TRACES OF POISONING IN STOMACH

Mrs. Eaton Also Avoided Fixing Hour of Death, Physician Declares.

NOT DRUG USER AND NOT INSANE, HE SAYS

Wife of Admiral Insisted He Should Be Sent to Insane Asylum.

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.] Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 18.—Denial of allegations that Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was insane when he died, or that he was an habitual drug-user was voiced from the witness stand here today by Dr. Joseph Frame, of Rockland, at the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, charged with the admiral's murder.

The witness testified that he frequently discussed poisons with Mrs. Eaton, and that she voiced fear of the admiral giving her poison. Once, in the admiral's presence, Dr. Frame testified, Mrs. Eaton told him the admiral was addicted to the drug habit. Admiral Eaton, he said, denied the charge.

Dr. Frame declared that he never considered Admiral Eaton insane and did not believe that he was an habitual user of drugs.

Tells of Last Illness. "On March 7," said Dr. Frame, "I was summoned to the Eaton home. Eaton was very sick, vomiting all night. He complained of pains in the stomach and I diagnosed his case as indigestion. At 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning Mrs. Eaton informed me that the admiral had died."

"At first Mrs. Eaton avoided setting the time of death. Then she said it occurred at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Eaton said she and her daughter found the admiral on the floor and lifted him to his bed. She also claimed he vomited all the medicines after 1 left."

Dr. Frame removed Admiral Eaton's stomach, intestines and brains, shortly after his death, and found traces, he said, of poisoning.

Both Spanos and Seymour were taken over the ground at the time of the first confession, and their story at that time did not implicate Frekas, and was fully borne out and corroborated by the circumstances.

SHOTS DOWN MAN SHE INSISTS JILTED HER AND REFUSES ADDRESS

J. D. Van Baalen, an Advertising Man, Dying From Bullet Wound.

HE IS SAID TO BE MARRIED

Admits Promptly She Shot Him, and Says She Repeatedly Asked Him to Make Good Promise.

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.] San Francisco, Oct. 18.—J. D. Van Baalen, an advertising man, was shot and fatally wounded today by a woman who gave her name as Miss Leah Alexander.

The shooting occurred in Van Baalen's office in the Chronicle building. It was witnessed by James Sanders, Carl M. Anderson and G. Bibbard, who called Traffic Policeman Levy from the street outside.

Levy found Van Baalen lying in his office doorway and asked him who shot him. "That woman in there," groaned Van Baalen. Levy entered and asked the woman if she had fired the shots. She admitted it promptly.

Van Baalen was taken to the emergency hospital, dying, and the woman to police headquarters. She told Chief of Police White that Van Baalen took her to Cuba six months ago, promising to marry her, but afterward threw her off. She said she had called on him repeatedly and asked him to marry her and finally, losing her temper, drew a revolver and shot him.

One bullet missed, two struck Van Baalen in the abdomen and one hit him under the arm.

Van Baalen was said to be married. The woman would reveal nothing concerning herself and refused her address. She is 33 years old and quite handsome.

THREE CASES OF ALLEGED GAME LAW VIOLATORS FAIL

A. Kemp, O. A. Baker and S. Simmons, recently tried for the offense of hunting upon the capital game preserve and who were found guilty of "having China pheasants in their possession on the capital game preserve," were dismissed today. Directly after the verdict was rendered last week, McInturf & McInturf, attorneys for the defendants, entered a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that the same did not support the facts and that the verdict was against the laws of the state of Oregon.

The motion was tried today and after the arguments were made by counsel, the justice sustained the motion and the men were released from further liability.

The matter of the sentencing of Frank Shedeck was taken up and he was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs.

WILLIAM TWEEDIE IS GIVEN MAXIMUM FOR RUNNING BAWDY HOUSE

Judge Kelly Only Regrets He Cannot Send Hotel Man to Penitentiary.

GETS 250 DAYS IN JAIL

Maximum Fine of $500 Is Imposed and He Will Serve It Out at Rate of $2 Per Day.

"I sentence you to pay a fine of $500 and in default thereof to serve 250 days in the county jail," said Circuit Judge Percy B. Kelly this morning to William Tweedie, who was convicted on the charge of conducting a bawdy house in this city.

Never in the history of department No. 1, of the Marion circuit court, has there ever been such a scathing lecture delivered by a presiding judge as the one given Tweedie by Judge Kelly. The court, after hearing a brief statement from the defendant, said, in part:

"My only grievance in passing sentence upon you, Mr. Tweedie, is that the law will not permit me to send you to the penitentiary. Even if the law gave me this alternative, I would feel that I would be doing an injustice to the taxpayers in compelling the prison authorities to keep such a man as you. You have no self-respect, nor do you deserve to be the husband of the woman sitting beside you in this court. I abhor the crimes of the nature of which you have been convicted, and I will now pronounce the maximum sentence on you—to pay a fine of $500, and in default thereof to serve 250 days in the county jail."

Tweedie's Plea. Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Kelly asked Tweedie if he had anything to say. Tweedie arose and told the judge that his wife had been in ill-health for some time, and that he has been performing all kinds of labor in order to meet the bills coming in. His talk was brief, and he finished by saying that he should be given a chance to make good. While he did not admit he was guilty of the charge of which he was convicted, Tweedie did not deny it to Judge Kelly.

