BY MOLLIE RUNCOEN.

Mrs. B. F. Kaise, of Macleay, with her guest, Mrs. Clara H. Waldo, of Portland, motored over to Salem yesterday and spent the day with one of Mrs. Waldo's old time friends, Mrs. Mary Howard, on East State street.

Mrs. Waldo is one of the most loved women of the state, having been personally interested in whatever was for its upbuilding. She has traveled extensively and spent much time abroad, but has still found time to be intimately identified with Oregon's educational, social, club and industrial welfare, and has done work of inestimable value in each of these lines.

She has been especially successful in her work among the granges of Oregon, and will be the honor guest of Macleay grange Friday, when she will meet many life-long friends, including many Oregon pioneers and their families, who will come from all parts of the famous Waldo Hills, where the located the magnificent acreages and beautiful country home of the Waldo estate.

Mrs. Waldo is entirely recovered from her operation of some months ago in San Francisco, and is thoroughly enjoying her visit with old friends amid the delightfully intimate surroundings in this lovely May-time season.

Today Mrs. Waldo is the guest of the O. A. Noyes' at their lovely country place, "Twin Oaks," near Mrs. Waldo's old home. Mrs. Noyes' guests are her sisters, Mrs. G. W. Gale, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. W. L. Cummings, of Salem, and Mrs. A. J. Patton, of Macleay; Mrs. B. Kaise, and Mrs. T. O. Bates, also of Macleay.

Mrs. Waldo will probably return to her Portland home Sunday.

One of the most pleasant of the May day exercises in celebration of the advent of the month of flowers, was held at the Kimball college of theology, Monday afternoon from 2 o'clock until 5, by the ladies of the East Central circle of the First M. E. church, when they entertained the ladies of the seven other circles. It was a May day affair in every respect, and the spirit of the occasion was entered into by these older women with a spontaneity and enthusiasm that closely rivaled that displayed by the younger set.

Mrs. H. D. Kimball threw open her lovely home for the afternoon's entertainment, but the exercises were held in the chapel of the college, and were original and interesting.

The color motif in decorating was in lavender and white, elements, snow-balls, combined with quantities of purple wild flowers, being used.

The program was extemporaneous, and afforded much amusement. The guests were divided into groups according to the months in which they were born, and each was asked to furnish something original for the program. These revealed ingenuity of the different sets and caused much amusement.

Luncheon was served in May baskets, two in each basket, decked also in lavender and white. The partners were secured by matching out quotations.

The climax of the afternoon was the crowning of Mrs. Burdick as May queen, the request especially honoring her birthday.

The whole affair was essentially informal, and necessarily the more thoroughly enjoyable.

Miss Lurah Margaret Himes, of Portland, became the bride of Edward Arthur Albrecht, at the bride's parent's home last Wednesday evening, Rev. Luther Dyott officiating.

After a visit to friends in the east they will be at home to friends at 870 East Everett street.

Mrs. Albrecht is the daughter of

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Himes, who are known throughout the state. The Oregonian has the following interesting item regarding Mr. Himes and his work:

Mr. Himes, the bride's father, is one of the best-known men in Oregon. He is a pioneer of Portland, having come here in October, 1853, across the plains from Illinois. In 1864 he was employed as a compositor by The Oregonian and continued in the printing business until January 9, 1899, when he was made assistant secretary of the Oregon Historical society, which position he still holds. He is a member of the American Historical association and has been secretary of the Oregon Pioneer association for the past 28 years. Mrs. Himes is also a pioneer of Oregon, coming with her parents from New Haven, Conn., via the isthmus, in 1838.

Mr. and Mrs. Himes were married on Christmas eve, 1866, in Salem, on the 30th anniversary of Mrs. Himes' parents' wedding.

Miss Himes is the ninth in direct descent of Sergeant Edward Riggs, who was a soldier in the Pequot war, 1837, in Connecticut. Her ancestors took part in the war of the revolution.

