Charles W. Clark, this season an immense success.

The Salem Indian Training School is fortunate in possessing an excellent orchestra. Mr. Rhythy Turney, who is well known throughout the coast states, has been leader of this orchestra for some time, and to his instruction credit is given for the fine work of its members. The orchestra furnishes music for the general assembly exercises on Sunday nights and also at the students' receptions on alternating Friday nights. The music is a delight to officers, students and employes. Five members compose the orchestra: Mr. Rhythy Turney, leader; Mr. William Ready, violin; Miss Gertrude Brewer, pianist; Mr. James Swoboda and Mr. Albert H. Gillett, cornets.

Madam Frances Alda, whose splendid soprano voice will be heard in Salem next Friday night.

At the close of the Salem Woman's Club breakfast last Saturday, Miss Matie P. Beatty in a stirring talk urged the club members and their guests to cooperate with Miss Magers in making the presentation of Frances Alda, Schumann-Heinek, Yvonne Treville and

There are rumors of brilliant society events to be given this winter in the beautiful Masonic temple. No place in Salem is so well arranged for social functions as the suite of rooms in this new building. The reception rooms are luxurious, the banquet hall with its waxed hardwood floor is ideal for dancing, the elevator service is excellent, and the perfectly equipped culinary department makes entertaining a pleasure.

One of the most beautiful home weddings solemnized in this city was celebrated at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moreland, on North Summer street, at eight thirty o'clock, October the fifteenth, when their daughter, Luene, became the bride of Chester A. Moores, of Portland, in the presence of over one hundred invited guests.

The rooms were elaborately decorated in palms, trailing clematis, heavily laden with white blossoms, immense white chrysanthemums, white carnations and ferns.

An orchestra of four pieces, concealed by large palms, discoursed sweet music during the evening, and played softly Lehengrin's bridal chorus during the ceremony, and immediately after Greig's "I Love Thee," Bond's "I Love You Truly" and "In Cupid's Garden." Miss Marjorie Marvin sang "Because."

Doctor R. N. Avison read the lines of the ring service before an altar arranged at one end of the drawing room, and fashioned of tall, spreading palms and great stalks of huge white chrysanthemums. Baskets of white roses adorned the wall and twinkling lights from candelabra and many other candles, made the setting most beautiful.

In the bridal procession were Mr. Merrill B. Moores, the groom's brother and attendant, Mr. Chester A. Moores, Miss Althea Moores, cousin of the groom, and the bridesmaid, and last the lovely bride entering with her father, who gave her into the groom's keeping. She was charming in a robe of white charmeuse with elaborations of chantilly lace, and enveloping veil of tulle arranged in cape effect and ornamented with orange blossoms. The flowers were bride roses in an arm-bouquet, and her only ornament, a cameo pendant set in pearls, the groom's gift.

Miss Althea Moores, as bride's maid, wore a handsome gown of yellow crepe meteor with shadow lace and silver lace garnitures. She carried an old fashioned nose-gay of immense size, confined in a lace paper holder. The flowers were heliotrope, mignonne, violets, sweet clycium and tiny pink and yellow rose buds. A reception followed the ceremony and congratulations. The dining room was particularly attractive in a motif of white and green developed with ferns, carnations and chrysanthemums. The table was centered with a tall French basket filled with big fluffy chrysanthemums, and lighted with white candles in silver sticks. Streamers of white tulle floated from the electrolier to the table's corners where they ended in lover's knots.

Mrs. George H. Burnett poured and Mrs. John H. McNary cut the ices. Assisting were A. N. Moores, Mrs. Charles Weller and Mrs. Gaylord Patterson.

Miss Elizabeth Lord caught the bride's bouquet, Miss Aline Thompson found the ring in the cake, Miss Marjorie Marvin, the thimble and little Mary Gill, the bride's niece, discovered the wish bone.

Mr. and Mrs. Moores stole away from the wedding guests and started on their honeymoon trip—when and where—known only to each other. The going away gown was of brown cloth, with modish vest of brocade, orange and brown. Worn with this was a stunning little brown plush hat.

Upon their return to Portland the young people will remain for two or three weeks at the home of Mr. C. B. Moores, and after that will be located in their own apartments.

Mrs. Moores, who has always resided in Salem, enjoys a wide circle of friends. After the announcement of her betrothal, she was complimented with many pre-nuptial affairs including a shower of gifts. Her wedding presents were very numerous and beautiful. Among them was an especially fine array of silver and exquisite china.

The young people are starting their new life propitiously and have the warmest wishes of their friends for happiness and prosperity.

Miss Althea Moores presided over a dainty luncheon Monday in honor of Miss Luene Moreland, a bride of the week.

A quaint, formal bouquet of pink geraniums and blue adgerattums marked the table's center and little old fashioned nose-gays in lace paper holders were favors for the guests. Over all, was the soft light from pink shaded globes and candles.

