

CAMINETTI VIGOROUSLY ASSAILED BY ROCHE

Says Diggs and Accused Are Bad Sort
And Should Be Put Where They Will Do No Harm.

LURED NORRIS GIRL TO
RENO TO ACCOMPLISH RUIN

Knew He Could Not Debauch Her
While She Was in Midst of
Her Family and Friends.

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.]

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—"This man knew he had gained the affections of Lola Norris while they were in Sacramento. But he also knew he could never accomplish his purpose with a pure girl while she was in the midst of her family and friends. That, gentlemen, is why he took her to Reno."

This, in a nutshell, was the gist of a denunciation of F. Drew Caminetti by Special Government Prosecutor Theodore Roche when closed the state's argument here yesterday afternoon in the white slave case which for weeks has held California's interest and the interest of the country at large.

"Both Diggs and Caminetti," Roche went on, "knew that in their escapade they were dealing with women of no experience. It is men of this sort who debauch young girls. They are excrecences on the face of society, and should be put where they will do no more harm."

On the conclusion of Roche's address Anthony Caminetti, Jr., son of the United States commissioner-general of immigration at Washington, and brother of the accused, opened for the defense as associate counsel.

Commandments for the Summer Visitor

By DOROTHY DIX.

1—Invite not thyself to the house of another, oh, my daughter, for it so be thy friend hungereth and thirsteth for thy society she will arise and send to thee a writing bidding thee to come straightway to her abode. Yea, she will send for thee swifter by means of the telegraph and the night letter, and if so be she holdeth her hand, take that for a sign which never falleth that she wanteth thee not.

2—Accept not an invitation from a man to tarry and stay at his house until it hath been O. K.'s by his wife, for verily I say unto thee that no man hath authority within his own home, no, not so much as to give a home to a stray dog. It is the wife and the wife's people, and the wife's friends who have dominion over the spare bedroom.

3—When thou visitest cast not the goo-goo eyes at thy hostess's son, nor upon her male relatives, nor upon her husband, for it is written that she that snareth the fancy of the men of the household shall be invited there no more.

4—Forget not to take in thy trunk thy curling iron, and thy sewing tools, and thy postage stamps, and thy script for letters, and all the things of which thou hast daily need, for a borrower is an abomination and worse than the pestilence that destroyeth by night.

5—Incline thy heart unto the amusements that hath been prepared for thee, and make thy countenance mirthful, though thy soul fainteth within thee when thy hostess saith, "Rejoice and be glad, for today we go forth to picnic in the woods, and to partake of squashed lemon pie flavored with ants." Likewise, dissemble thy sorrow when she trotheth thee to the church sociable, or naileth thee to the card table until thy stomach turneth in despair and thy gorge riseth in rebellion.

6—When thou visitest cast voracity to the winds, for verily truth hath no place in a popular house guest. Say of thy hostess's house, "Truly, this is a palace, fit for a king. Tell me, I pray thee, what marvelous architect planned it?" Beat upon thy breast and call heaven to witness that there was never such a view, though it be but as the view of a fly that is caught under a tencup. Praise the beauty and the wit and the way the offering of thy hostess reciteth, and when thou departest thy hostess shall say of thee, "Surely, here is a woman of discernment, and I will bid her return again."

7—Conform thy ways to the ways of the house that thy visiteth. Arise while it is yet night, if it be the custom of thy hosts, so that thou shalt breakfast with them, and give no trouble to the servants, for, behold, a hand maiden in the suburbs is as precious as gold, yea, as fine gold, and as difficult to keep.

8—If thou followeth a diet and eateth of strange foods prepared after an ungodly manner, visit not at all, but bid thee to an inn where thou canst pay for the trouble thou givest. Thus shalt thou save thyself from being hated by thy friends.

9—Forget not to tip the hand maiden who waiteth upon thee, for the button-her-up-in-the-back is worthy of her hire.

10—And if thou forgettest all of the other commandments of the summer visitor, remember this, oh, my daughter: Make thy visit short. Tarry not long in thy friend's house lest she be weary of thee. Go while yet she entretheth thee to stay with her, for it is better that thy hostess should weep because thou goest than to shed tears because thou stayest.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN SHOOTS DEPUTY SHERIFF

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.]

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 5.—Former Congressman Edgar Wilson, after being placed under arrest here today, on charge of inebriety, whipped out a revolver and shot Deputy Sheriff Champlin. It is believed that Wilson intended to take his own life.

The bullet took off two of Champlin's fingers and then struck him in the head, plunging a furrow along his scalp. His hand deflected the bullet just enough to prevent a mortal wound.

The shooting occurred in the sheriff's office, after Wilson had been taken there from his home by Champlin and another deputy. He went peacefully to the sheriff's office, but while being searched there, suddenly drew a revolver. In the struggle that followed the weapon was discharged.

Wilson represented Idaho at Washington from 1886 to 1898. He was assistant counsel for the defense in the trials of Haywood, Meyer and Pettibone here in 1907 after the assassination of ex-Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho.

Roosevelt is gathering lots of "material."

An Education Free to Every Reader

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL announces that it has completed all arrangements for performing the biggest work ever undertaken by a great newspaper on behalf of its readers. Beginning Monday, Sept. 15th, it will conduct a great correspondence school in the interest of its readers, under the direction of picked men from America's foremost universities. Every famous university and technical school in the United States will be represented on its faculty.

Tuition by Professors of America's Leading Universities

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL Correspondence School will teach practically every trade for which there is a demand and also supplement the school courses. It will teach you whatever you want to learn. Professions, trades and all the fundamental branches of study will be represented in the courses offered. Both cultural and practical subjects will be included. The lessons will be given by well known instructors in the leading universities.

The Capital Journal Will Pay the Cost

For a long time education has been within the reach of only those who could spare the time to go to the public schools. College learning has been possible only to people of means. But now anyone who has the cost of a daily newspaper can have the best instruction in America free of charge. Courses that cost several dollars a week in the private correspondence schools, will be given to the CAPITAL JOURNAL readers without expense.

The Capital Journal's Correspondence School

Lessons Every Day

Upon careful investigation we have found that the following courses have been and are now the most popular with the various Correspondence Schools. THE CAPITAL JOURNAL, therefore, will publish as its first courses.

Every Monday a lesson in	English and a lesson in	Engineering
Every Tuesday a lesson in	Politics and a lesson in	Shorthand
Every Wednesday a lesson in	Arithmetic and a lesson in	Salesmanship
Every Thursday a lesson in	French and a lesson in	Bookkeeping
Every Friday a lesson in	Business Law and a lesson in	Mechanical Drafting
Every Saturday a lesson in	Science Applied and a lesson in	Practical Building

These courses will be followed by more advanced studies. For instance, Arithmetic will be followed by Algebra, Business Arithmetic and Geometry; Engineering in general by specific courses, such as Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering; Bookkeeping by Auditing, French by German and other languages, and so on. Every general trade and profession will be covered.

Courses will run from ten to twenty lessons. Readers can begin at any time. At the end of each course examination questions based upon the lessons will be published. Readers may submit papers answering the questions and these papers will be returned to them carefully corrected in red ink. All who earn satisfactory marks will receive a

Diploma from The Capital Journal Correspondence School

These diplomas will state that you have passed the final examination in the course. Twenty cents will pay the cost of handling papers, engraving diplomas, postage, mailing, etc., and Students who take examinations will send in stamps to cover this when they send in their papers. These examinations are optional.
