CHAMBERLAIN TO BE NOMINEE.

THE Telegram of Wednesday has a story concerning Governor West, and what he will do after his time is out. The Telegram says "What Oswald West will do when he leaves the governor's office next January is causing a varied amount of guessing." This is true, but what West will do before his term expires is causing considerable more guessing, and, besides, some real earnest thought, especially among the many candidates for office. He has expressed his preference for Dr. Smith for the governor's office, but what he will do in the matter of senator is a debatable question with some. Not long ago we heard the governor say, "I am loyal to Chamberlain, and always have been. There is no misunderstanding or quarrel between us." We see no reason to doubt the governor's word, and, therefore, believe he will stand solidly for the re-nomination of Chamberlain. From present indications there will be no contest, so far as the Democrats are concerned for the nomination for U. S. senator. This means George E. Chamberlain will, in all probability, be the Democratic nominee.

LAW MAY POINT THE WAY.

ANSWERING a communication from Portland officials concerning certain street railway franchises, the Railroad Commission refers the writers thereof to the laws of 1911 concerning public utilities and the power of city councils to regulate them. A desultory examination of the law suggests that, under it, it might be possible for Salem to request the S. P. to build us a new and commodious depot, and possibly to compel the company to erect the same. Salem has borne patiently with the railroad in the matter of a depot, and the time has arrived when patience in the matter of a depot has ceased to be a virtue, and is becoming almost a crime. Salem's depot is the worst on the line between Portland and Ashland. It is not only the worst, but is just rotten. It is small, illly arranged, dirty and a disgrace to civilization. Salem has asked repeatedly that a decent depot be built here, and it has asked in vain. Its requests will continue to be ignored until it uses force to get what patience and leniency has so long failed to accomplish. It is possible the law quoted by the railroad commission may open the way to a solution of the question and force the company to build a depot here that is not a disgrace to the city.

The law reads:

"Every municipality shall have power ***

(2) To require of any public utility, by ordinance, or otherwise such modifications, additions and extensions to its physical equipment, facilities or plant or service within said municipality as shall be reasonable and necessary in the interest of the public, and to designate the location and nature of all such additions and extensions, the time within which they must be completed, and all conditions under which they must be constructed, subject to review by the commission, as provided in this section.

(3) To provide for a penalty for non-compliance with the provisions of any ordinance or resolution adopted pursuant to the provisions hereof.

(4) The power and authority granted in this section shall exist and be vested in said municipalities anything in this act, to the contrary, notwithstanding."

VILLA FIGHTING FOR MEXICO.

IT has been conceded for some time that the news from Mexico has been deliberately garbled, and that "Coal Oil," either English or American, is back of the reports. Villa has been held up as one of the worst kind of monsters, but a recent interview, which is really authentic, puts him in a different light. He is a man of fierce methods, sometimes cruel, but at heart a patriot, if his statements are to be believed. He says:

"Should General Carranza become president he would receive my support, and I would obey his commands. As proof of my loyalty and as evidence that I have no ambition to become president, I would leave the country if he ordered me to do so.

"I have never been in anything but the fullest accord with General Carranza. I never had any personal ambition to reach high office. I am a fighting man only, and I am fighting for the liberation of my country, not to elevate myself. I am only a soldier under command of my chief, and I shall obey him, whatever his orders may be."

This shows patriotism of a high order, and certainly gives one a different opinion of the man so persistently held out as a red-handed murderer. If he will carry out the program he indicates, the sooner he is victorious, and runs Huerta out the better for Mexico and the world.

WAS MOVED ALMOST TO FRENZY.

F. SMITH, in a communication in the Oregon Journal Wednesday, takes the newspapers to task for using poor English and evidently feels pretty badly about it. He objects to "split infinitives" and to numerous other things. He says "the writer, a few years ago, almost in frenzy, asked a veteran in modern journalism, a man of refinement and literary culture why his paper permitted the atrocity of split infinitives." This shows that Mr. Smith feels deeply the mistreatment of the English language, and is rather a fanatic as a purist. He seems to overlook the fact that the English language is a live, not a dead one; and that it is still growing. If it was not it would be a dead language. It is acquiring new words every day, and it is changing forms of expression. It has been the rule that a sentence should not be ended with a preposition. Yet that is getting to be common, so much so, that it bids fair to become, by usage, correct.

If Mr. Smith will go back to the birth time of the English language, as it first appeared in swaddling clothes, with Chaucer as its wet nurse, and compare the language of those days with that of the present, he will get some idea of the immensity of the distance the language has traveled since that time, and the journey it will make in time to come. Slang has become good English and thousands of words, once common, have become obsolete, or with apologies to Mr. Smith, "have been ditched." After all, is it not better to split infinitives occasionally rather than hairs?

THE ROUND-UP.

The Corvallis Cannery is busy shipping potatoes between jobs and this week will ship about 18 carloads. The price received is about $1.00 per hundred.

Portland is to sell one of its best fire horses because it has learned the trick of biting and practices it on the fire-boys.

The sheriff and police of Lebanon raided the Owl club at that place recently and arrested the secretary. However all proceedings were quashed when the club agreed to quit allowing liquor in its rooms.

Baker county is afflicted with mad dogs which are supposed to have been infected by being bitten by coyotes. The dogs have bitten many cattle and these in turn have gone mad.

Eastern Oregon is having quite a cold snap and at La Grande the sleigh bells are jingling merrily.

The Hood River county court has named the Glacier as the official paper of the county.

Mrs. Frances Ellen Hare of Astoria, celebrated her 103rd birthday Thursday. She received many telegrams and letters of congratulation from various sections of the state, and dozens of school children sent her postal cards.

George Wingfield, the Nevada mining man has purchased 1,000 head of cattle in Warner valley that he will have driven to his ranch at Fallon Nevada. He paid $50 a head for the bunch.

The Oregon Irrigation Congress has sent out a call for its third annual session which will be held in Portland February 13 and 14.

Some one put the telephone system at Canemah out of commission Monday morning by shooting several bullets into the cable carrying the insulated wires.

Attorney J. N. Teal seems to have a contract for holding down the cushions in a Pullman between Portland and Washington D. C. as most of his time is spent going to, or returning from Washington, on business for the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

A blast of 10,000 pounds of dynamite at Celilo Thursday was the last needed to complete the rock work on the canal there. It loosened 12,000 cubic yards of rock and earth. The charge was placed in 54 holes, each 24 feet deep and covered an area 60 by 100 feet. This means the completion of the canal in a short time, as about all the work left is in the shape of concreting.
