FRUITLAND NOTES.

Last week Mrs. Mary Odell, of McNamara, Mrs. Annada Wyriek, of Oregon City, and Mr. R. T. Seal, of Coombs, Mo., visited at the home of C. and Mrs. Mack Standifer.

August Doney has gone to Grants to look after some mining interests.

M. M. Ransom is having a porch added to his residence.

Bert Breddler is busy on the Nelson place, which he has rented the present season.

Fred Doney has made a trade with E. Loose of the Capital Transfer company of Salem, for a stock ranch 100 acres near Drain, Douglas county.

Mr. Doney in the deal put in his acres here for $2,000.

The berry outlook is good, in fact our gardens promised well.

We have had two round bonnet meetings here lately. Much warm air was vent out for and against. The round bonnet people appear to be greatly in the majority. Friday night Col. Hofer and Rev. Marshall, of Salem, boosted the bonnet. Your correspondent was present, but was told the meeting was a rather punk affair. Friday evening the school house was packed to the doors, all standing room being occupied, to listen to a debate on the bonnet question between Messrs. Waterbury and Wheat, of Salem, for the bonnet, and E. A. Boyington, principal of the Salem schools, and Claude Branson against. Each side made interesting statements, but it was plain to see that a big crowd was with the anti-bonnet. Prof. Boyington put up a strong argument which seemed to balk the bonneters a little. At the close of the debate a free-for-all or open forum was offered, and several took part, notably Mr. Peet, of Salem, who at the start told a few things about himself. He said he never made but one speech in his life and that was to the woman who became his wife. Said he had been from Indiana but seven months and admitted he did not know Oregon conditions as well as he might, but he favored the bonnet this working somewhat in the dark. He seemed to be a candid, well-meaning man, but something about Oregon, in relation to the bonnet, was pretty far from the mark for a newcomer. Mr. Doney, of the school board, made a strong talk against the bonnet, as did Mr. Schunk, of the Bethel district.

POWDERY SCAB—A NEW AND DANGEROUS POTATO DISEASE

Powdery scab of the potato is a European disease which doubtless followed imported potatoes before the quarantine law went into effect. Every possible effort is being made to prevent this disease making inroads on our potato industry, and the cooperation of all interested in this crop is much needed in dealing with this new potato malady. The department is issuing a bulletin (No. 82) entitled "Powdery Scab of Potatoes," which thoroughly explains the disease and gives all the practical advice available at the present regarding its control.

Powdery scab does not attack the tubers of the potato vines above the ground. It is primarily a disease of the young tubers, which develop as they mature in the ground. The disease is made apparent by small, slightly raised pimples and a slight discoloration of the surface. When cut open, the infected areas appear faintly purplish and extend from approximately the outermost cells of the tuber toward the deeper layers.

The "powdery-scab" fungus, if conditions are favorable, may eat large cavities into the immature tubers. Besides consuming parts of the tubers, it stunts their further growth and causes them to be deformed.

Last spring the department imported 18 varieties of potatoes from Scotland for seed purposes. All were found to be infected with powdery scab and had to be condemned. Nine varieties were imported from England for similar purposes and were all infected in the same manner. The disease has been found on potatoes from Belgium, Norway, and Sweden. On the potato's native heath—South America—the disease has been found. It was reported in several Provinces of Canada in 1913.

From Canada the disease has made some headway across the border into northern Maine. This is the one place where there is real danger at present from the infection, but active measures are being taken to drive out the disease and to prevent the shipment of diseased potatoes to other sections.

ANGORA GOAT RAISING PROFITABLE IN AMERICA

The raising of Angora goats in the United States is now a demonstrated success. The industry is indeed so well established here that growers need not be inconvenienced by the action of South Africa in prohibiting the exportation of Angora, for the quality of good blood in this country is already sufficient to meet all requirements. In the opinion of experts the best American fleeces now equal any grown in South Africa. As a minor, the original home of the Angora goat.

Although nearly every state in the Union now possesses its flocks, the southwest and the northwest are especially well adapted to the industry, in particular the large areas recently logged off in the northwest. These the Angora not only thrives himself but helps to clear away the brush which, if allowed to grow unchecked, might easily become a dangerous fire trap. Thus it is often said that the Angora wools and pays for its board at the same time.

It is paying more and more, for the value of the fleece or mohair is increasing steadily. Formerly the use of mohair depended so largely upon the prevailing fashion that its price varied widely from year to year. This condition, however, is rapidly changing as new uses for mohair are continually found, from automobile tops and table covers to dress goods and curled false hair, and today the grower is assured of a reasonably steady market. The price of course varies with the quality, the very best fleeces bringing on an average from 42 to 55 cents a pound.

The Journal Want Ad is like a colonel in a regiment because it directs a whole army of workers and commands the situation.

SLEEVELESS COATS FOR EVENING WEAR

By Margaret Mason.
(Written for the United Press.)
Fashion says our coat and frock must be sleeveless, what a shock! This will be to Sara Brown, Quite the smartest girl in town, For she's often, I believe, Fond of laughing in her sleeve.

New York, May 15.—Not only are evening gowns absolutely guileless of even a hint of a sleeve, but even the coats have the habit. Most of the smartest loose wraps, and capes and coats are sleeveless and slip their empty arms over a fair feminine arm with all the careless abandon of a perfectly good masculine waistcoat. What is lost at one extremity, however, is now made up at the other, for proteobin petticoats have returned again to the field, or rather to unfold slender ankles in scant white ruffles of sheerest organdy or Paris muslin. They are so narrow and so thin that they neither add bulk to the ankle line nor hide any of it. They quaintly resemble the old-style pantaloons as they peep out from under the short ruche edged taffeta skirts of the moments, and are indeed a far cry from the petticoats of yore.

