"Say," said an old-time rounder this morning, as he ambled up to the hydrant and absorbed a pint or more of water fresh from the beautiful Willamette, "ain't it just like Sunday? And then just think of it with every day being Sunday, not by and by, but right now!"

If the supreme court has prohibited County Clerk Gehlbach from issuing registration certificates, that official has been making up for lost time by handing out hunting licenses. There have been 7000 game licenses issued since the first of the year, a number over and above any year in the history of the county. In 1912, 5500 licenses were issued, and prior to that year the number dwindled down to a few hundred.

It is rumored today that a petition asking the city council to compel the Oregon Electric company to keep Mill and High streets free from standing cars in the future will be presented tonight. It is said that the company leaves its equipment standing in the center of the two streets and consequently blocks traffic to a great extent.

Let us show you the Opal range. You will be sure to like it. Buren & Hamilton.

A party of friends of the late D. W. Gibson met the S. P. train this morning and took charge of the remains. Several ladies greeted Mr. Gibson's little girl and escorted her to one of their homes. The party was composed of Sheriff Esch and wife and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Minto and several other old friends of the deceased.

A slight auto accident took place this afternoon about 1 o'clock near the Hubbard building, on High street. The driver of a car belonging to B. L. Patterson failed to make proper connections with a small opening between two Oregon Electric cars standing in the street, with the result that the hood of the auto was badly bent and twisted, and one front wheel was made wobbly. The auto was not so badly injured but that it could proceed on its way on its own power.

Gas ranges must be closed out. Call and get prices. Buren & Hamilton.

Very little business was transacted by the school board last night, the bulk of the work having been completed last week. The application submitted by the teachers, for a two-weeks' vacation, instead of one, was frowned upon by the members of the board, and it was finally decided to give seven teachers the usual one-week layoff and two teachers two-weeks' vacation. Director Leo will investigate and report at the next meeting on the matter of hiring a school librarian, and Superintendent Kuntz reported that the students at the high school need 803 books for home study.

The ordinary beggar who stops citizens on the streets and asks for a piece of money to buy his breakfast is not always hungry was proven at the police station today. One big fellow, who was arrested last night on the charge of begging, was told that if he got out of town he would be released, and was told that he could not expect to get anything to drink, as the city had gone dry. "My gosh," he said, "you can't see me for dust, if that is the case," and he made tracks north at a good rate.

"WITHIN THE LAW" IS SPLENDIDLY PRESENTED

Play Which Exposes Crooked Methods of Police and Big Business Teaches Great Lesson.

Teaching a powerful moral lesson to everyone present, exposing the crooked work of police and the "big business" ideas of the man who pays starvation wages and wonders why his clerks steal or go on the streets, touching on the fact that there is a law for the rich and the poor and presented by Margaret Illington and a very capable company, "Within the Law" was given at the Grand last evening.

The play might fittingly have been called "The Truth." Facts were hurled at the audience. The amug complacency of the merchant prince who thought it right to have his son squander money at Monte Carlo, while he gave no heed to the suffering of those who helped him build up his fortune, his stern resolve to send Mary Turner to prison for stealing as an example for others, and his quick decision to apologize when the rich thief, the wife of a president of a bank, was caught in the act of carrying off $100 worth of goods, made it easy to believe that he would fit into the order of things in Portland, Seattle or most any large city. There are many of his class in Portland.

The bounding of the men and women after being released from prison is nothing new. Easy examples could be cited right in Oregon where men have been driven to commit crime by crooked, grafting or ignorant police.

Miss Illington fits splendidly into the play and it is doubtful if she has ever had so strong a vehicle for her remarkable talents. Hilda Keenan, as Agnes Lynch, was one of the pronounced hits. Her way of undoing the police was clever and her vocabulary remarkable. "Attorneys were given a big boost. It was shown that they can paint the way to be crooked and get the coin and yet keep "within the law."

Miss Illington responded to repeated curtain calls.

NEW BAND BEING ORGANIZED.
