"MALIGNANTLY HOSTILE."

HERE is something printed originally—within a few days—in The Wall Street Journal, and there is no reason to question the facts narrated:

"Some weeks ago one of the big banking houses received an inquiry from a British investor regarding the advisability of investment in American securities; but although the house encouraged the idea, and sent a number of suggestions, no buying will result, as may be inferred from the following acknowledgement: 'I thank you for your esteemed favors and for the particulars of the securities, but in reply I beg to state that after consultation with my bank friends I have decided that in view of the continued malignant hostility of your law-makers, national, state and city, to big business, however lawfully conducted, American securities for the time being should not be bought for investment.'"

The situation of that British investor is much worse than it looks. Where can he invest his money? In Great Britain, his own country, he is up against Lloyd-George, whose "malignant hostility" to capital in all its forms is notorious. Over in France the only politician who apparently can form a ministry capable of surviving more than 24 hours is a Socialist.

And the Socialists beat the world in "malignant hostility" to large corporate enterprises and accumulated wealth in general.

Canada is flat as a field for investment, while Australia seethes with radicalism and is ruled by labor parties.

The investor who wants a nice, safe place for his money where it cannot be menaced by politicians and law-makers "malignantly hostile" to "big business" may have to get off the earth. Another way of stating the case is that railing at government gets business nowhere.

The dispatches Wednesday told of the restoring to sight of a woman who for years had been almost totally blind, by treatment with radium. Dr. Ege, who reports the case and who is treating several other patients, says he hopes to have equally good results in these cases and asserts that radium will undoubtedly be the means of making the blind see. Of course there are some cases of blindness that are hopeless, but the doctor is enthusiastic in his belief that radium will accomplish wonders in this line. Too much confidence should not be placed in the remedy until its work has been thoroughly proved. That it is a cure for cancer, which was so loudly asserted, remains to be demonstrated, though there is no doubt it has proved beneficial in many cases.

Another of the law's vagaries is shown in the case of William H. C. Lewis, 16 years old, who was arrested Tuesday at Portland for running over a cow with an automobile. He was taken before Judge Stevenson and by him turned over to the juvenile court. Had William been older and wiser, he would not have run over the cow. He would have run over a man, woman or baby, and been excused because they did not get out of his way. You see a cow is not supposed to be capable of contributory negligence or of knowing the law, no more than is the judge, and so needs the protection of the strong arm of the blind, stone blind, goddess.

The Oregonian has a rather lengthy editorial in its Wednesday number on the subject of "Pork," and gives its ideas of what is meant by that term as applied to the river and harbor appropriations. Cutting out the useless words and superfluous fling at the defunct Lafferty, it is inferred from the remainder of the editorial that "Pork" means any appropriation for rivers and harbors that does not inure to the benefit of Portland. All above Portland is "pork," and below is caviar. Portland is the dividing line between "pork" and beans.

The more one reads the terse and vigorous policies of the Oregonian, which, while objecting to all the administration has done, has never in a single instance pointed out what it or anyone else would or could have done differently, the more one regrets the mistake the republicans made in not nominating, and the country in not electing the Oregonian editor president in place of Wilson. Everything then would have been lovely and the goose suspended altitudinously.

Jim Hill has been made a "Doctor of Law." There might be some question as to his understanding the science generally, but if the government would let him diagnose the railroad troubles and prescribe for them, it is a safe bet the old man would administer a dose that would get a move on the railroad business, though it might send the country to the hospital indefinitely.

Among the dispatches not printed by those papers criticizing and damning the last tariff bill is one that states that British owned railroads have just given orders to American mills for 30,000 tons of steel rails. This is a blow at American industries that should be loudly exploited by them.

A New York preacher says "the women are taking up the vices the men are discarding." Now if this minister will point out the vices, or one of them, which "the men are discarding," he will shed a great light on a vast solitude of impenetrable darkness.

The Tacoma Tribune expresses it with minute exactness and extreme fullness when it says: "The people of the United States, through the agency of Mr. Carnegie, have donated another $2,000,000 to certain semi-public institutions of Pittsburg."

THE ROUND-UP.

Pioneer's day was celebrated at Roseburg Tuesday with appropriate services. There was a big gathering and a very pleasant reunion.

George E. Cutler, aged 68, a prominent resident of Dallas, died at his home in that city Tuesday morning after a three weeks' illness.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has detailed the monitor Cheyenne and the submarines H-1, H-2 and H-3 to attend the Astoria regatta and Fourth of July celebration.

Senator Lane added and had passed an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill giving the Warm Springs Indians $100,000 for purchasing agricultural implements, and also an amendment making an appropriation of $15,000 for an addition to the assembly hall at Chemawa.

Struck by a cable while working in a logging camp near Scottsburg, Arthur Beaman was killed and his brother-in-law, who was working with him, was seriously injured. The accident occurred Monday and was caused by the cable parting.

Sheriff Rand, of Baker county, is following El. Fisher, who is suspected of shooting H. H. Stewart, ex-mayor of Copperfield, who is dying in a Baker hospital. Fisher has fled into the mountains of Walla Walla county and his flight is the principal fact on which the suspicion that he did the shooting is based.

