WILSON ISSUES PROCLAMATION

The president's proclamation was issued this afternoon. After reciting the conditions which have prevailed in the Colorado strike zone, it concludes: "Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, do hereby admonish all good citizens against aiding, countenancing, abetting or taking part in such unlawful proceedings and do hereby warn all persons engaged in or connected with this domestic violence and obstruction of the laws, to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes on or before the 30th day of April, 1914."

MAYN ANSWERS RECEIVED

MARKETS IN SALEM DO NOT DISCRIMINATE AS TO QUALITY, SAYS WRITER.

Each mail brings in more letters to the promotion department of the Salem commercial club in answer to the question submitted some time ago regarding what was the matter with Salem, the remedy, the banking conditions, etc. The following are extracts from some of the answers to the question: "What is the matter with Salem?" "Your policy of promoting the welfare of the community adjacent to Salem is a most commendable one, and in the long run will be the most beneficial to Salem. Your invitation to make the club rooms a headquarters would not require repeating were your rooms a little more conveniently located and then have a rest room for the ladies and a small waiting room with a little reading matter provided. I believe then that the farmer and his wife would soon make your rooms a meeting place when in town and a place where they could go to brush off the road dust."

"I hadn't said that I thought there was anything the matter with Salem. Of course there may be some faults to find with it as there is with anything or any person you may think of. There are few things in this old world that are perfect."

The remedy proposed is as follows: "Every citizen be an honorable, upright one, and do unto others as he would like for them to do to them. 'I learned from an old truckster from Holland how to raise a very fine flavored and very early strawberry. I sold the berries to Steiner, Gilbert and Baber, and they all said a berry's a berry although I sent people to get their prices on them."

"We had some very fine hens, sold them to Fitz as we were short of room, and he said it was a shame to sell such hens to a market. 'A chicken's a chicken,' says he. 'A man farms for what there is in it. As long as a berry's a berry and a chicken's a chicken in Salem, that is what Salem will get.'"

FEDERAL TROOPS

the legislature can not be convened against domestic violence, and is put in effect by certain statutes.

Use of Troops Necessary.

These statutes make it lawful for the president to use the land and naval forces as he deems necessary and provide that whenever, in his judgment, it becomes necessary so to use these forces, he shall by proclamation command the insurgents to disperse and retire peacefully to their respective abodes within a reasonable time. "Upon the information before me my judgment it is necessary for me to use the military forces for the purposes defined by law, and I shall forthwith issue the proclamation provided for by the statutes and pursuant thereof I shall order the troops, when they reach the scene of the disturbances, to cause all those who have been indulging in domestic violence, or who threaten to do so, or whose acts are likely to give rise to disorder to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes if they have not already done so within the time limited by my proclamation."

"I shall not, by use of the troops or by any attempt to exercise jurisdiction subject the power of the federal government into the controversy who produced the present situation. "The manifest disadvantages of having two military forces under separate sources of control operating within the same localities leads me to request you to withdraw your militia as soon as the troops of the United States reach the scene and are ready to take over the necessary control."

Bryan Introduces Bill.

Government ownership and operation of John D. Rockefeller's Colorado mines was proposed in a bill introduced in the house today by Congressman Bryan of Washington.

The measure directs the president, as commander in chief of the army, to use federal troops in the coal fields "to restore order and respect for law," and authorizes the attorney general to begin condemnation proceedings to obtain the stock in the mines held by Rockefeller and his son, John D. Jr., together with such other stock as may be necessary to give the government full control.

It provides for the taking over of the mines by similar means and authorizes the president to operate the mines from that time forward at cost plus 3 per cent on outstanding stock and on the basis of a minimum wage, an 8-hour day, workmen's compensation and sanitary working conditions.

Senator Shafroth called at the White House during the cabinet meeting and told the president that the Colorado legislature undoubtedly would authorize bringing federal troops into the state. He urged that all haste be used in sending them there. Incidentally, he said, he believed the legislature would enact a law for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

Walsenburg Terror Stricken.

Trinidad, Colo., April 28.--Two hundred militiamen with a machine gun mounted on a ridge west of Walsenburg today were sweeping the McNally mine, captured last night plus 3 per cent on outstanding stock and on the basis of a minimum wage, an 8-hour day, workmen's compensation and sanitary working conditions.

Local officials of the United Mine Workers of America declared that fifty militiamen tried to charge the McNally mine but were repulsed.

Telephoning to authorities here, T. M. Hudson, chief clerk of the district court at Walsenburg, asserted the militia and mine guards had trained a machine gun on Walsenburg itself and were sending volley after volley down the town's main street. He said he heard three miners had been killed.

"One miner was killed at the Walsenburg depot," said Hudson. "His killing was said to be uncalled for, as the depot is a long way from the mines. "The people of Walsenburg are terror stricken. Women and children have sought safety in cellars and closets. The situation is critical."

Shooting Uncalled For.

