CHARLEY WHITE AND JOE AZEVEDO READY

Baseball Attendance Drops Off Until Leagues Are Badly Hit—Fans Refuse to Come Through.

By Hal Sheridan.

New York, Aug. 4.—Baseball, both organized and unorganized, is sick. Even the magnates admit as much. The future of baseball, they say, is shrouded in doubt.

For various reasons attendance everywhere has dropped far below the former average. But the salaries of the players have been forced to record figures as a result of the advent of the Federal league. The owners say unless there is an immediate revival of interest in the national pastime they won't be able to make ends meet.

The minor leagues are the hardest hit. The Baltimore club of the International league furnishes a splendid example of the situation. Manager Jack Dunn gathered together a strong aggregation and his club is topping the league. The fans, however, refuse to turn out to see the Orioles play, but are flocking out to the Federal league grounds. Recently Dunn has been forced to sell some of his star players to provide funds to finish out the season. He is talking now of selling all his players and retiring from baseball, about $250,000 in the hole.

"The game is to continue," said President Ed Barrow of the International league, "the salaries of the players drain on their pocketbooks. Bankruptcy is sure for certain owners unless there is an immediate change in the situation."

President Hempstead, of the New York Giants, says the situation is most pitiful. This, he said, is especially true of minor league owners. And he also admitted that the big fellows are not faring much better.

"Generally speaking," said Hempstead, "the present salaries cannot be paid by rate receivers. Many minor leagues have been badly injured by the tremendous rise in salaries."

THE ROUND-UP

A stretch of roadway 280 yards in length on Main street in the town of Banks has been rock surfaced, part of it at the extremely low cost of 10 cents a yard.

The campaign for a big natatorium at Round-Up park, Pendleton, is well under way and the East Oregonian says it seems assured of success. It is proposed to install a heating plant so that the pool may be used the year round.

The Baker Herald proclaims both in and under its largest head type that Baker's prosperity, as shown by every local banking index, is the greatest in the town's history. The deposits increase in one year has been half a million.

North Bend Harbor: The big four story hotel, 100x120 feet and to cost about $75,000, now seems a certainty. The soliciting committee has raised $83,000 and has fully $20,000 in small pledges in sight which have not been collected.

Cottage Grove's fire chief has ordered a steam whistle for fire alarm purposes, to be installed at the light plant. Part of the money was raised by a collection at a fire "water fight" with which the boys recently entertained the townspeople.

Appreciation of Oregon uttered by the Lebanon Express: "The hay is being safely stored and the hum of the threshing is heard in the land. Seed time and harvest; how much it means to mankind. Let us be thankful that we live in a country where failure in crop is unknown. Some years are better than others, but we need never fear a failure."

JAPAN IS READY AT ANY MOMENT

Has Her Swift Cruisers Ready for Dispatch at Any Time England's Interests Demand.

Tokio, Aug. 4.—Japan's swiftest cruisers were held in readiness today for dispatch to any place in oriental waters where they might be needed to protect British ports of shipping from attack.

The naval strength of Germany and its allies remained from all accounts concentrated at Tsing Tshan. Reports were expected at any time, however, of depredations on British merchant vessels and if any such were received, it was said the mihato's fighting craft would strike at once against the Kaiser's fleet.

That landings might be necessary to safeguard British interests at Wei-Hai-Wei or even Hongkong, in case the English squadron should be withdrawn from the latter port for service in the occident, was thought possible. Neither Germany nor any of its allies having large forces in the east, however, it was believed comparatively small detachments of marines would answer all purposes, so no extensive military preparations were being made.

BELGIANS WANT TO FIGHT.

Montreal, Quebec, Aug. 4.—Stirring scenes were enacted yesterday at the offices of the Belgian consul, Clarence De Sola, where Belgians congregated demanding to be sent back to fight the Germans. The men were furious at the reported raid of the Germans into Belgium and are literally clamoring to be returned.

