FOUR DOLLARS IN EVERY $300,000 BAD

Secret Service Comes to Conclusion That Is About Percentage of Counterfeit Coin Afloat.

AN EASY MATTER TO GET SILK FIBRES IN FABRIC

Counterfeiters Have no Difficulty in Making Paper Money Which Looks Like Genuine Goods.

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.]

Washington, Feb. 4.—If you have $100,000 in silver and $200,000 in bills hid away in a woolen sock under the mattress or hoarded in a tin box under an apple tree you are probably hoarding $4 counterfeit money.

Nobody knows just how much bad money is in circulation, for obviously a perfect counterfeit could never be detected. But perfection is as scarce among bad bills as it is among good men, and after close calculations covering a period of a year the United States Secret Service has come to the conclusion that not more than $3 in every $100,000 of silver nor more than $1 in every $200,000 of bills is spurious.

To the Secret Service office there goes eventually every piece of counterfeit money discovered. It is the great purifying plant of the stream of our national currency, though it is only one of its vital functions. The appearance of a new counterfeit is to the Secret Service what the clang of the gong is to the fire department. No matter how astute the counterfeiter, he cannot carry his operations far until the service "has a line on him," his methods, accomplices, and general characteristics, and his apprehension is usually but a matter of days.

There is an erroneous idea, very generally held, that paper money is printed on paper manufactured by a secret process which is carefully guarded from the public. The truth is that almost any paper house could make the identical paper were it not prohibited by law from doing so. The matter of getting the silk fibres into the fabric is comparatively simple, and the appearance of these tiny threads, often cleverly imitated with a fine pen, not infrequently induces the inexperienced to accept a counterfeit bill of which they are suspicious.

With the development of photo-engraving the shady art of counterfeiting received a big impetus. Prior to that industry only experts could hope to produce bills that would pass even casual inspection. And as man's handiwork always expresses his individuality the "thumb print" of every counterfeiter was literally on every bill he put out.

Today, however, bills may be duplicated by a purely mechanical process. But the lines are heavy and uneven, and while such a reproduction may get by an inexperienced clerk the expert can spot it at a glance.

GOOD ROADS AS CURE FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

[UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE.] Columbus, O., Feb. 4.—Lower cost of living by improving the country roads, thereby giving the farmers easy access to the markets, which will encourage them to produce more. Heavier production means lower prices.

That's the theory of James R. Marker, state highway commissioner, who aims to give Ohio the best roads in the United States. Marker will have at his personal disposal this year $800,000 and every year thereafter for ten years there will be $3,500,000 at the disposal of the state highway commissioner for use on roads in the state.

"This fund means we will have the best schools, markets and community enterprises of all kinds, argues Marker. "Good roads mean better civilization because they bring persons in closer touch with one another." Work on rebuilding 9,233 miles of Ohio roads starts this spring and Marker predicts 1,000 miles will be completed by the end of the year. In ten years he expects to have accomplished the whole task.

"BULLET CUSHION" IS IN CONGRESS NOW

Kirkpatrick Has Had 200 Pieces of Lead Pumped into Him by Counterfeiters and Others.

NEARLY SEVENTY YEARS OLD BUT HE CAN STILL SHOOT

Story Recalled of How Moonshiner Discharged Shotgun in His Face But Now Occupies Grave.

BY BURTON K. STANDISH. (Written for the United Press.) Washington, Feb. 4.—Around Congress they call him the "Bullet Cushion."

His right name is Sant Kirkpatrick, and he is representative from the Sixth Iowa district which used to solidly Republican. But that has nothing to do with the strange appellation.

He received that title after counterfeiters, moonshiners and other "bad men" had pumped 200 pieces of lead into him in his 22 years' service with the United States Revenue Service. In addition to the couple of hundred lead pellets scattered through his anatomy, Representative Kirkpatrick can boast of one glass eye, one hole in the leg, acquittals on every charge against him from petit larceny to murder, to say nothing of a reputation for willingness to fight anything from Old Nick himself to a den of wild cats.

The "Bullet Cushion" is close to seventy years old now, but the old fighting spirit is still with him, and he still boasts that he can "shave" a man's moustache at 50 yards with a 32 calibre razor.

Strange to relate, Kirkpatrick went through the Civil War without a wound. Twenty-seven of the shot that he carries as a souvenir of his earlier labors for Uncle Sam came from a moonshiner hunt in South Carolina. Pursuing one of these southern desperadoes, Kirkpatrick was turned upon and the contents of an old muzzle loading shotgun was discharged in his face. That's how Sant lost his eyesight and fractured his jaw. And that's why, too, there sleeps today in a mountain grave, out unknown moonshiner.

A new baby, a solid silver spoon and a moment's carelessness all but disrupted the Division of Publications of the Department of Agriculture a few days ago.

The baby is the daughter of Stanley Searles, one of the editors of the division, and the spoon was subscribed for by the clerks in his office. At the last moment before the spoon was presented to the proud father one of the clerks took it from his box to show to a friend and then failed to return it, simply laying it in the drawer.

As Searles started to leave he was surrounded by his associates and one of them with a few laudatory words, presented him with a small box daintily tied with ribbon. A hasty glance showed that there was nothing but tissue paper inside and his ire was aroused.

"Speech! Speech!" cried the crowd who mistook his flush for embarrassment.

"It would not do for you to hear what I want to say," said the angered man as he rushed for the door.

