

CARSON SAYS HE IS REBEL BECAUSE LOYAL

Man Who Is Fighting Home Rule and Threatening to go to War to Head It Off Admits He's Paradox.

SPIRIT OF COMBATIVENESS PRESENT AT AN EARLY AGE

During Fenian Outrages He Went Up and Down Ireland and Fearlessly Prosecuted Men Arrested.

BL ED L. KEEN (London Correspondent of the United Press)

London, Dec. 2.—Right now it's too- up whether Sir Edward Carson will be embalmed in history as a patriot or a rebel, a high-minded statesman or a fire-eating demagogue. Present British estimates of a character of a dictator of the 'Ulster Provisional Government' depend largely on whether one is a Unionist of a Nationalist, a Protestant or a Catholic. For in England, and particularly in Ireland, personal judgments are far more apt to be biased by political and religious convictions than in America.

Carson himself admits he's a paradox. "I am a rebel because I'm a loyalist," he says. He proposes to fight the government in order to preserve the Empire the unity of which he believes would be destroyed by Home Rule. Those who know him find other contradictions in his makeup. Born a fighter, from a long line of fighting Celts, among whom was the famous fighting General Lambert, one of Cromwell's lieutenants, in his private life Carson is as soft and gentle as a woman. He has the cool, calculating brain of the diplomat and the fiery heart of the Irish chieftain. He is at once orator, poet, soldier and organizer. He is one of England's greatest lawyers and most persuasive stump-speakers. His eloquence is sort of an Elihu Root-William Jennings Bryan-Theodore Roosevelt combination. He is both gentleman and Democrat, and his modesty of demeanor in his every-day life is only surpassed by his tremendous magnetism on the platform.

The fighting career of the man who is just now causing the British government more anxiety than even the suffragettes, began in his early days at school in Dublin, where it was his favorite pastime to lick kids twice his size and weight. This spirit of combativeness never deserted him for a moment in his subsequent public life. Now gaunt and spare, he wouldn't impress the casual observer as a real brigand at heart. Yet he is never happy unless

This is Guaranteed to Stop Your Cough

Make this Family Supply of Cough Syrup at Home and Save $2.

This plan makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer an ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in gualic acid and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, though never successfully. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

he is in the midst of a scrap, political or otherwise.

He had a perfectly joyous time when he was crown prosecutor in Ireland during the Fenian outrages. While murder, pillage, and cattle-maiming were going on, he went up and down the country fearlessly prosecuting men arrested under the crimes act, regardless of the almost daily anonymous threats to 'do him' and whenever he could he would dodge the espionage of the armed detectives assigned by his superiors to guard him. "Don't you know Carson, that you are carrying your life in your hand," remarked a friend one day. "Yes," was the quick response, "and a loaded revolver in my pocket."

The fact that his courage is appreciated by his enemies was illustrated by an incident following the conviction and sentencing of a half dozen men whom he had prosecuted. An immense crowd had gathered outside the court. Shillalabs and stones were flying in the air, and there were open threats of vengeance. Carson stood at a window of the court, calmly watching the storm. His friends besought him to withdraw from the window of the court, and to sneak back to his hotel from the rear entrance. Carson consented to leave, but he went by the front door. "I'll go by the king's highway, or not at all," he told them. As he stepped out carrying only a light cane, it looked for a moment as though a rush would be made. On all sides there were howls of execration, to which Carson paid not the slightest attention. With a smile on his face he walked down the steps and went into the crowds. The cries ceased. The hitherto frenzied Irishmen fell back before him, and amid utter silence he passed through unmolested. "Perhaps it's just as well that I forgot to bring my revolver today," he said as he entered the hotel.

Politically, Carson has never been tamed, and he has often felt the sting of the party lash. On one occasion, differing openly on a matter of policy with one Unionist leader, Carson became a political outcast for months rather than surrender his convictions, although at the time he was about to be awarded a high office. His last big fight before he took up the Ulster cause was against the veto bill. Although many of his colleagues were in favor of compromise as a matter of expediency, Carson became a 'last ditcher,' believing that principles were at stake which far outweighed party advantages, and he remained there fighting until he was whipped.

The idea that Carson and his fellow Ulsterites are bluffing in their announced determination to resist home rule even to the extent of civil war has now been pretty generally abandoned. The facts connected with the organization of the 'Provisional Government' and of the arming and drilling of the Ulster Volunteer force have become too well known further to be ignored. Even the leaders of the Liberal party are giving Carson the credit of good faith. First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill the other day in throwing out the suggestion of a compromise, thus publicly proclaimed his belief: "I do not doubt, and no one I think doubts, that Sir Edward Carson is sincere in the course which he has made his own."

CRUISER IN BAD PLIGHT

Sebastopol, Russia, Dec. 2.—The cruiser Cratiatz was reported in a serious condition today, following its grounding on a reef, near Pestchanaia. The crew was landed safely, but two seamen were drowned, and three men are missing through the capsizing of a boat sent to the warship's assistance.