William Bergholt, who, in the absence of the consul, is in charge of the German consulate in this city, has received official instructions giving notice of the recall from Canada of all Germans liable for military duty.

How they are to leave Canada is a problem, however, as they cannot go by ship from a Canadian port, and if they endeavor to cross the border into the United States, they may be held up by the immigration authorities.

BIG GERMAN LINER SHOWS UP IN MAINE

Kronprinzessin Cecile With Immense Treasure, Warned by Wireless, Puts Back and Lands at Bar Harbor.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 4.—The steamship Kronprinzessin Cecile of the North German Lloyd, which was supposed to be attempting to run the British war fleets' North Sea blockade and get into Hamburg, arrived here today.

Captain Pollock came ashore as soon as his ship anchored and communicated with the North German Lloyd's office in New York. He was reticent concerning the vessel's movements. The passengers, it was understood, wanted to land immediately.

The Kronprinzessin Cecile sailed from New York before the European crisis became so acute as at present. Its cabins were crowded with passengers and included in its cargo between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 in gold and silver consigned to English and French financial houses.

According to schedule the liner should have touched at Plymouth, England. It evidently was reached by wireless on the voyage, however, and warned that it would risk seizure by the British naval authorities if it touched there. On its failure to appear at Plymouth at proper time, it was assumed that it was trying to make a German port. On account of the treasure it carried, this naturally created tremendous excitement.

Its arrival here created the utmost excitement. Yachts and motorboats surrounded it immediately.

Although Captain Pollock would not discuss the Kronprinzessin's movements, it was learned from passengers that the wireless message to return to American waters was received Sunday night, when the ship was 800 miles off the English coast.

The same night, it was said, the Kronprinzessin intercepted a wireless message from one French warship to another informing the latter that the North German liner was in their vicinity and asking that a lookout be kept for it.

A dance was in progress at the time and the captain stopped it at once, had the deck lights extinguished, stretched canvas across the portholes and skylights, donned his goggles and ran at full speed and with his siren silent through a dense fog to the westward.

To the men passengers assembled in the smoking room, he explained the ship's danger but he refused to send wireless messages, lest they be picked up by the English or French ships and would not reveal the Kronprinzessin's destination, which was not known to the passengers until Bar Harbor was reached.

According to some of the passengers, the liner was chased, supposedly by a British warship, all of Monday night. The captain had taken the precaution, however, of having the funnel-tops painted black, to resemble the Olympic flag, which flies the British flag, so it was not considered certain that the pursuer identified the quarry, which, at any event, out-distanced the war craft.

It was understood that Captain Pollock asked his New York officers whether to go to New York, Boston, or to remain at Bar Harbor.

OSTEOPATHS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 4.—The eighteenth annual convention of the American Osteopathic association opened here today at the Bellevue-Stratford with 3000 delegates in attendance. Mayor Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, extended the official welcome for the city, and Governor Tener performed the same office as head of the state government. Dr. Percy H. Woodall, of Birmingham, Ala., president of the association, presided.

The two most important events of the week's session came today. The first was a report of the work of the central institute by the director, Dr. John Denson, of Chicago, who announced the first successful results of a number of experiments performed in the laboratory showing that displacements of the vertebrae in particular portions of the spine produced certain definite internal diseases, and that their removal resulted in effecting a cure. The other result of interest was the demonstration of the new cure for ear-tubal deafness by means of finger surgery in the throat by Dr. James E. Edwards of St. Louis.

Other papers were read today by Dr. T. J. Ruddy, of Los Angeles; Dr. H. E. Goetz, of St. Louis; Dr. C. W. McCurdy, of Philadelphia; Dr. R. G. Emery, of Los Angeles; Dr. C. E. Mutter, of Los Angeles; Dr. W. S. Nicholl, of Philadelphia; Dr. J. A. DeFiance, of Brooklyn; Dr. Joseph Ferguson, of Middletown, N. Y.; Dr. J. E. Foster, of Butler, Pa.; and Dr. L. B. Dismore and A. L. Gelbreath, of Oakland, Ill.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACING ON.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 4.—Under the auspices of the Great Western and Grand Circuit officials a five day program of trotting races opened today at the Grand Rapids track. Purses offered amount to $32,000. Many of the best trotting horses of the country are stabled here today.

