The final decision of the Salem water case, now before the railroad commission, will not be made for some time. A stipulation was filed a week or more ago, giving the company 30 days in which to file its statement of operating expenses, and evidence along that line, so that it will probably be the first of May, and perhaps later before a decision is reached.

Since there is a possibility of the interstate bridge being built across the Columbia at Vancouver, the street railway companies have concluded that it would be a handy thing to have a franchise to operate a street railroad over the bridge, to carry around among their unencumbered assets. Acting on this theory, the Washington-Oregon corporation has applied for a franchise, and the Kenton Traction company also wants a franchise for the same purpose. Each company modestly asks for only a 50-year lease on the bridge, probably figuring that by that time the bridge will need rebuilding, and a longer term might leave them in shape that the public would insist they help pay for the new bridge, or for the repairing of the old.

The collection of curios in one of the Standard Liquor company's windows that has long attracted attention has received an addition in the shape of a gray cat that daily curls up for a sun bath among the old guns, sabres and snake hides. The collection, valuable and rare as it is, should be donated to the city library and labelled as there is at present no means of satisfying one's curiosity as to the various things. There are two very well petrified doughnuts on a wooden plow that was said to have belonged to Phil Sheridan, when he was not engaged in using some of the various guns also shown in the window and which appear to have been dug up from the earth.

Oregon Electric time is but slightly affected at Salem by the new schedules which will be put into effect tomorrow. The Panama Canal is the subject for the next lecture at the public library. This will be given by Professor E. H. McAllister and will be illustrated by lantern slides. The world is interested in the Panama canal and we on the western coast are especially interested because it will affect us and bring many people to our coast. This lecture gives an opportunity to see pictures of the wonderful canal and hear about it from one who is informed on the subject. The lecture will be at eight o'clock in the auditorium of the library and is free.

A collision between an horse and wagon owned by H. Steinbock, proprietor of the Marion secondhand store, and one of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern street cars occurred on North Commercial street yesterday afternoon, with the result that Mr. Steinbock is laid up with a fracture of the left hip and a badly strained left foot. The accident occurred at the switch between Division and Mill creek. The second hand store man was driving north and failed to see the approaching car, and, before the rig could be got in the clear, the car struck it from behind, and threw the driver to the street. The wagon was damaged to a considerable extent, and Mr. Steinbock will be laid up for several days.

Local nitrods are praying for clear weather for tomorrow. The streams are muddy now, and the wily trout absolutely refuse to play with the bait when he cannot obtain a fair view of it through clean water. Ponderous preparation is being made, however, by the local sportsmen, and some lively and vivid tales will be told no doubt next Monday.

Bargains at Mosher's spring opening, beginning Monday, 344 State street.

"More rain more good fruit." This was the statement made this morning by County Fruit Inspector Constable, when approached in regard to the effect the heavy rainfall of today would have upon the different classes of fruits in this county. Mr. Constable stated that there is no danger now of the fruit being damaged by rain or cool weather, for the reason that the blossoms have pollenized far enough to ward off climatic conditions which would have ruined the crop two weeks ago.
