Mrs. A. H. Dodd will speak on "Art."

The club at this time is also closing its year's work in the various classes. Excellent progress has been made in these, composed of two art classes in charge of Mrs. Dodd; two classes in "Drama," conducted by Mrs. Kirk and Mrs. A. S. Kazmarek. The political study class, under Mrs. R. C. Cartwright, and the current literature class, in charge of Mrs. Elliott.

Present officers are: Mrs. Richard Cartwright, president; Mrs. P. A. Elliott, vice-president; Mrs. Clarence Hamilton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. G. Sargent, treasurer; Mrs. A. S. Kazmarek, financial secretary, with Mrs. C. P. Bishop, Mrs. W. C. Knighton and Miss Mattie Beatty, directors.

Through the efforts of the club, interest was awakened which secured for Salem its city library, and also its public rest room. Plans for work for the following year will be along the lines of general civic improvement.

Miss Mary Schultz, Salem's brilliant young violinist, has been asked to appear on the program of a musicale to be given by George Hoskias Street, next Wednesday night, at Calvary Presbyterian church, in Portland.

This will be Miss Schultz's third appearance in Portland during the present musical season. On all previous occasions her work has met with the most enthusiastic approval of large metropolitan audiences, demonstrating the fact that she is not merely a local celebrity.

The approaching concert is one of a popular series which are being given to inspire a greater degree of interest in higher class music.

Coming as very delightful news to a host of Salem friends is the announcement that Miss Bessie Schultz, is expected to arrive home the latter part of this month.

Miss Schultz is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Schultz, and with the exception of the past two years has always made her home in Salem. During her absence she has taken up Playground instruction work, and it was owing to her wish to personally secure her diploma in this work that she postponed her home coming until this latter date.

She is a young woman of unusual talents and ability, and has qualified to do efficient work in many lines, but will probably, henceforth be exclusively identified with child-welfare work.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoagg are receiving felicitations, upon the arrival of a little daughter, Saturday morning, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maplethorpe in East Salem. Mr. and Mrs. Hoagg reside near Scotts Mills.

Mrs. Neimyer is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Liston of this city. She is a young woman of many charming accomplishments, and was popular with a large circle of young people.

Mr. Neimyer is secretary and manager of the Peace River Mercantile Company of Edmonton, where they will make their future home.

Miss Gladys Turner of McCoy was a week-end guest of the S. A. Riggs' on Center street.

OLNEY MAY HEAD BOARD

PERSONNEL TO BE MADE PUBLIC WHEN ANSWER IS RECEIVED BY PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 4.—President Wilson was understood today to be awaiting an answer from Richard Olney to his offer of the chairmanship of the federal reserve bank board created by the new currency law.

As soon as he hears from Olney, it was said, he would make public his choice of selections to the board. That the offer was made was known positively. It was thought more than likely, however, that Olney would decline. He is 79 years old.

Before Thursday the president must send to the senate the names of the five men who, with the secretary of the treasury and the comptroller of the currency, will constitute the board. Their speedy confirmation was expected.

Presidential Private Secretary Tamm would not say who had been chosen but he did not deny that offers had been made to Olney and to Paul Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

It was understood that a Chicago man and one from the Pacific coast will be included among the appointees. The law prohibits the appointment of two members from the same reserve district.

Clothes Are Only as Good as They Prove to Be

But if at the start, they embody the best fabric, tailoring and fashion, the end is certain to prove all that one could wish for or expect. All standard made clothing, wherever sold, possess these qualities, but not all are sold by the Cash Selling plan, which is a salient feature that economical men should bear in mind. Try us on this point—the suits will prove all right.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Newsboy's Dog Won a License.

The Dog Stood by His Master.

DADDY knew that Jack and Evelyn were never tired of hearing about dogs. And he had a true story for them. When they heard they were to hear a true dog story they were so happy.

"There was once," began daddy, "a little dog who was allowed to live without a license. You know that every city dog has to have a yearly license. His master or mistress has to pay $2 for this license.

"The master of this little dog was lame. He had no daddy and only a mother who was not strong and who was growing old. Upon the master depended the food and living of his mother and himself. For a living he sold newspapers. One day he was at his usual place selling newspapers when along came a little brown dog who greeted him so cheerfully and jumped up so affectionately that he at once became an addition to the family.

"Every morning after that the little dog would stand by his master at the corner and bark a 'Good morning!' to the people who bought newspapers from his master.

"As his master was poor, he had never been able to buy his little dog a license, and, as the dog had come to him of his own free will, he thought perhaps it would not be necessary.

"But, alas, the authorities of the town did not think so! They insisted that the dog must have a license or they must take him away.

"The boy told them that he had to support his mother and that the money didn't come in so very fast selling the newspapers and that he didn't know when he would ever have $2 to spare.

"Then the authorities said that they would have to take the dog, and at this the boy could not keep back the great big tears. The little brown dog crept nearer to his master, not knowing what the men were talking about, but seeing that his master was unhappy and wishing to comfort him in his little dog way, for dogs, more than any other animals, understand when their beloved masters or mistresses are sad and do all they can to comfort them.

"Then the boy told the men how his little dog had come to him. He said no one had ever greeted him and wanted to come to him as this little dog had. And, oh, he had been so faithful!

"The boy could not believe that the men would take away his little companion, the only playmate he had.

"Some kind people overheard the conversation. They told the men that they had plenty of money and quickly paid for the license of the little brown dog. The boy then almost cried for joy.

"So the little dog wagged his tail when his master told him to thank the kind people, for he saw quickly that his master once more was happy."

THE LANCASHIRE MOORS.

Sing, hey for the moorlands, wild, lone and stern. Where the moss creepeth softly all under the fern, Where the heather-flower sweetens the lone highland lea, And the mountain wind whistles so fresh and so free! I've wandered o'er landscapes embowered with flowers The richest, the rarest, in greenest of bowers, Where the throstle's sweet vesper at summer day's close, Shook the coronal dew on the rim of the rose; But, oh, on the hills where the heather cock springs From his nest in the bracken, with dew on his wings! I've lingered by streamlets that water green plains, I've mused in the sunlight of shady old lanes, Where the mill breath of evening came sweetly and slow From the green rocks where blue-bells and primroses grow; But, oh, the wild hills that look up at the skies, Where the green brakers wave to the wind as it flies! —Edwin Waugh.

THE ENGINEER.

Oh, when I feel my engine werve As o'er strange rails we fare, I strain my eyes around the curve For what awaits me there. When swift and free she carries me Through yards unknown at night, I look along the line to see That all the lamps are white.

The blue light marks the crippled car, The green light signals slow; The red light is a danger light, The white light, "Let her go," Again the open fields we roam, And when the night is fair I look up in the starry dome And wonder what is there.

For who can speak of those who dwell Behind the curving sky? No man has ever lived to tell Just what it means to die, Swift toward life's terminal I trend, The run seems short tonight; God only knows what's at the end— I hope the lamps are white. —Cy. Warman.
