The fire department responded to a call from the real estate office of Bechtel & Bynon last night, and, upon arrival, found Mr. Bechtel's Reo automobile trying to burn itself up. The machine had evidently back fired after Mr. Bechtel twisted the engine into motion, with the result that flames soon sprang out all over the auto. The department doused the fire with a chemical, and saved the machine from ruin. Mr. Bechtel says the damage is considerable, but the loss is covered with automobile insurance.

Under the able superintendency of "Hon." Wesley Pease, the timber farm belonging to Paul Marnach north of the city is being cleared up and put into shape for cultivation by Harry Walling and George Richmond, two of Salem's busy young men. While Messrs. Walling and Richmond are city lads, they handle the axe like veterans and when Mr. Marnach, accompanied by Tacket Hill, visited the place yesterday, chips were flying in every direction. "Hickory" Haas, one of Salem's pioneers who is still a mere kid, is seriously thinking of letting the "back to the farm" notion get the better of him and proposes to look over the timber farm shortly. With Haas, Richmond and Walling on the job, Mr. Marnach should have no trouble in having his property prepared for the seed within a very short time, as all three of these men are noted as strong arm fellows.

Luther J. Chapin, county agriculturalist, will begin a series of lectures to farmers and others on the subject of drainage, commencing tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp, in the auditorium at the Salem Commercial club. A cordial invitation is extended to all who may be interested in the lectures delivered by Professor Chapin. These lectures are free. After the series on drainage have been delivered others will be announced from time to time.

The mercury went down to 29 above and while there was very little frost on the ground this morning, water pipes were burst in some of the homes. Old timers in the city declare that some ice skating will be had before the month is gone.

Special sale on sheet music ends Saturday night. Popular vocal and instrumental pieces now only 10 cents. Geo. C. Will.

Either a kink in the typewriter or a wrinkle in the reporter's memory fraudently announced in The Capital Journal recently that Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson, who reside on east State street, were the proud possessors of a baby girl. Mr. Wilson put the reporter yesterday and divulged the fact that the baby in question is really an eight-month boy. Mr. Wilson further stated that the new-comer has been named Elmer Woodrow Wilson, and that the name was given the baby at the request of his eldest son who is but 12 years of age. As to what the politics of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are can be readily observed by taking a second thought of the little visitor's name and the father and mother are receiving the congratulations of many who are followers of the G. O. P., Democrats and about every other political party.

The petitions for an election to vote on the bond issue of $850,000 for building permanent roads in Marion county were filed with the county clerk yesterday, and it is expected an election will be called as soon as the names have been carefully examined. The petitions contain 1912 signatures more than are required under the law. County Judge Busby announces that as soon as the signatures to the petitions from outside districts have been checked over those from Salem and other towns would be given attention.

The members of the Young Men's Republican club will hold its second meeting in the court house this evening, at which officers will be elected to serve for the ensuing two years, and the platform will be adopted for the present year. The meeting will be held in the circuit court chambers, and the by-laws will be adopted, wherein it will provide that women may join the club and take part in the discussions.

Unless the lawn mower is brought into action within the next few days, County Commissioner Beckwith states that he will bring down his flock of sheep and clean the court house lawn. Commissioner Beckwith admires long grass in the country, but declares that, inasmuch as feather-edges are the thing in the city, the county's green sward should be decorated up. Commissioner Gouly, from the north end of the county, says Commissioner Beckwith has some fine sheep, especially the Ayrshires and the Dutch Belted, and would vote in favor of having the animals brought to Salem, and hired out for the purpose of mowing lawns.

Justice of the Peace Webster yesterday dismissed the case in which Edgar Welch was accused of assaulting Joe Otterstrom with a dangerous weapon.

An action was commenced in the circuit court yesterday by Daniel J. Fry, et al., against the city of Salem to clear the title to blocks 11, 12 and 13, in which the plaintiffs claim the defendant claims interest.

Failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for action are the grounds upon which the defendants in the case of Fred Scheeler against Maryott Bunce, et al., asks that the proceedings be dismissed, in a demurrer filed in the circuit court yesterday.

President S. E. Korfeet, of Hamlin University, St. Paul, Minn., was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Avison last night. The visitor arrived yesterday, stopping over here to visit the Salem minister on his way home from California points.

The jury in the case of J. H. Shields against Merton DeLong returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff last night. Shields was suing DeLong for $100, which was claimed to be due on a promissory note.

Chairman Hatch, of the street committee is doing excellent work, and lots of it. During January 27 new cross walks have been built and 22 old ones rebuilt. Besides this, about 150 yards of gravel have been distributed, and used in filling chuck holes and at the crosswalks. Under Chairman Hatch's direction, it seems, the streets are to be looked after in a businesslike way. It is one of the cases where the right man is in the right place.

A baby was born to Mrs. Joseph Nussbaum at the Salem Hospital January 26. The baby thereby adhered to a custom of babies of the family, established by one four generations ago to arrive on January 26. The great grandmother was born on that day; the grandfather followed the rule; the mother also observed it. When the baby's grandfather was 27 years old, his mother was born. January 26 was her 27th birthday.

J. W. Bellamy, a farmer of Fruitland, was in the city Thursday, looking into the matter of the refunding of the money paid on sewer assessments. He went home smiling, not because he got the money, for he didn't, but just because he is built that way, and smiles even when things are not coming his way. He says that is the true plan, for otherwise a fellow would very often be denied the privilege of smiling. He will get his money some time, but the interest has stopped, and, like others, he would like to have the money turned over so it can be made to work. Idle money, like idle men, accomplish nothing, and keeping the unemployed, men or dollars, busy is the proper plan as well as a Christian duty.

OBITUARY.

Mable Crichton Walker died February 3 at 9:45 a. m., at her home in San Diego, California, after an illness of eighteen days, a victim of typhoid fever. She is believed to have contracted the disease through her loving ministrations to her sister, Miss Nellie Crichton, who died but a short time ago from the same disease, and who had long enjoyed the hospitable home of Mrs. Walker in Oregon and later the new home established in the fair southern city.

Miss Mable Crichton, then a teacher, was married to Harvey Walker, a resident of near Salem, September 5, 1894, and resided continuously on their farm in the Middle Grove district, until their removal to California three years ago. Funeral services were held Thursday, February 5, from the late residence and interment was made by the side of the sister recently deceased. The husband and two sons, Harvey Stuart, age 17, and Jesse Theodore, age 13, survive her.

Mrs. Walker was a capable, generous woman, a loving wife and mother, respected by her many friends who mourn her early departure and the loss to her beloved husband and young sons.
Mrs. Walker was an earnest member and a past noble grand of Salem Rebekah lodge No. 1, and served with fidelity in every position to which she was called.
