OVER 34 YEARS OF SUCCESSFUL MERCHANDISING IN SALEM

OFFICIAL PREDICTS BUSINESS REVIVAL

Southern Pacific Official Predicts an Era of Unexampled Prosperity—Big Immigration Expected Next Year.

John M. Scott, general passenger agent for the Southern Pacific, says that Oregon is about to experience a period of wonderful prosperity. He said: "Our business in the state of Oregon during the past month showed a substantial increase over that of the same month last year. "I attribute this increase to the fact that people are beginning to realize that good times are imminent. We can't get away from them. I believe I travel throughout the state as much as any other man, and I have been impressed very much on my recent trip by the fact that everybody is beginning to look for a return of prosperity as a natural outcome of general business and crop conditions. "A second reason for the increase in our business is that our electric service now reaches many people. In fact, we have been forced to run six trains where we formerly ran one steam train. And even then we some times can hardly handle all the people. "The indications are that a number of mills along our lines which have been shut down for some time will be opened soon. It is notable that all the towns along our electric lines are building up."

"Next year I expect that fully half a million tourists will pass through the Willamette Valley to and from the San Francisco Fair. Many of these people will undoubtedly be struck with the possibilities of the country so that they will settle here. I anticipate a second era of immigration to follow the fair such as we had in 1905 after the Lewis and Clark Exposition. "Crops conditions as I have seen them in all parts of the state are, with the exception of the prairie crop, very good. The farmers are becoming too busy making money to worry about hard times. Whatever financial stress there has been we have ourselves made by continually talking about it. We shall soon be too busy to talk and hard times will be a thing of the past."

Mrs. F. A. Stein and her sons, Edwin and Robert, of Miles City, Montana, arrived in Salem this morning. They were called here by the serious illness of Mrs. Stein's father, C. E. Brown, of 480 North Twenty-first street.

Mrs. L. G. Hall, who fell recently in South Salem as the result of a broken board in a sidewalk and injured her side to such an extent that blood poisoning set in, has been at the Willamette sanatorium for the past week. When she fell she had her arms full of groceries and staggered along the walk for 20 or 30 feet, then went down, striking the walk on her side. A few days after the accident while her thigh was still bruised it was scratched, with the result that blood poison set in. She was getting along nicely under the treatment of the doctors up to yesterday.

Blowing a big five-ton wheel 19 feet in diameter and with a 3-foot pulley surface to smithereens in order to reduce it to scrap so that it can be made into something else, is not often done in Salem. But that was what was taking place last night when explosions at the rear of the Salem Iron Works shook up the neighborhood and caused crowds to gather. The men were "bollixing" the big wheel with dynamite. The first explosion shook things up pretty well, and the people began to gather. Two other explosions shattered the atmosphere and the crowd thickened like flies about a drop of syrup.

The jury in the case of J. W. Taylor against the Portland, Eugene & Eastern a personal damage suit for $1250 damages, was taken out on the street car to the scene of the accident at the corner of Twenty-first and Center street this morning. The car that is alleged to have struck Mr. Taylor was used to convey the jury to the scene of the alleged accident. Mr. Taylor claims that while in the employ of the Arenz construction company that as he was wheeling a wheelbarrow full of cement that the defendant's street car hit him and caused him to be unable to work for 100 days, for which he asked $250, and $1,000 additional for the suffering that he was compelled to undergo.

WELSH WINS

Round 10. Ritchie led with left and missed Welsh planted three heavy lefts to Ritchie's body. Ritchie twice tried left uppercut but missed both times. They clinched and again Welsh made Ritchie look like an amateur at infighting. The constant battering on his stomach was telling on Ritchie and he looked worried as he went to his corner. Welsh's round.

At the end of the tenth the right was Welsh's on points by a wide margin. Ritchie apparently realized his inability to cope with the Briton as a boxer and tried continuously for a knockout with right and left swings. His plan of attack has been absolutely frustrated by his wonderful footwork and defense of Welsh.

Round 11. Welsh rushed and planted a hard left to the jaw driving the champion to the ropes. The war-worn attack snatched victory from the Welshman's hands. Ritchie recovered instantly and forced the fighting, weaving away with rights and lefts, forcing Welsh to break ground and cover up. Welsh was apparently nettled at the sudden recovery of Ritchie and gave way before the latter's smashing attacks. Even round.