Mrs. Carey F. Martin and little daughter, Frances Mattie, returned home Sunday night from Idaho, where Mrs. Martin was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Frances J. Smith.

Miss Gladys Cartwright was a weekend guest of her sister, Constance, at the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority house in Eugene, returning home Sunday evening.

Among the out-of-town guests present at the May day exercises at Wilamette university, some staying over the week-end, were the following former students: Mrs. Edgar Martin (Alta Altman), Portland, who is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Altman; Miss Maurine Sampson, of Portland, the guest of her sister, Miss Hallie Sampson, a student at U. W.; Miss Mabel Magness, of McMinnville; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Booth (Miss Jean Sampson), of Portland.

Invitations are out for a "wild goose party," to be given Saturday evening by Miss Gertrude Eakin, Miss Eva Hogue and Miss Ruth Hodge.

The Sewing society of the Woman's Relief Corps gave a silver tea at the residence of Mrs. Katie Schott, on Thursday afternoon. There was a large attendance and the money realized will be used for the relief work of the society.

Scottish broom and the national colors were used as decorations and lent a most pleasing effect.

Guests of the afternoon were: Messrs. James Palmer, Jones, Kaup, Millard, Cummings and Talston; Misses Cummings, Fairchild and Clark.

The following program was given: Piano duet, Miss Rena Schott and Miss Ola Clark; tenor solo, Mr. Jacob Schott; mixed quartet, Messrs. Henry and Jacob Schott, Mrs. Clark, Miss Schott.

Superintendent and Mrs. J. A. Churchill, with Superintendent and Mrs. E. F. Carlton, were guests of the Principals' club of Polk county at the Gail hotel, during their stay in Dallas, the latter part of the week, while attending the club's last meeting and banquet.

Mrs. Hallie Parrish Hinges has been asked to be the leading soloist at the Caledonian society's annual gathering at Athena, May 23 and 24. This will be Mrs. Hinges' second appearance at these well known entertainments. They are always largely attended by people from all over the state, and the program will be presented by people well

HOME GARDENS BEING BOOMED BY EXPERTS

Vegetables Pay Better Than Flowers, Says Department of Agriculture.

ONE-HALF ACRE WILL RAISE $100 WORTH IN ONE YEAR

City Dweller at One Time in His Life Is Enthusiastic About Chickens.

Washington, May 5.—The department of agriculture is booming the home vegetable garden. Every suburbanite would be better off in devoting his time more to development of edibles than to monkeying around with flowers in the plat back of his bungalow, according to the department's reports.

A half-acre devoted to various kinds of garden crops will easily supply a family with $100 worth of vegetables during the year. A bountiful supply of fresh vegetables close at hand, however, is of more importance even than the money value. The department has just issued a handy little book telling all needful things about the home garden.

First of all, the booklet advises that the land have sufficient fall to drain off surplus water during heavy rains, but not so much fall that the soil is washed away. The garden surface should not contain depressions where puddles can remain. A good fence around the plot is indispensable. The soil should be well plowed up and pulverized. Hand-spading is unnecessary.

Enthusiastic About Chickens. Nearly every city dweller sooner or later gets enthusiastic on the subject of chicken raising. So do the country dwellers, for that matter. There has been many wonderful stories of fortunes made out of chickens and egg production. But the prospective chicken raiser must learn his work and do things scientifically, if he expects to get profits.

One of the first things to be learned about chicken raising, in the opinion of the department of agriculture, is the importance of proper housing for the fowls. The department has just made public in a little booklet, experts' recommendations for a poultry house that is suitable to practically every climate.

Be it known there are two popular ways in which to raise poultry—the "intensive" and the "colony" systems. The first claims to have steps, long stationary houses are used. It is easier, however, to keep the birds healthy and to reproduce stock under the second system, the department believes.

Under the colony plan the fowls are allowed free range, the houses, which hold about 100 hens each, being placed from 200 to 500 feet apart, so that stock will not kill the grass.