Amos Strunk

By A. M. Corrigan.

Red McGhee says:

If Speaker's son should get some day or Travis Cobb should cease to play an join the prize-fight clan, what center-fighter star could fill their places—who could top the bill in that league ruled by Ban? There ain't no guy that I could pick who looks more fit to turn the trick than this guy Amos Strunk. For two years now I've watched this kid an' seen the class work he did. He's A-1, he—no bunk.

Speed! Say, that kid is like the wind. I don't believe Cobb has got him skinned a second on a mile. He rumps around that center field as if his feet were motor-boats an' turned up men's style. He's death on anything that's hit if it comes even near his mitt—back, front, ground ball or fly. When guys on bases let 'er rip an' take a chance on his left whip they almost always die.

But outfield stars must always bat. Well, just let Strunk take care of that. He shines at just that thing. He does his once-in-three-times hit an' it's a joy to watch him hit—long arms an' healthy swing. He ain't a groover, either, no. You can't tell where his hits'll go, to center, left or right. He's one sweet player—classy stock. If he keeps on he's bound to knock the hustler off his hit.

TALKS ON THRIFT.

NEEDING AND WANTING.

"No man ever sunk under the burden of the day. It is when tomorrow's burden is added to the burden of today that the burden is more than a man can bear."—George MacDonald.

The difference in the meaning of the two words "needing" and "wanting" is well illustrated by the disastrous experience of a young Chicago couple who got into trouble with the federal authorities because of the husband's efforts to counterfeite ten-dollar gold certificates.

From her prison cell, the young bride said to the reporters:

"I'm here because I thought I couldn't live on $65 a month. I had been used to fine things, and when my husband couldn't give them to me I'm afraid I showed my NEED for them. In his love for me he tried to get them. Now I know better. I would live with my husband and be happy if we had only $25 a month. If I only had it to do over again I'd do it all to please me. I wanted to wear nice clothes. I wanted things too comfortable. What a fool I've been! I'm to blame!"

This unfortunate young woman used the word "need," whereas she really meant that she "wanted" the things that her husband committed a crime to get for her.

The baby cries, "I want it, I want it," but the person of mature judgment has learned to distinguish between genuine needs and mere wants, even amid the many temptations of modern city life where a certain glamour is cast over reckless extravagance that gives it a fascination for those who can ill afford to follow in the footsteps of the rich, either idle or busy.

Consider for a moment the extravagance of the so-called "middle" and "upper" classes. Theaters, cafes and amusements of all kinds welcome the dweller in the city with open arms. Luxurious apartments in fabulous rentals house him while he supports or helps to support a retinue of servants clad in gold lace. He rides where once he walked—and the modern taxicab is a more costly luxury than his horse-drawn predecessor. Modern theater-going is no simple affair financially.

In the larger-cities the public's insistence upon the services of an agency that it pays twenty-five per cent commissions for providing theater tickets adds greatly to the cost of theater attendance. Added to this is the "after-theater supper," which in many communities is considered as one feature of the theater party.

Many persons "want" such things, but do not really "need" them.

J. W. LOGAN GETS 20 MONTHS IN PRISON

Portland, Ore., Aug. 4.—Having withdrawn his application for an appeal, J. W. Logan, who with W. F. Minard of Portland, was convicted last week on the charge of using the mails to defraud by locating settlers on lands forfeited to the United States government, is under sentence today of 20 months on McNeils Island.

Minard's application for a new trial will come up in the federal courts here in about three weeks.
