The Markets

ACTIVITY IS FEATURE OF WOOL MARKETS

Prices Are Two Cents Higher than Last Year and Many Sales Are Being Made to Dealers.

HOP MARKET LIFELESS AND SALES FEW AND FAR BETWEEN.

Wheat Conditions Firm and Reports From Europe Show Trouble With Insects and Weather.

Activity is the feature of the wool markets, and prices two cents higher than last year have caused a lively market and many sales. The clip is good, both in quantity and quality, and the extra prices will make it easy street for the growers for the season. The hop market is lifeless, only one trade being made during the week, and this between dealers. The principal reason for this is that the supply is about exhausted, or is at least in dealers' hands. A few dealers are offering 15 cents for the fall contracts, but few trades are reported on this basis. Wheat is very firm, yesterday's reports from Europe showing trouble from insects, and weather conditions not so favorable as heretofore. The demand on the Northwest from California millers continues, and strengthens the local markets. There was a sharp decline in butter, it being reduced to 25 cents in Portland today. Eggs are steady at about 19 cents, varying half a cent down from that point. Spring poultry is in strong demand, and the supply far too small.

POLK COUNTY NEWS.

Mrs. H. W. Fellows has returned from Portland, Seaside and other points and the first thing she did was to hire carpenters and other mechanics and commence to re-construct one of her homes on the corner of Ash and Main streets. When the work she contemplated is all done, she will have one of the most modern homes in Dallas. Dallas Observer.

D. B. Wilson, who resides near Perrydale says that: Mr. G. Wohlford and G. G. Kempel of Oak Crest Farm are doing fine work filling and smoothing the road to the satisfaction of the public. The worst piece of road near the "Oak Crest Farm" was put in good condition by means of the "King Road Drag." The farmers now are compelled to take permission to do work on the roads. Mr. Wohlford is donating what he does.

Word was received in Dallas Tuesday morning of the sudden death of one of Polk county's oldest citizens, Mr. John W. Hillbrand, who resides near Airline. He was taken suddenly ill with Peritonitis a few days ago and died last night. The deceased was over 61 years of age and has always lived on the home place where he died. He was a highly respected citizen and leaves a wife and two sons, also one brother and a sister or mourn his sudden departure.

HOPKINS IS IDENTIFIED

"TATTOOED BANDIT" IS MAN WHO MURDERED TONY OLSON IN HOLDUP SUNDAY.

Mr. Verner, Wash., April 3.—Positive identification of Charles Hopkins, the "tattooed bandit" as the man who murdered Tony Olson near McMurray, Washington, early Sunday morning, was made by John Freeman, Olson's companion at the time of the holdup, who was dangerously wounded at the same time. Freeman is not yet out of danger, but he has recovered consciousness and was permitted by the hospital physician to discuss the case with officers. A photograph of Hopkins, taken at the jail, was immediately recognized by Freeman as that of his assailant. Referring to Olson's murder, Freeman described Hopkins' attack as cowardly. "It was a fiendish act," he said, "to kill Olson after he had already been beaten and robbed."

COMMITTEE FAILS TO REPORT ON FLAX MILL

Matter of Securing Mill for Salem Apparently Dropped by Those Who Are Interested.

MANY FARMERS ANXIOUS TO SEE SOMETHING ACCOMPLISHED

Would Like to Attempt Flax Growing On Small Scale But Wish Some Arrangements to Handle Crop.

The matter of flax culture, discussed at some length last fall, has apparently been dropped. A committee was appointed by the Commercial club, but if it has taken any action it has made no report of it. Considerable interest was awakened at the time but it, like everything else, once allowed to drop out of sight is lost forever unless someone digs it up and starts the discussion all over again. The trouble with the movement last fall was that too much was undertaken at once, or rather too much was suggested as being necessary to the successful trying out of the experiment. It was then proposed that a complete factory be established, and this ran into such figures that it was seen that the scheme was impracticable. As it is remembered the sum said to be necessary was above $150,000, and this was too large a contract for local capital to tackle. It is now suggested by those interested that it would be better to get the farmers to growing the flax in a small way, providing only the machinery for getting the product in the shape of rough fiber and shipping it east in that form. The idea is that once it is shown eastern manufacturers that flax of the very best quality can be grown here, and that it is being cultivated as a regular crop, they will find it profitable to locate their factories here. The abundance and cheapness of power makes this an ideal place for such manufacturers and in this way it is thought eastern money can be induced to come here and perfect the industry.

