DRINK EVIL NOT FOR CHURCH WHICH SHOULD NOT FIGHT IT

Rev. Dr. Hobbs in a Timely Sermon in Westminster Church at Utica, New York, Makes an Address Which Constitutes a Reply to the Aspersions, Defamations and Fanatical Utterances of Certain Salem Preachers.

Rev. J. Howard Hobbs, D. D., dealt with the liquor problem in his sermon at Westminster Church, Utica. Dr. Hobbs prefaced his remarks by citing facts and figures showing the magnitude of the problem not alone in Maine, but throughout the nation, all tending to show that it was "more than some persons can sneer at and others ignore." Said Dr. Hobbs: "The church may wisely avoid any extreme or fanatical position in the matter. Some may think that a strange thing for a minister of the gospel to say, but I am ready to stand by it. I base that statement on Christ's position. He was charged with being a glutton and a wine-bibber. He ignored all such accusations. Individually and personally. He went right on to drink wine with His friends. He announced that wine should be a memorial of His presence for use everlastingly in the church. These things are very significant.

CHRIST WAS NO FANATIC.

"He was no fanatic, though he followed one in point of time. John the Baptist was an ascetic—caustic and specific in his denunciation of individual sins. But they gave him short shrift.

"Christ believed in the principle of self-control—what is translated as 'temperance.' If His spirit and example were in force today, there would be less of a problem in the liquor traffic. Thus the church is not to fight anything fanatical, but its work is with the individual, reclaiming him from in and placing the scepter of rule in his own hands that he may come out more than conqueror. The church should not waste time hacking at every separate branch of the tree of sin, but go right to the root of evil in the individual.

NOT ONLY EXISTENT EVIL.

"I eschew the position of some persons who think that this is the only evil in existence. The difficulty is that some men are out-balanced by a single idea. Christ shows that we must be so well balanced as to be free from fanaticism. How did He treat the woman whom they brought to Him as a specimen of the social evil of the time? In such a way as to cause her detractors to sink away ashamed.

CHURCH NOT A POLICE PATROL.

"The church was never intended to act as a police patrol either of the individual or the collection, but in such a way as to induce the fuller and more spiritual life. It can lay down no code of rules which may be enforced. The burden of fighting evil does not rest upon any portion of the organized church, but the spirit of the church should be at the command of the forces of righteousness. The church should never lend its aid to any partisanship in the matter. But in fighting this evil, it is noticeable that the forces of righteousness are not allied, while the other party is alive, allied and active. I have heard some so-called 'temperance orators' indulge in such vilification of character as belies their name and cause.

OBLIGATION OF THE CHURCH.

"What the church should emphasize in this matter is the obligation on the conscience of the individual to fight evil. We know that it is one of the greatest evils of the times and that some men are at the beck of this temptation constantly. But theirs is the responsibility and they are not to be rid of it by laying the blame on heredity or environment, or even by making that most insane excuse that a churchman is equally guilty. The responsibility is on the individual, whether in the church or out of it. The question is one of a personal thirst, no matter how obtained, whether by induction from the past, environment from the present, or what not. It is to be assumed that drinking persons make a drinking problem, and until you scorn that personal thirst, somehow or other, you can do nothing.

"The mission of the church is to emphasize the spiritual cure for this problem, to assert, proclaim and insist upon this ultimate remedy."

FORGERY IS THEIR CRIME AND FRAUD THEIR METHODS

"Any man who knows the saloons well can honestly say that most of them have forfeited their right to live. The model saloon exists chiefly in the minds of the editors of liquor journals, in the imagination of a certain type of ministers, and in the mythical stories sometimes rehearsed at saloon men's campfires. Unfortunately, the average tippling house is a place of ill-fame, a place of shame and debauchery. With comparatively few exceptions our saloons are houses of drunken men, profanity and obscenity of the vilest possible type."

The foregoing paragraphs have appeared twice in the advertising columns of the "dry" campaign committee here, and received the attention of Preacher Avison in one of his communications. Here is an exact copy from a letter dated in San Francisco on the 27th, instant, signed by

ALGERNON CROFTON

Owner of The Wholesalers' and Retailers' Review

"The extract from the Wholesaler's and Retailer's Review, to which you call my attention, is a deliberate forgery. No such statement was ever made by the Review.

"The Review has frequently notified the Anti-Saloon League that this alleged quotation was a fraud, and has asked the league to discontinue using it. To these requests they have paid no attention, and one is thus forced to the conclusion that the Anti-Saloon League is forging extracts from newspapers with a full knowledge of their falsity.

"The Review has even threatened to sue the Anti-Saloon League for libel on this account. There is, however, no chance to collect damages from the league, because it is always kept in debt, so as to make it easier to collect money from suckers."