Tweedie was confined in the county jail several days after his arrest because he failed to furnish the $250 bonds under which he was placed by the court. When escorted to the bastille again this morning, after failing to pay the $500 fine assessed by Judge Kelly, the prisoners cheered him, and one said:

"Hurrah for Tweedie; we know he would come back again."

BUILDING WHICH IS TO COST $10,000 IS INCLUDED IN PERMITS

R. R. Ryan Secures Authority to Construct Two-Story Structure.

OTHER BUILDING WORK

Number of Permits for Residences Issued and Work on Others Is Being Pushed Rapidly.

Permits for buildings that will cost $13,300 were taken out this week in City Recorder Elgin's office, an increase over the total valuation of proposed structures for which permits were taken out last week of $5300.

The following persons took out permits this week:

R. R. Ryan, 1 1/2-story building on North Cottage street, valuation $600.

R. B. Ryan, two-story brick building on South Commercial street, valuation $10,000.

J. H. VanLaanen, 1 1/2-story building on Hickory street, valuation $600.

George H. Patterson, a one-story building on South Seventeenth street, valuation $600.

E. C. Ferguson, 1 1/2-story building on Mission street, valuation $1500.

Work Being Finished. The work of erecting new homes in the city is about completed, and preparations are being made by the property holders to move into the many new bungalows and other classy little houses.

While there are a good many furnished rooms for rent in the city at the present time, to rent an entire house is practically impossible in or near the business district of Salem. The houses are practically all taken.

There are home-seekers arriving in the city every day, and the real estate men report business to be far better than they had expected it would be at this time of the year.

Industries Busy.

There is not an industry in Salem at the present time but is running full blast. The lumber firms are doing a rushing business, the iron foundry is busy and about every line of business seems to be flourishing. There will be but a day or so of prune picking yet, but the dryers will be busy for the greater part of next week getting the fruit out of the way and into the storage houses.

Over a million pounds of prunes are now housed at the Salem Fruit Union's plant, on the corner of Trade and High streets, and a large crew of women is busy at the present time packing the prunes in boxes. This is the largest crop ever handled by the Union and, while the prunes are not as large as they were last year, their general quality and quantity overreaches that of last year by a big margin.

There is a big demand for Oregon fruits this year, and not only the Fruit Union, but others, are reaping the benefit of the good name given the product in the markets.

Many New Visitors.

According to the reports being handed in by the railroad agents and others who have occasion to note the number of visitors that are coming and going in the state, Salem is being made the Mecca for many eastern strangers this fall. Over 20 new people arrived in the city this week, and more than half of them are still here, and intend to look about with the intention of locating permanently.

C. B. Ellis, of Oklahoma, arrived yesterday, and is looking about in search of a proper house in which to locate himself and family. Mr. Ellis is a prominent business man in Oklahoma, and he desires very much to make his home in the Willamette valley, Salem especially favored.

The climatic conditions, the people, the business possibilities and the location of Salem seem to be striking the easterner favorably, and many of those who visited here, and went away this week, announced their intention of returning before long, and making their future home here. This fact speaks well for the Capital City and the people in it.

Forest Fires Causing Damage

Valuable Second Growth Timber Is Being Destroyed and Many Smaller Resorts Endangered.

Many smaller resorts in the mountains are endangered, and all Southern Pacific trains running between this city and Santa Cruz are delayed.

PANKHURST DECIDES TO EAT STEAK

Suffragette Leader Ordered Deported and Threatens Hunger Strike.

CHANGES MIND WHEN RELEASE PROMISED

Will Be Permitted to Remain in Country Until Her Appeal Is Decided.

[UNITED PRESS LEARNED WIRE.] New York, Oct. 18.—Immigration officials at Ellis Island were thrown into a panic this afternoon by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, announcing her intention to go on a hunger strike after she had been ordered deported as an undesirable. Then Mrs. Pankhurst changed her mind and the officials breathed easier.

Responding to a telephone message to Washington, immigration officials told Attorney Reeves, representing Mrs. Pankhurst, that the suffragette leader would be released tomorrow on bonds. Mrs. Pankhurst smiled when she received the news and said she would like something to eat. Then she disposed of a slice of roast beef and "trimmings," mings."

Denounces Inquiry Board. After the inquiry board had finished interrogating Mrs. Pankhurst, she turned on its members.

"If what I have done in my fight for English women is called moral turpitude," she shouted, "then your revolutionary warriors and the men spilling the tea in Boston harbor were guilty of the same crime." Then she launched into a denunciation of the methods employed by the board.

"All right," she screamed, "if you can stand it, I can. But I warn you here and now that I shall not eat a morsel until I am detained here."

She Changes Her Mind. Ten minutes later Mrs. Pankhurst changed her mind, greatly to the relief of the board members.

The board of inquiry consisted of L. C. Stewart, A. F. Shell and S. A. Epler. The proceedings were secret. Mrs. Pankhurst was not represented by an attorney.

Mrs. Pankhurst arrived today on the La Provence.

Cites Case of Actress. Attorney Reeves, in asking that she be released on bonds, cited the case of Marie Lloyd, the actress, as a precedent. Miss Lloyd was released on bail so she might fill theatrical engagements.

Mrs. Pankhurst is confined in the same room that was occupied by Cipriano Castro, for president of Venezuela, who was ordered deported as an undesirable, but who appealed to the federal courts, where he won his case.