REFUSES TO REVIEW

Washington, Dec. 2.—The United States supreme court refused today to review the action of Indiana state court in enjoining former Governor Thomas B. Marshall and other state officials from submitting to the people a new legislation framed by the legislature of that state in 1911. The lower courts declared the plan to print the constitution on the ballots a wrong method of presentation.

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

My Cleansing, Healing Balm Clears Nose, Head and Throat—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges—Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm." Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight, struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucus dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

IMMORAL MONSTER DR. CRAIG IS CALLED

Attorney Eph Inman Says Defendant Slew Dr. Knabe and Ruined Many School Girls.

QUARREL FOLLOWED HIS BREAKING OF ENGAGEMENT

Prosecutor Says Craig Wronged Many Women Under Promise of Marriage and Broke His Promise.

Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 2.—Opening with a scathing denunciation of Dr. William H. Craig, well to do head of an Indianapolis veterinary college, as a monster of immorality, Attorney Eph Inman yesterday afternoon demanded Craig's life, as murderer of Dr. Helen Knabe, the handsome young woman physician found dead in her apartments in Indianapolis about two years ago, with her throat cut from ear to ear.

Inman, a prominent Indiana criminal lawyer engaged by Indianapolis women's clubs, with several of which Dr. Knabe was connected, to aid the prosecution in the Craig case, promised the jury to prove that the prisoner killed the woman during a quarrel, which followed his announcement that he did not mean to keep his pledge to marry her.

That Craig had wronged many women under promise of marriage which he subsequently repudiated was Inman's assertion.

"We know of one high school girl among his victims," declared the attorney, "who, when she asked him to take her as his wife, as he said he would receive the answer: 'I will pay in cash.'"

The same thing happened in the case of another girl with whom he offered to compromise. This girl turned up mysteriously in Florida just before this trial opened.

"Craig watched Dr. Knabe when she was unaware of it. He peered in at her windows nightly. Finally they quarreled and he killed her."

FOUR MORE QUACKS TO BE ARRESTED FOR CRIME

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—Four more arrests were promised soon today by Attorney Louis H. Ward, special prosecutor of quacks for the state board of pharmacy.

He would say no more than that they were San Franciscans nor would he reveal whether arrests were made in Oakland, though it was known, spreading out from here, the campaign is to become state wide.

A warrant was issued yesterday, charging Spencer L. Higgins, who is also waiting trial, accused of practicing medicine without a license, with obtaining money by false pretenses.

Donato Mosconi, who swore to the warrant, stated that Higgins, posing as a regular physician, charged him $100 for diagnosing an illness as a minor intestinal complaint and offered to cure it for $120, following which a genuine physician told him he was a hopeless cancer victim.

REQUEST FOR ZELAYA WITHDRAWN BY ENEMIES

Washington, Dec. 2.—Through its legal representatives here, the Nicaraguan government yesterday withdrew its request for the extradition of Ex-President Jose Santos Zelaya, who was detained in New York.

The Nicaraguan lawyers told Solicitor Joseph W. Folk, of the state department they would be satisfied if the United States deported the ex-president to his home in Barcelona, Spain. From the fact that the extradition application was withdrawn, it was surmised that some such promise was given.

The application, as filed, charged Zelaya with murdering two Nicaraguans during his term of office. It was believed, however, that what he really was wanted for was the killing of the two Americans, Grace and Cannon, executed in Nicaragua while he was dictator of that country.

The final guess today was that the Nicaraguan government suspected he was in New York, where he was arrested, to cook up a plot for another descent on the little republic, and wanted either to get him into its own hands or scare him out of the hemisphere.

When he heard the extradition papers were out for him, Zelaya had himself carried into a friend's New York apartment in a trunk. The police found and arrested him, however, held him for some time in a cell and then turned him over to the federal authorities, who locked him up in the Tombs, whence he was subsequently released by virtue of a habeas corpus writ.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW IS UPHOLD BY CALIFORNIAN

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—United States District Judge Van Fleet, with the concurrence of United States District Judge Dooling and Appellate Judge Morrow, upheld here today the constitutionality of the 8-hour law for women passed by the California legislature.

The decision was rendered in denying the petition for an injunction sought by the Merritt hospital trustees to restrain Labor Commissioner McLoughlin, his deputies and District Attorney Hines of Alameda county from enforcing the law on the ground that it was a violation of the federal constitution. The eight-hour law provides that student nurses shall not be worked more than eight hours daily.

QUALITY OF LANDS BETTER ADJOINING TRACTS

Portland, Ore., Dec. 2.—That the lands of Union county dealt in by Oregon Inland Development company after the contract with John Vesson for the sale of his school sections had been cancelled were much better in quality than the Vesson lands was indicated by testimony presented in the Conway-Richey case yesterday.

Frank Richey and J. T. Conway, president and manager, respectively, of the Oregon Inland Development company, are on trial in the federal court on a charge of fraudulent use of the mails. R. W. Allen, superintendent of the joint government-state agricultural experiment station at Hermiston testified yesterday that he had closely examined the lands owned by the company in Union county and in nearly every instance stated he found tillable sections.
