the "swelled head," hit the first ball pitched when he went to bat after being told to wait for two strikes and finally lost his position on the big league team. After many vicissitudes he lost his "swelled head" and got into the big league again, where today, at thirty-four years of age, he is one of the great veterans of the game. Of his final entrance into the big league he says:

"In June I was purchased for a large sum by the club which then was the strongest in the country. I didn't say a word about money, although the club paid over $4,000 for me. The new manager sat down with me in the hotel the night I joined his team. "All I want," he said, "is for you to get out there and hustle and behave yourself. I've heard you're hard to handle, but I'll take a chance." "You won't have any trouble with me," I assured him. "All I want is a chance to show that I can play." "You'll get all the chance you want," he said quietly. "You're in the lineup tomorrow."

"Stage fright! Did you ever suffer it? I did that night. My nerves were jumping, and a thousand times I figured out plays—yes, and made them—in planning what I would do the next day.

"We were playing a game against a team which we figured we would have to beat out to win the championship. I pictured myself hitting home runs and making triple plays, and when I awoke in the morning I was nervous, a shaky, uncertain and scared ball player. In practice before the game everything hit my way I either fumbled or threw wild, as my nerves were ragged. The crowd seemed to be sorry for me when they weren't mocking. It was a relief when the game started.

"I was second at bat in the lineup, on a foreign field and with a hostile crowd roaring. The first man fled out. 'Wait him out. Take two,' said the manager as I picked up a bat. The first pitched ball hit the heart of the plate. I saw it all the way up and knew it would have been easy to hit it hard, yet I let it go. 'Strike one,' the umpire yelled, and the crowd howled. I was cool as a Boston east wind. The second ball came whizzing up straight over the plate with nothing on it, and I fished to hit it, yet let it go for the second strike.

"Then I settled to hit, expecting a curve ball. The curve went wide. A fast one went high and wide. I figured that the pitcher thought he had a sucker at bat and would curve one over. He came with a fast ball a foot high, and I swung at it and struck out. My heart nearly got spoked as it sank into my toes going back to the bench.

"That's the boy," said the manager. 'Wait him out. Make him pitch.' "I could have kissed him for those words. I went to short with my nerves steady and my system full of confidence. The first ball hit was a sizzler over second. I got the ball with one hand, and there wasn't a chance to throw the runner out if I stopped to straighten up, so I threw without looking and without waiting and plunged forward onto my face. The yell from the crowd told me the first baseman had caught it, and as I scraped the dust out of my eyes and trotted back to position I felt at home.

"I wasn't excited nor elated, but the confidence that had carried me through the minor leagues came back with a rush and all fear was gone. I was a big leaguer—and knew it. The next time at bat I crowded the plate, jockeyed with the pitcher and watched. He whizzed a curve inside the plate. I pretended to dodge and let the ball hit me. It hit hard and I squirmed, but as the manager bent over me I winked at him and letting him lift me. I limped down to first—and stole second on the first ball pitched, sliding clear around the base. On my third trip to the plate I cracked a clean hit over second base and, after being sacrificed to second, stole third because I figured no one would expect a recruit to do that.

"In the clubhouse that night the manager said, 'You'll do, kid, if you don't get swelled.' And I replied, 'I've gone through that.'"

One to Five Meals a Day. In England people are sometimes addicted to five meals a day—breakfast, lunch, tea, dinner and supper. The continental fashion is a snack for morning coffee, a midday meal and an evening meal. But when the great army of Xerxes was marching through Asia Minor, and city by city had to provide food for the day, the people thanked God that Xerxes and his army ate but once a day.

WOMAN IS SOUGHT

alleged, Mrs. Lane attempted to discuss the Diggs case with him.

Wife of Commissioner.

Theodore Koole, who assisted the government in the prosecution of Diggs this afternoon asserted that it was Mrs. Anthony Caminetti, wife of the commissioner-general of immigration, who was mentioned by Mrs. Lane in speaking to Juror Bliss. Heretofore it had been generally believed that it was Mrs. F. Drew Caminetti.

On the affidavit of Bliss, Federal Judge Van Fleet issued the citation upon Mrs. Lane, commanding her to appear in court to show cause why she should not be punished for contempt of court.

The purported incident upon which the summary action was based is set forth in the following affidavit by Bliss, presented to Judge Van Fleet today:

Tells of Attempt.

"About 12:35 p. m. on August 20, while at my office and acting as a juror in the Diggs case, I was called up by telephone by Mrs. C. D. Lane.

"Mrs. Lane came to my office within a few minutes. I had not seen her for some time and she said she was glad to see me.

"She said: 'You stand all right with the newspapers, don't you?' I replied: 'Yes, I think so, why?'

"She said: 'Well, in this case.'

"I said: 'Well, Mrs. Lane, I cannot talk about this case. We must not talk about that.' I understood her to say that Mrs. Caminetti is stopping with her. I told Mrs. Lane that I must refuse to discuss the case.

"She said: 'Well, I wanted to see you about a mine I am interested in.'

"No conversation concerning the action of any of the parties concerned, directly or indirectly, occurred between me and Mrs. C. D. Lane, except as here set forth.

Merely Indiscreet.

"I have known Mrs. Lane for many years, in fact, ever since I was a boy. Our relations have always been friendly. Nothing that she said to me during the course of the conversation in any way affected or influenced my judgment as a juror."

Bliss added that he believed Mrs. Lane had merely been "indiscreet in making what was probably a chance remark."