Round 12. Welsh led with straight left to Ritchie's jaw and the champion came back with a similar punch. Ritchie swung hard left to the body. Welsh sent left to the champion's stomach in a clinch. Ritchie broke quickly and forced the fighting, but Welsh's footwork kept him out of harm's way. Welsh outboxed the champion at the last of the round and a shade at the finish.

Round 13. Ritchie rushed Welsh into the latter's corner with smashing rights and left blows to the body forcing him to clinch. Welsh jabbed with left for Ritchie's jaw but Ritchie covered up and forced Welsh to the defensive. Ritchie swung right to Welsh's eye and followed with two hard lefts to the jaw. Welsh appeared to weaken under the champion's rushes and it was Ritchie's round by a wide margin.

Round 14. Ritchie rushed matters in an effort to keep the lead he gained in the previous round. Welsh fought back desperately and there was much punishment delivered by both men. Ritchie jabbed Welsh with his left and swung his right across, connecting safely. The punch hurt the Welshman. Welsh battered Ritchie's stomach as the latter fought frantically out of a clinch. Ritchie again swung his right heavy side to Welsh's head. Welsh was fighting toe to toe with the champion at the bell. Ritchie's round.

Round 15. They rushed into a clinch and Welsh was willing to hold but Ritchie broke away. Ritchie appeared the fresher of the two and shaded Welsh on an exchange of short arm body blows on the breakaway. Welsh tried a moment later with a hard left to the jaw which shook Ritchie. They clinched and both appeared tired. Even round.

Round 16. Ritchie forced Welsh about the ring with jabs to the body and swings for the head. Welsh put left to the jaw and broke as Ritchie forced the mill. Welsh tried right for the head and missed. They mixed and Ritchie outboxed the Britisher. Ritchie put right and left to body. Welsh swung right sharply to Ritchie's ear. Ritchie forced the fighting to the end of the round and appeared much the fresher. Ritchie's round.

Round 18. Ritchie rushed Welsh to a neutral corner, swinging alternate lefts and rights to the body. Ritchie outboxed Welsh in a mid-ring mixup. Ritchie landed two hard left jabs to the jaw. Welsh clinched and held. Welsh weakening. Ritchie forcing fight at the bell. Ritchie's round.

Round 20. Ritchie rushed Freddie, trying by brilliant boxing to make up his sorry showing in the last few rounds. Ritchie tried desperately for a knockout, and though he straightened the Welshman twice was unable to connect with rights to the jaw. Ritchie was forced to the ropes by Welsh but the latter's rally was shortlived and the champion was pressing Freddie back at the bell. It was an even round.

Decision on Points. Freddie Welsh tonight became the lightweight champion of the world on a decision awarded by Referee Corri at the end of the twentieth round of the fight between the British challenger and the Irish. Both were sore on their feet at the finish and Welsh was given the decision on points.

Ritchie lost his title as a result of trying for a knockout in the early rounds. The clever Welshman stacked up a lead on points during the early part of the fight, beating the American by his marvelous footwork.

eastern points where he gained his knowledge of motors and their accessories. He will install the Bowser tank device which means much to motorists because of its double-filtering and safety. A permit was granted for this installation by the city council last night.

CHARGE AGAINST WEIGELT SERIOUS

G. H. Weigelt was arrested this morning by Constable E. E. Cooper on the charge of assault with attempt to kill. He is the man who did the shooting several days ago down the river about two miles when the two Taylor boys took a boat from the shore and attempted to cross the river. He appeared in Justice Webster's court and pleaded not guilty to the charge. His hearing will be held here Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Weigelt, who is about 22 years of age and married, protested to the two Taylor boys against taking the boat away from the shore. They returned to the shore, beat him up, so he says, and then came to Salem after an officer. James Hartwell responded to the call and when he arrived at the scene was of the opinion that it was the boys who ought to be arrested instead. Weigelt took some pot shots, according to the story, at the Taylor boys after they had administered a beating to him. The affair will be tried in court Saturday morning.

John Graber of Graber Bros. company, had Casco, as his destination Saturday afternoon but didn't make it until one o'clock Sunday morning. The reason was that his roadster stripped the gears about 300 yards away from camp and he labored until the small morning hours without loading the car. He refused to be towed in, but left his car standing and joined the picnic party. There were three other machines in the party, those of P. E. Fullerton, Earl Anderson and Joseph Graber journeyed home with them. However, when he can supply "missing links" he will go to Casco and drive that "stand-pat" machine back.
