

EUGENIC SHOW TO BE GREAT FAIR FEATURE

Little Tots of Salem Will Be Entered and Score of Ladies Will Aid in Details.

Under the auspices of the Salem Commercial club, a eugenic show, or contest rather, will be held in the auditorium of the promotion department of the club prior to the opening date of the state fair. The contest is being arranged by Secretary Bynon of the Commercial club at the request of C. M. Plummer, the man who has charge of the eugenic department at the state fair this year. Mr. Plummer has requested every commercial organization in the state to hold a contest before the fair opens and Salem will be among the first to respond to the suggestion.

Tots Have Whole Show.

The little tots of Salem are to have the whole show to themselves and not a single other attraction will be staged when they are given the stage. Every mother in the city is requested to bring along their jewels and enter them in the contest for the perfect baby honor. There will be everything necessary to making the babies comfortable and a score of efficient ladies will be on hand to see that the contest is carried out to the letter.

The patronesses of the show will be Mrs. A. N. Bush, Mrs. John McNary, Mrs. E. W. Durbin, Mrs. Tom Kay.

The judges will include Mrs. Dr. M. E. Pomeroy, Dr. W. Carlton Smith, Dr. O. B. Miles, Dr. H. J. Clements of Salem, and Dr. P. Keene of Silverton.

The exact date on which the contest is to be held will be announced later.

YE LIBERTY ENJOYS GREAT PATRONAGE

Friends of Manager Waters Appreciate Fine Program and Excellent New Theater.

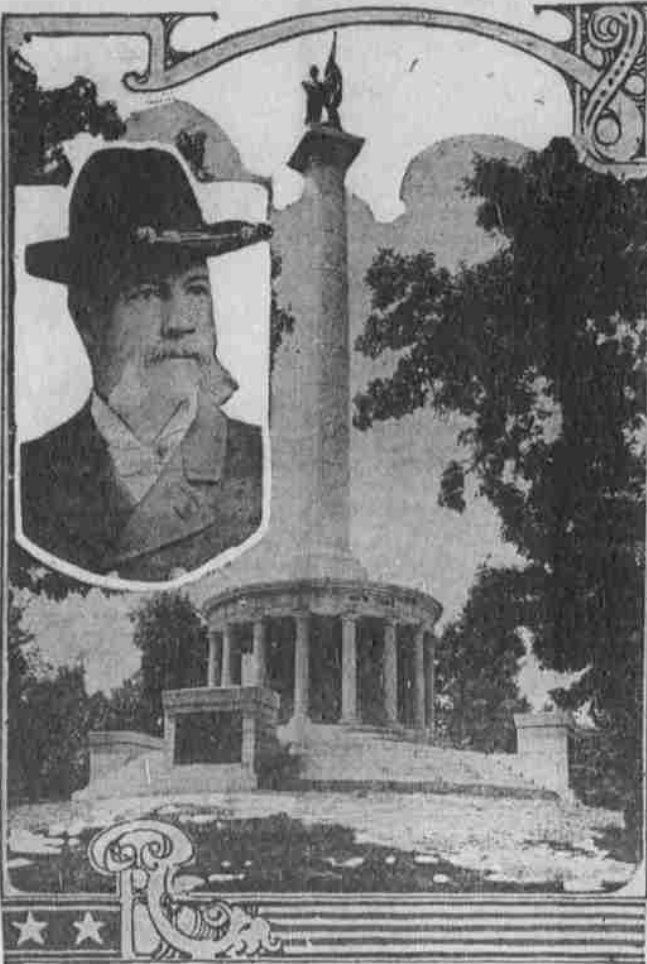

Loyal to the core for the man who shows enterprise and public spirit by giving the people something new and entertaining, F. L. Waters, the manager of the Salem Amusement and Holding company, is the genial host of a thousand or more enthusiastic theatergoers nightly since he opened his natty little show house, called the Ye Liberty, on Liberty street. The Ye Liberty has been changed from what was a comparatively "little house" to one of the finest movies on the coast and the workmen had hardly packed their tools and left the building when people were invited to come, look and listen. They did all three things and went away happy and with a satisfaction down deep in their amusement-loving souls that will awaken every time Mr. Waters' big electric sign in front of his place of business begins flashing.