This system may be adapted to severe winter conditions by drawing the colony houses together in a convenient place at the beginning of winter. The "intensive" system is more suited for hens used solely for the production of market eggs than for those used to breed stock.

Fences mean an outlay of money and this outlay is more or less continuous, as they must be maintained after being installed. There should be as few fences as possible, dividing the lots and the yards as land can be kept "sweet" more easily if not fenced, and fresh, sweet land is a valuable asset in poultry raising.

On good soil a greensward may be kept up by allowing 200 to 250 square feet of land per bird. This means 217 or 174 birds to the acre. Plymouth Rocks and the other heavy variety mean birds in small yards require fences 5 to 6 feet high, while a fence 6 or 7 feet high is necessary for leg-horns.

All poultry buildings and fences should be painted or whitewashed. The latter is the cheapest of all paints and

RASTUS GETS A FREE BATH FROM FIREMEN

Nothing goes unclean around the Salem fire department. This is a fact which was made known this morning, with a fair example to substantiate it. It seems that "Rastus," a very black young man, who came to this city but recently from parts unknown, has been making the fire station his headquarters in day time, and, according to the fire boys, he was not overly clear or neat in his general appearance. Consequently, Rastus was escorted to the station bathroom and summarily dumped into a tub full of clean, warm water.

Dutch Cleanser, Borax, Gold Dust Twines, two horse brushes, a window cleaner and a broom were then put in use and within a short time Rastus emerged looking pale but hopeful. He fairly glistened when given a finishing wash under the shower, and he appeared about like a young colt when the fire boys rubbed him down with a horse blanket.

Rastus has left the fire station. He does not stop there any more. But there is a decidedly different look about the colored lad and he somewhat resembles Jack Johnson in fighting trim since the firemen gave him the beauty treatment.

JUDGE ELGIN GIVES MAN FIVE DAYS OF EMPLOYMENT

When Police Judge Elgin called the roll this morning, a husky young fellow who gave his name as Fred Massey, slouched out of the jail and taking his place before the court, listened to a complaint which charged him with the misdemeanor of begging on the streets. Massey was arrested last night by Patrolman Fisher and he told the judge this morning that he was broke and hungry, and when arrested was "trying to lift a few dimes for coffee and snails."

As usual, Judge Elgin sized up his man and a few questions put to Massey developed the fact that he had been working in a saw mill in Southern Oregon and drawing something like $25, quit the job. He showed the judge a little scratch on his hand and tried to explain that he was "injured" while playing ball after work. He tried further to explain that he has been searching for something to do since then, but was unable to make connections with anything suitable.

"Well, my friend, I guess I'll just give you one day in which to wash yourself, and four more to work for the city," said the court, and Massey re-entered the jail.

The Journal want ad way is the up-to-date business method, and it never fails to work. Try it now.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

When the Wooden Lions Talked Aloud.

DADDY had never forgotten a dream he had had when he was a little boy. He asked Jack and Evelyn if they would like to hear it, and, of course, they were delighted at the prospect of hearing one of daddy's childhood dreams.

"As a little boy," began daddy, "I greatly admired lions. Whenever I went to the zoo I would spend almost all my time looking at these animals.

"One day I had been to the zoo, and, of course, had spent all my time watching the lions. When I got home late in the afternoon I was very sleepy.

"In our house there was a table which was held up by four wooden lions with shields. They sat very straight upon their haunches, and their shields they held straight out in front of them.

"Perhaps these lions had heard me talk about the live lions in the zoo and had meant to talk to me for some time. They saw that I fell asleep in the big chair beside them before going up to my own room and going to bed.

"I couldn't have been long going to sleep, for almost immediately the four wooden lions began to talk to me. They stood just as straight as ever, but they talked with a great deal of energy.

"You think," one of them began, "that those lions up in the zoo are so wonderful. Why, they don't compare with us wooden lions! Now, we do something worth while, while they only sleep and eat and roar just to make people think they are impressive and fine.