Indeed, in spite of the fact that they really are petticoats, they are never designed as such by the designers and dressmakers, but answer the name of undershirts or pantaler frills.

Appropos of not calling a spade a spade, you must never make the shocking mistake of calling a separate waist a waist—mercy no, Clarissa, it's a blouse. Whatever is in a name, in this case there isn't much in a blouse when it comes to material. Just two layers of chiffon or a single thickness or rather thinness of bookishin hemstitched around the open throat line, down the front and around the plain three-quarter slightly flaring sleeves, makes up some of the chickest new models.

For an ornate touch they rely on a fantastic girle and gorgeously tinted, usually with velveteen, cuffs and collar of handkerchief linen promise great popularity for the summer.

Always the bolts or girle plays a striking part in the effective ensemble of the blouse. The favorite Roman stripes are shown in smart shirtings of both silk and madras for the more tailored blouses and those to be worn with the sport skirts and coats.

It is no longer a question of "button, button, who's got the button?" since every woman seems to have every button tacked on to every available space or cranny of some one or two of her summer costumes.

Jet buttons are very smart on frocks and suits of buff-toned taffeta, but ball-shaped buttons covered in the same taffeta as the gown are the chosen trimming in a straight row down the center of the new tight-fitting blouse models. Cord buttons are also a favorite garnishment, particularly on voile and other cotton frock material frocks.

Your dress may lack a few little essentials like sleeves or even a wide waist, for in many instances a girle extended above the bust line is as good as a regular bodice any evening, but let it lack buttons and it is sartorially damned.

Leaping lightly from buttons to buttonholes, it is interesting to note that the bound and eorded buttonholes are now things of the past, and the good old honest-to-goodness normal buttonhole worked in thread has returned to its own place. Plackets also now have their proper place and appear as they should according to best pocket regulations in the middle of the back of the skirt.

Even if there is no seam there, a slit is made for the placket anyway, so anxious is it to return to its old home after a wandering life for the last two or three seasons, and transitory settings in the front of the skirt at the side or on the hip.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."

Gossip From Washington

UPON one occasion when Mrs. Kern, wife of the senator from Indiana, was on a visit to the capitol Senator John Sharp Williams was introduced to her. After the usual exchange of greetings the gentleman from Mississippi took gracefully to Mrs. Kern and inquired, "Madam, did you marry this man of your own free will?"

Upon assurance that this was the case he remarked gallantly:

"I think John has done what an old darkey on the home place said I had done when I brought my wife back home a bride.

"The old nurse met us at the gate, and when I told her, 'This is your Miss Betty now—my wife,' the old darkey looked Miss Betty over very admiringly. She then turned her shining black face to me and exclaimed, 'Massa John Sha'p, 's been henh fo' three generatious o' brides; but, yoh, sub, yoh has jest outmarried yo'self!'"

A while ago Admiral Dewey wished to purchase a riding horse and on inquiry found an animal in Virginia which he was assured was a thoroughbred.

"A few days after," said the hero of Manila bay, "I was astride my bargain just outside of Washington when he cast a shoe. I drew up at a blacksmith's shop, which was fortunately near, to have the damage repaired.

"Well, well, old boy," exclaimed the blacksmith, putting my prize familiarly, 'you back here?"

"That horse has never been here before," I said. "I have just purchased him from a dealer in Virginia. He is a young thoroughbred, fresh from the fields of Fauquier county."

"I don't like to contradict a gentleman," replied the blacksmith, "but the mounted policeman on this suburban beat rode that nag for nigh on a dozen years until he was sold by the police department last spring to some o' them horse sharps down in Virginia. Them fellows can do wonders with an old plug!"

The ancestors of Representative D. S. Church of California played quite a part in the civilization of California. The congressman's father and uncle went there years ago, when the San Joaquin valley was a desert. For hundreds of square miles this waste of sand and sagebrush extended.

The father and uncle camped one night where a mighty river rushed down out of the mountain. Here was water by the thousands of gallons rushing away in waste. There lay thousands of acres of land thirsting for its touch to transform itself into a paradise.

So the Churches went to work on their dream. And now by irrigation ditches, through which the river waters the land, this ancient desert has become a wealthy agricultural district.

When Representative Simeon D. Fess of Ohio was a youth he had a passion for reading. But there was a lot of work to do on the farm, and his brothers chided him for "wasting his time" with books. They said so much along this line that Fess finally did his reading in secret. He did not shirk his duties on the farm; neither did he neglect his mental development, and now he is known as one of the scholars of congress.

Representative Carter Glass, apropos of the new currency bill, said the other day:

"The banks now nod that the currency bill is for their own good as well as for the people. The banks at first were wrongfully enraged. They were like Smith.

"As Smith's train started for the west he stuck his head far out of the window in his excitement, whereupon a brakeman called:

"Put your head in there, or it'll be knocked off."

"Knocked off, hey?" roared Smith, shaking his fist at the brakeman. "Well, it won't be knocked off by anybody the size of you, you sawed off, hammered down pigmy!"

A new member of congress from Michigan is Fritsels O. Lindquist. His parents were Swedish immigrants to a small lumbering town in Wisconsin, and he left school when in the third grade. His youth was spent in working around lumber yards, docks and hotels, and at last he wound up in Greenville, Mich.

Ten years ago Representative Lindquist was pushing barrows of feed around a store in that town for a dollar and a half a day, and after a few months at that he saved the sum of $40. With this he set up in business in a small store for himself. At the end of two years he began to plan a big business of which he is now the head.

If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging-down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation, and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast, or a general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the danger and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember, it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and does not interfere with daily work. If health is worth asking for, then accept my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Woman's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers post-paid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me, send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address,