With the same old smile and the same old greeting which has made him friends in unlimited numbers in Salem, Mr. Waters conducted the big opening with dispatch and correctness. Not one patron was overlooked.

In all, the opening was a monster success. It was a credit to the city of Salem, inasmuch as local people showed marked appreciation of the fact that the theater man had been doing some big things for them in the way of entertainment and general comfort. The rejuvenated show house is a credit to Salem also. Nothing finer could be devised that would tend to afford good, clean amusement for the public and it goes without saying that the big, cool and comfortable theater will be liberally patronized.

Veterans Ready For Annual Encampment of the G. A. R.

NORTHERN veterans of the civil war watched with interest for the forty-seventh annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Chattanooga, beginning Sept. 15. General Alfred B. Beers, commander in chief of the G. A. R., who arranged the details, is a member of the bar of Fairfield county, Conn., and was judge of a court at Bridgeport practically sixteen years. He has been a member of the Soldiers' hospital board of Connecticut about twenty-two years. He enlisted as a private in Company I, Sixth Connecticut volunteer infantry, Aug. 25, 1861; was in the Sherman expedition to South Carolina in 1861 and at the capture of Fort Royal, S. C.; was also at the siege of Fort Sumter and Charleston in 1863. In 1864 he was in the Virginia campaign, closing his service with Sherman in North Carolina in 1865. General Beers was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at Los Angeles last year. New York's handsome monument on the crest of Lookout mountain, in Point park, Chattanooga, Tenn., is also shown.

CAMINETTI CASE

"Did Caminetti ever say to you that his only regret in leaving Sacramento was because of his elder child?" Atkinson asked Miss Norris.

"Yes," was the alleged answer. "He expressed great devotion for the child and said he would send for her as soon as the divorce proceedings were under way."

Attorney Woodworth for the defense asked Doane whether Miss Norris was asked whether she had been intimate with Caminetti before leaving Sacramento, but Doane's notes did not contain any reference to this angle.

Doane was then excused. The court then granted a temporary recess.

Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris left Sacramento for the same purpose that drew Caminetti and Maury Diggs did—to avoid the scandal that their relations there had caused.

This was the opening statement of attorney Marshall B. Woodworth for the defense to the jury just before noon in outlining what the defense intended to prove.

"We will show," he continued, "that these girls were just as anxious to avoid the disgrace as either the defendant here of Diggs. We will show that no coercion was attempted; that Caminetti did not buy the tickets, and that he had been warned that he was to be dismissed from his position in Sacramento because of his conduct with Miss Norris."

Woodworth's statements were voiced following a temporary recess. He attempted to read the Mann white slave act to the jury and also to read the text of the indictments against Caminetti, but Judge Van Fleet interfered.

Newspaperman Testifies.

The defense announced a change in plans immediately after the temporary recess. Instead of calling Caminetti to the stand as had been originally intended, two witnesses from Sacramento were called.

G. A. Putnam, an employe of a Sacramento paper, testified that he met Miss Warrington on the Saturday preceding the elopement by appointment and told her that Mrs. Diggs intended to make trouble because of her conduct with Liggs. He said he told her that she need have no fear that his paper was going to air the scandal, explaining that it did not print that sort of news.

Will Testify Today.

In a final effort to clear himself of the charge of white slavery, Caminetti will take the witness stand in his own behalf late this afternoon. It is probable that Lola Norris will be called to testify regarding Caminetti's promises to marry her and the effect of these promises in inducing her to make the flight to Reno.

But it is on Caminetti's own story that the final hope of the defense rests.