It would be well for an effort to be made along this line, as there are many farmers anxious to try flax growing on a small scale, and this they will not do unless some arrangement is made for handling the crop. It is only a question of time until this becomes one of the leading industries of the Willamette valley, and the sooner it is begun the sooner it will be an established industry giving employment to hundreds here in Salem and adding to the general prosperity of the whole valley. A Capital Journal representative interviewed a number of those who were interested in the matter last fall and the above seems to be a compendium of their opinion on the subject.

QUESTION NOW IS WHO PURCHASED ARSENIC

Probe of Kilfoil Case by Grand Jury Halts Until Authorities Can Gather Some More Evidence.

PROSECUTOR LEAVES FOR SAN DIEGO TO SEE GIRL

While Satisfied She Did Not Murder Another, Ford Will Question Her As to Some Facts.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 3.—With new developments in the Kilfoil poisoning case, which according to Assistant District Joseph W. Ford, point to the purchaser of the arsenic which caused the death of Mary Kilfoil, the grand jury investigation was halted today. It probably will be taken up next Tuesday. Ford freely asserted that perjury has been committed before the grand jury. Indictments may be looked for next week, he said. While he feels certain that Kilfoil's confession placing the blame for Mary Kilfoil's death upon Lillian Palmer, the child mother, is a fabrication, the assistant district attorney probably will leave for San Diego tonight to interrogate the girl.

JAPANESE OYSTERS THRIVE IN PUGET SOUND WATERS

Seattle, Wash., April 3.—Following successful experiments in the transplanting of Japanese oysters to Puget Sound waters William J. Bonhwa, an oyster grower, and Y. Nishikawa, an importer, will sail from Seattle for Japan April 21 to arrange for regular shipments of oysters to be planted here. The Japanese oyster, it is said, will grow nearly as large as the eastern oyster here, and will acquire the flavor of the Puget Sound product without losing its original flavor.

SEEK TO BLOW UP CHURCH.

Glasgow, April 3.—Suffragettes today tried to blow up Belmont church here. Though they exploded three bombs under it, not much damage was done.

VILLA ARRIVES SAFELY.

New York, April 3.—Dispatches received here today say that Anthony Villa, who headed a section of the exploring and hunting expedition of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, has arrived safely at Manaus, Brazil.

VILLA IS ACCUSED

(Continued from page 1.) Charge d'Affaires Algara received from Foreign Minister Rojas, at Mexico City, today the following message: "Torreón has not fallen. Reports to that effect are false. General Maas and force arrived in time utterly to defeat the rebels and drive them entirely from the city."

On Way to Attack.

Juarez, Mexico, April 3.—The brigades of Generals Urbina and Herrera were already on their way today from Torreón to Monterrey and Saltillo, according to a Torreón dispatch received here. It was not believed they would attack, however, until a fresh supply of ammunition reaches them.

No News of Defeat.

Mexico City, April 3.—People here did not know that Torreón had fallen. President Huerta has forbidden publication of news from the front. The city was quiet.

Fleeing Federals Attacked.

El Paso, Texas, April 3.—Fighting between General Rosillo Hernandez, rebel force and the Vanguard of General Velasco's fleeing federals from Torreón was reported today by General Villa to General Carranza at Juarez. The skirmish, Villa stated, occurred southeast of Canoe Del Guarniche and several federals were killed and many wounded. Hernandez was trying, according to the message, to engage the main column and drive it back upon Torreón.

How many men Velasco had with him was not known, but it was believed from Hernandez' reports to be much larger than was at first supposed. It was considered certain that the federal were trying to get Saltillo. Hernandez' men, however, barred the way, and, with General Contreras' division coming up behind, Velasco seemed certain to be caught between two fires.

SAN FRANCISCO GIRL IN UNABLE TO 'TELL HER NAME'

San Francisco, April 3.—The authorities were trying today to learn something definite concerning a handsome young woman who staggered into the park police station about midnight, suffering apparently from apoplexy, and was transferred later to the Central Emergency hospital. Later Mrs. M. L. Frank identified the patient as a domestic servant who had worked for her under the name of Violet. The girl herself was well dressed, refined looking and had tattooed on her throat the portrait of a man. She could pronounce a few words but was unable to hold a connected conversation or to tell her name or home.