Half an hour later the spoon was discovered in the drawer where the box had been and a messenger bearing the gift and profuse apologies was hurried to the Searles home. Next day Searles made a speech.

Representative John Burnett, of Alabama, enjoys the distinction of being one of the three smallest members of Congress—in point of height at least. In other directions Burnett makes a mighty creditable showing.

Burnett is a lawyer. Down in Alabama he was arguing a case, barricaded behind a formidable pile of legal literature. The opposing attorney did something to which Burnett took exception, and in a minute he was on his feet objecting.

The judge interrupted him at this point. "It is customary to rise when addressing the court," he observed acidly.

"I'm standing, up your honor," Burnett protested.

The judge stood up, leaned far over the bench, convinced himself that the lack of elevation of Burnett's head—all he could see—couldn't be helped unless he stood on the pile of books in front of him, and then told him to go ahead.

"But be careful in the future," added the judge.

OPEN FORUM.

ROADS MUST BE NAMED. Editor Capital Journal: In last night's issue of the Journal you say with reference to the proposed $850,000 road bond issue: "The Capital Journal invited the leaders of the movement, or whoever had charge of it to take the people into their confidence and make a full and frank showing of what was to be done, where the money was to be expended and all matters connected with the proposition."

As to where the money is to be expended, one has but to read the law to find the answer. Chapter 103 of the laws of 1913 provides that the petition for a road election is not to state what roads are to be improved or the amount to be spent on any road. The petition merely asks the county court to call an election and names the amount of bond issue. The county court is then to pass upon the sufficiency of the petition and if found in compliance with law, the county court must determine and publish in its notices of election the roads to be improved and the amount of money to be spent on each road. The following is the form of the election notice as provided by law.

Notice is hereby given that on..... day of 191..., a special election will be held in..... county, to determine whether the county court shall issue bonds of said county to provide for permanent road construction to the amount of..... dollars, to mature in..... years, not more than..... dollars to be issued in any one year, and to bear interest at the rate of..... per cent per annum; and the funds so raised shall be expended in building permanent roads, described as follows, to wit: $..... shall be expended on the road from..... and $..... shall be expended on the road from..... to....., etc.

County Clerk for..... county. Yours truly, U. G. SHIPLEY.

Editor Capital Journal: In the matter of the data I promised you I would write that I am circulating the following petition:

To the Hon. Henry S. Graves, Chief Forester, Washington, D. C.

You are respectfully petitioned by the undersigned citizens of the State of Oregon, and others, to immediately complete and open to the public, that certain trail surveyed and graded on a five per cent grade, leading from Hood River Valley in Hood River county, Oregon, via Walbo pass, across the Cascade mountains, connecting with Portland, Salem and all Willamette valley points and the Pacific highway on the west side of the said Cascade mountains, the said road to pass down the north or clear fork of the Sandy river, and passing through the Bull Run Forest Reserve, in such a location so as not to interfere or contaminate in any way the watersupply of the city of Portland, Salem and Eastern Oregon highways by the shortest and most practical route and lowest grades.

Your petitioners feel that this road has become a positive necessity to the entire state of Oregon, as well as an essential part of the Pacific highway, than any other good roads development now under consideration. It will be of great practical use to the traveling public in Oregon as well as a connecting link of the long distance Pacific highway between California, Oregon and Washington, and will open a strange and beautiful scenic route seen nowhere else in the world.

This road would have been opened to the public use several years ago by the United States government but for the action of a few mistaken men on the water board of the city of Portland who objected to the opening of said road on the grounds that it would contaminate Portland's water supply. However, the facts in the case prove plainly that they did not know what they were talking about, nor do they now, and they act accordingly.

The road passes through Walbo pass, 1 1/2 miles southeast of Bull Run lake, the fountain head of Bull run river. Portland's water supply, more than 1000 feet lower than the watershed between the lake and the road. And it would be impossible for drainage from this road to reach the lake.

When this road is built it will facilitate the guarding of the reserve. Guards on motorcycles can thoroughly patrol it hourly if necessary and the U. S. government has use for the road and it will build it without expense to Oregon.

Commissioner Daly of the Portland Water Board is opposing the road. He claims 122 square miles for the reserve. There is a large area of denuded land along the Bull Run river, the owners of which are entitled to an outlet road for their properties, whom Commissioner Daly would also bar. But the small number of water board officials, et al, do not represent the city of Portland's best interests in their fierce oppositions to this road. However, the petition is very popular and is signed by many of Portland, Salem and Hood River's substantial and representative citizens which insures its success, the petition is being forwarded in sections as fast as signed, to Representative Nick Sinnott who will present it to Forrester Graves, and look after its interests at Washington—Nick's a wheel hoss—when there's something to be done.

If Commissioner Daly asserts Portland will be short on water supply, it would be interesting to know why the water rights on the Little Sandy river in the Bull Run Forest Reserve, a most convenient source for plenty more water, were parted with to a corporation, said corporation having also secured water rights on the Big Sandy, including the clear or north fork that Commissioner Daly now proposes to go to great expense in getting an inconsequential stream. Now then when Portland needs more water the cheapest and best way to get a permanent supply is to build a series of reservoirs along the Bull Run river, thereby holding the flood waters and increasing the water supply one hundred fold.

We have handed Mr. J. E. Crowe manager of the Marion hotel, a copy of this petition and would ask the hearty and neighborly support of all Salem people and others. "Hood River expects every man and woman to do their duty."

Yours for Auld Lang Syne, W. R. WINANS.