A few close friends of the bride-elect were luncheon guests, Mrs. John H. McNary, Mrs. Elmer Ludden, Miss Ellen Thielsen, Miss Elizabeth Lord, Miss Sophia Catlin and Miss Marjorie Marvin.

Later additional guests came in for bridge, and the game was played at four tables. Miss Aline Thompson was awarded card honors.

Cards have been received by friends in this city, for the marriage of Miss Constance Emma Guerrier, of Centralia, Washington, to Mr. Robin Homer Nelson, of Albany. The wedding to take place Saturday evening, October twenty fifth, at St. John's Episcopal church in Centralia.

Mr. Nelson is well known in Salem, and his sister, Miss Frances Nelson, of Albany, has been the house guest of Mrs. Robert Chauncey Bishop and Miss Aline Thompson.

Miss Bertha Sroat, of Pasadena, California, who has been the house guest of Mrs. E. E. Waters and Mrs. William C. Knighton for several weeks, was made honor guest at a Kensington party Wednesday afternoon, given by her hostesses at Mrs. Knighton's home. Twenty of Miss Sroat's friends were bidden and brought dainty fancy work.

Gorgeous autumn leaves, painted by the frost, and great bunches of pink and white carnations, were the lovely decorations.

Yesterday afternoon guests were invited by Mrs. W. H. Eldridge to meet Miss Ellen Chamberlain, Miss Bertha Moores and Miss Carrie Moores. The invitations were limited to old time friends of the honor guests, and the happy hours were filled with reminiscence most delightful while busy fingers drew the needles in pretty fancy work.

From greetings to refreshments, every thing was charmingly informal.

In compliment to Mrs. G. W. Terry, of Portland, Miss Aline Thompson telephoned a few friends for an afternoon of bridge, last week Friday. Playing at the tables, besides the honor guest and hostess, were: Mrs. W. Melvin Plimpton, Mrs. Thomas A. Livesley, Mrs. Asahel Bush, Jr., Mrs. Frederic D. Thielsen and Mrs. Robert Chauncey Bishop.

Mrs. Bush received the card favor and Mrs. Terry the honor guest's dainty souvenir.

Mrs. O. C. Loek made Mrs. Robert M. Townsend, of Portland, honor guest Wednesday afternoon at informal bridge. The room was gay with dahlias in shades of red.

Mrs. H. H. Olinger captured the card favor. Mrs. Edwin L. Baker assisted with serving.

Red dahlias made handsome decorations for her home Thursday, when Mrs. Edwin L. Baker entertained in honor of Mrs. Robert M. Townsend, of Portland, who is a visitor in Salem. Bridge was played at three tables.

The prize favor complimented Mrs. Ralph Watson, and Mrs. Reuben Boise, Jr. received consolation.

Mrs. H. H. Olinger and Mrs. O. C. Loek assisted the hostess.

Playing at the tables besides the honor guests were Mrs. E. Cooke Patton, Mrs. Frank Meredith, Mrs. L. F. Griffith, Mrs. Ralph Watson, Mrs. F. A. Wilson, Mrs. H. H. Olinger, Mrs. Reuben Boise, Jr., Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Armand Steiner, Mrs. O. C. Loek and Mrs. C. L. Dick.

Mrs. M. Ruth Ketchum, daughter of Reverend H. A. Ketchum, of this city, and Mr. Otto Wilson were quietly married last week Friday in Portland.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will return to Salem for residence.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have many friends in this city, and are particularly popular in the Presbyterian church of which they are members.

Mrs. Wilson is a sister of Mrs. Henry T. Baetock, and has held the position of cotralto soloist in her church choir.

Mr. Wilson, a substantial business man, is owner and manager of one of the largest garages in Salem. The news of this marriage came a great surprise to all, excepting relatives and a few close friends.

Mrs. Fletcher Homan gave an attractive social affair Friday, October tenth, in honor of Mrs. E. H. Todd, on the eve of her departure for Tacoma.

In decorating, the hostess chose brightly colored autumn leaves, and the reds and yellows in dahlias and marigolds, for the hall, drawing room and living rooms.

Guests were met at the entrance hall by two little maidens in dainty frocks, Rosalind Van Winkle and Katherine Homan. Presiding over the tea-cups, in the dining room, adorned with pink roses and ferns, were: Mrs. W. H.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of First Methodist church, held a rally meeting and enjoyed a delightful afternoon in the church parlors Thursday.

Scarlet dahlias and a profusion of Virginia creeper in its autumn tints, were attractive decorations.

Mrs. H. D. Kimball, who recently returned from a branch meeting in Seattle, gave a fine report of the work. Several new members were added to the society, and over fifty guests enjoyed the social afternoon.

Dainty refreshments were served, Mrs. W. F. Smith and Miss Emma Rogers presided. Assisting with serving were three young matrons, Mrs. Lloyd Hausser, Mrs. Floyd Utter and Mrs. Frederick Thompson.