T. M. Hudson, clerk of the district court at Walsenburg, telephoned that a miner was shot down today at the railroad station by militiamen. He said:

"Fifty shots were exchanged at Forbes, near Trinidad, today between 18 mine guards and strikers, but no casualties were reported. Ten minutes after the first volley was fired, at McNally, an automobile containing Superintendent Davis and his family left the camp. The strikers sent several shots after the machine, one of which struck Maggie Gregory, Davis' cousin, in the arm. A dozen guards dashed from a boarding house seeking places of safety and all escaped except one. He was shot dead in his tracks. Later a lone horseman dashed from camp and strikers sent a volley of shots in his direction. He pitched headlong from the saddle but the riderless horse kept going."

Calls for Volunteers.

Denver, Colo., April 28.--Governor Ammons today issued a call for militia volunteers. He declared martial law in Boulder county and ordered 100 troops there from Canon City. The soldiers left on a special train at 9 o'clock this morning.

The governor had heard that Sheriff Buster and a posse of deputies and mine guards were cornered in the Hecla mine and in danger of extermination.

Vessel is Short of Grape Juice

ACCIDENT FORCES OFFICERS AND MEN TO DRINK PLAIN DILLED WATER.

San Diego, Cal., April 28.--The first genuine catastrophe to one of Uncle Sam's fighting craft on the Pacific since the Mexican trouble began was reported today from the cruiser Cleveland, now speeding southward from this port to join the rest of Admiral Howard's vessels. Two large crates of grape juice, said to have been taken aboard as a result of Secretary Daniels' recent order against liquor for the officers, fell in some way from a high place in which they had been stored, and the bottles were smashed and the purple flood ran to the scuppers.

Some of the consignment of grape juice survived, but it was predicted that there would soon be a serious shortage of the beverage.

A shooting was uncalled for and that the people of the town were terror stricken.

A battle which started last night at the Hecla mine, near Louisville, was still in progress today, but as all telephone and telegraph wires have been cut it was impossible to get details. It was known, however, that 200 strikers had attacked a stockade and that it was being defended by Sheriff Buster and a score of mine guards. Reports obtained from an interurban car conductor said the streets of Louisville and Hecla Heights were being swept by a heavy fire. The conductor ordered all his passengers to lie flat on the floor as the car passed through Louisville.

Fighting also was in progress at the Valencia mine at Lafayette and the Marshall and Gosham mines. These places were being guarded by Baldwin-Felts detectives under Walter Belk. It was said he had eight machine guns stationed at various camps.

Greek strikers at San Rafael were said to be preparing to go to Walsenburg and participate in the fighting.

Reports regarding the trouble at Walsenburg differ. Strikers say the battle was precipitated when McNally mine guards fired on an automobile containing four strikers. Union leaders also denied that the miners had fired any buildings, explaining that an explosion of started a fire which destroyed several frame houses. Operators assert, however, that the strikers first dynamited and then fired the buildings.

Firing in Progress.

Denver, Colo., April 28.--Telephone messages received here today from Boulder say that firing was in progress all night between strikers and mine guards at the Hecla mine, near Louisville. Two hundred strikers were reported to have attacked a stockade defended by Sheriff Buster, a score of mine guards and a machine gun. The machine gun is said to have swept the heights of Hecla and the streets of Louisville.

Fighting was also reported at the Valonia mine at Lafayette and at the Marshall and Gosham mines. Walter Belk of the Baldwin-Felts Detective agency heads the guards in the northern coal field. It is reported that he has eight machine guns stationed at various camps.

When an interurban car passed Louisville at midnight the conductor ordered all passengers to lie on the floor until they got out of the district.

Seven Mine Guards Killed.

Walsenburg, Colo., April 28.--Seven mine guards were dead today and a man and woman wounded as a result of an armed clash yesterday which ended in the capture of the McNally mine, owned by the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, by striking coal miners. Several buildings at the camp were fired, including a boarding house, bunk house, triple and shaft house.

Driven from the McNally mine, the guards retreated to the Walsen mine, one of the largest in the state, where they were fighting this morning. A general assault by the strikers on the Walsen mine was expected before night.

Fifty shots were exchanged at Forbes, near Trinidad, today between 18 mine guards and strikers, but no casualties were reported.

Ten minutes after the first volley was fired, at McNally, an automobile containing Superintendent Davis and his family left the camp. The strikers sent several shots after the machine, one of which struck Maggie Gregory, Davis' cousin, in the arm. A dozen guards dashed from a boarding house seeking places of safety and all escaped except one. He was shot dead in his tracks. Later a lone horseman dashed from camp and strikers sent a volley of shots in his direction. He pitched headlong from the saddle but the riderless horse kept going."

The governor had heard that Sheriff Buster and a posse of deputies and mine guards were cornered in the Hecla mine and in danger of extermination.

Shipping Arms to Mines.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 28.--Two large shipments of arms and ammunition had been sent within the past four days from Charleston, W. Va., to the Colorado coal fields was reported here today.

It was said that on Saturday the Cabla Creek Consolidated Coal company consigned to "H. Felts, Trinidad," 18,000 cartridges and that on Monday a machine gun and 10,000 rounds of ammunition were shipped to "H. W. Krebs."