Several parties have gone to Crater lake recently and it will be but a few days until the entire trip can be made by auto.

Lebanon's summer Chautauqua will begin Thursday. A tent will be pitched on the high school campus for it.

An examination into the Wolf Creek whipping and egg-throwing affair, when W. G. Smith was invited to leave that little place and stay left, shows that but one egg was thrown and that there was no whipping at all. There were a number of ladies in attendance at the social function, but all they did in the way of whipping was a collective tongue-lashing.

Medford's first cannery, built by subscription of local business men, will be opened for business July 1.

Portland has taken drastic steps to compel property-owners to keep their properties in respectable shape. It has employed a bunch of men and is now

HAS SOME EXCITEMENT.

The Corvallis Gazette-Times thus describes a busy day in that thrifty little city:

Yesterday was a lively day in Corvallis. At 11:30 a gasoline stove in the Farmers' hotel exploded and for a time that hostelry was in danger of destruction.

At 11 o'clock last night fire completely destroyed V. E. Falkner's two-story house on Arnold Way, cremated a dog therein, and gutted out an adjoining house owned by Marshall Miller.

At 5:30 p. m., excitement was caused by the announcement of a small boy, Brookshire Wise, being drowned or lost in the woods near Colorado lake, and not until 12 o'clock was he found, asleep.

About 5 o'clock a colt hitched to a cart upset Chief of Police Wells on South Third street, tramped on him, ran over him, and strewn his remains around at such a rate that his face looks like a raw beefsteak today, and his right knee is in a mighty bad condition.

Just a few minutes before this accident, the Albany baseball team walked the Corvallis Comets, 4 to 3.

CAPITALIST CONVICTED ON STATUTORY CHARGE

Hillsboro, Ore., June 23.—Edward Naylor, a capitalist, was convicted on a statutory charge in the circuit court here last night. His defense was that Miss Martha Traver, his accuser, was employed in his home as a nurse.

There was considerable interest in the case, as Naylor was convicted on the same charge in this court a year ago and fined $300. He secured a reversal of the decision in the supreme court, which remanded the case back to the circuit court for another trial.

In the winter of 1910 Mr. Naylor was shot by Frank Loneragan as he entered his own yard after dark. For several months he lingered between life and death. Since that time, it is alleged, Miss Traver has been his companion.

Mr. Naylor has extensive property interests in Forest Grove.

QUESTION OF VOCATION PUZZLES

Tacoma, Wash., June 21.—What shall the state of Washington do to encourage vocational education? was the broad question taken up for discussion at the opening session here today of the vocational training commission. The program as announced by Mrs. Josephine Preston, state superintendent of schools, includes addresses by more than 50 of the state's most prominent educators, including Mrs. Preston, W. M. Kern, superintendent, Walla Walla; H. G. Lull, of the State university, Seattle; Professor F. O. Kreyger, of the State college; E. W. Olson, state labor commissioner, and A. P. Marsh, president State Federation of Labor.

Governor Lister presided at the opening of today's meeting in the commercial club rooms.

The Broad View

No doubt the girls deserve the rights for which they clamor, days and nights, and men should patient be and fair; I love the women passing well, but when they raise their "rebel yell" I'm glad my granny isn't there. The women ought to have a hand in governing this happy land—they have that right, and more to spare; this cheerfully I grant each man—but when I see a puff parade, I'm glad Aunt Agnes isn't there. The dames, who help to bear the yoke, should have the right to chew and smoke and play cheap politics and swear; but when the wives neglect their homes, and chase around with busy jones, I'm glad my grand-niece isn't there. I'd like to see the women gain all blessings that they would obtain, and all imagined laurels wear; but when I think of politics, with all its cheap and sordid tricks, I'm glad my sister isn't there. Let others' sisters, aunts and wives go forth and sacrifice their lives, and resolute and paw the air; their sacred cause is all O. K., but I am thankful, every day, that Cousin Susan isn't there.

Americans, Woefully Extravagant, Disregard All Ordinary Demands For Economy and Thrift

By Representative J. HAMPTON MOORE of Pennsylvania

AMERICANS ARE A MONEY SPENDING MAD PEOPLE. THE DIAMONDS, RINGS, GOLD CHAINS AND OTHER ARTICLES OF JEWELRY WE BOUGHT FOR OUR SWEETHEARTS, WIVES AND DAUGHTERS DURING THE LAST FIVE YEARS FOOT UP A TOTAL THAT IS MORE THAN TWICE THE SUM SPENT BY THE UNITED STATES TO CONSTRUCT THE PANAMA CANAL. WE ARE SPENDING MORE THAN TWENTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR FOR CHEWING GUM ALONE. OUR NATIONAL TOBACCO HABIT BURNED APPROXIMATELY THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS LAST YEAR.

These are a few of the reasons for the high cost of living. The people should pay some attention to the ordinary demands for economy and reasonable habits of life.
