AS THE WAR APPEARS AFTER LAST FIGHT

Expert Analyzes Situation as It Appears From Present Position of Armies

(By J. T. W. Mason, former London correspondent for the United Press) New York, Sept. 17.—The Franco-British movement to envelop the German right wing northeast of Paris, under General Von Kluk, was developing strength again today.

Allied forces were moving eastward along the River Somme, apparently to sever as a nother wall to cut off the Kaiser's right.

For this movement to succeed, the German front, between Laon and Rheims, must be pierced, separating Von Kluk from the rest of the teutonic army.

Frequent mention of desperate encounters to secure the Aisne crossings and of Soissons is the key to this part of the allies' encircling strategy.

Once the roads on the Germans' side of the Aisne—the north—are held by the allies, Von Kluk's position will become precarious.

If the allies break through here and if their movement along the Somme manages simultaneously north of the German right, a situation unique in military annals may develop.

Von Kluk's lines northward and eastward will be cut and unless he can hew his way through he will be compelled to take refuge in the French fortifications of La Fere and Laon, which the allies deserted during their retreat toward Paris.

La Fere and Laon form together a vast entrenched camp but the German desertion of Rheims shows that the Kaiser's strategists have no more faith in entrenched camps than have the French.

If, however, Von Kluk's right wing should be caught in the LaFere-Laon trap, the remarkable situation would be presented of a German army resisting a French siege behind French defenses.

In the hope of avoiding this catastrophe, reinforcements have been sent to Von Kluk and with them he must keep open the northern and eastern roads.

Probably he will move his entire army to the northeastward of the La Fere-Laon line if the allies' pressure against it increases so that there will be no fortifications in its way in case it should be forced to run.

Russian reports that the czar's troops had surrounded the Austrians at the junction of the San and Vistula rivers either were premature, or, after the ring had been formed, it failed to hold.

The Austrians, at any rate, apparently were permitted and preparing for fresh resistance.

The retreating Austrian field forces have shown in the face of disaster is remarkable and shows that the men's spirit is far superior to the strategic or tactical abilities of their officers.

If it is true that the Austrians fought their way off of the San-Vistula trap, they may yet have enough defensive strength to compel a further postponement of the Russian march on Berlin.

While naturally at this time the business is purely speculative, it is having a tendency to stiffen the views of buyers considerably on the more favorable sizes.

Little movement of Oregon prunes has been shown. Local packers have been inclined to allow the market to drag because they were unwilling some time ago, when California was selling, to accept the lower prices available then.

A special advice, from New York states that California packers who sold large sizes in that market about a month or six weeks are not endeavoring to repurchase them. Some actual business in re-sales are reported at a very stiff premium over the initial prices.

STOOD SENTINEL AT BIRTH OF THE KAISER

Member of the German Nobility and Veteran of the Franco-German War of 1870 Passes Away at Asylum.

Far from the fatherland and its scenes of war, Louis Langovich Von der Hayde, who stood on duty as a sentinel outside the door when the present Kaiser Wilhelm was born, died today in the Oregon state hospital for the insane.

The old man was of the German nobility and served through the Franco-Prussian war as a general in the imperial army and later went through the Boer war. An entanglement in politics, however, caused him to leave his native land, renounce his citizenship and come to America.

Though in periods of sanity he was the dignified old soldier that rode into Paris at the head of his troops, the brooding over his enforced exile caused him to go insane and he was committed from Union county in 1905.

He had broken off from his powerful friends in Germany and died without their knowing of his misfortune. He had many friends among the attendants and officials at the asylum. He was 80 years of age and death was caused by organic heart trouble.

POLK COUNTY FAIR OPENS AT DALLAS TODAY

(Capital Journal Special Service.) Dallas, Ore., Sept. 17.—Preparations are being made and all the committees are ready and all that is left now is the bringing on of the exhibits.

The large pavilion is completed and also the large stock barns are nearing completion. The opening day will be one of interest, as the new carnival attraction is one of the latest and best-equipped shows on the road.

This is the first fair to be held on the new Polk county fair grounds, which are located west of Fairview avenue in the baseball park, which is owned by the commercial club of Dallas.

It is under the management of the women's club and the commercial club of Dallas. Secretary Miles and President Fuller, of the commercial club, with Mrs. Metzger of the women's club, are at the head of the fair.

Many committees are appointed for the management of each department, who take charge of each specific exhibit. The premiums are given for the best exhibits, but no outsiders of Polk county are to be given prizes.

The fruit exhibit will be one of the best in years, as many new orchards are in bearing, and Polk county is one of the best fruit counties in Oregon, several men of eastern Oregon are sending fruit to be exhibited in order to show us their products.

The fair commences today and continues until the 19th, lasting for three days. Many kinds of amusements are ready for the public, and it is expected that this will be one of the best times that Dallas has ever seen, for the people are behind this fair and extend a hearty welcome to everybody and ask them to come and enjoy themselves in the merry-making.

The Dallas band will play on each day and will give a concert on the evening following the opening date of the fair.

NEVADA WILL EXHIBIT. Reno, Nev., Sept. 17.—Influenced by sentiment in the various counties of the state, the Nevada commissioners today voted to go ahead with the original plan of spending $90,000 for exhibits at the exposition in San Francisco and San Diego in 1915.

There is more Catarth in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarth to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

Half's Catarth Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

"C" grade, or about the same as the extra fancy, so the root of the whole matter is, "Can we put our 'C' grade on the market cheaper than we are doing without hurting our best grade? Is it worth a while or is it sensible to put a low grade apple through the same expense as the apple that would bring twice the price, pulling our average down to nothing on the good apple? Compare the boxing of this grade with the barrel method. The barrel is considered the cheap-grade method. Then why not use it with the cheap grade apple? A box costs 10 cents, a barrel 25 cents. Three boxes would go into a barrel, saving 5 cents on every barrel. Packing three boxes into a barrel, facing top and bottom, would cost no more than packing one box and would save another 10 cents. Twelve cents would be saved on paper, and Exchange could handle the barrel at 25 cents, saving another five cents per barrel. This same would apply to any local exchange. Assuming these figures to be correct, a barrel would cost:

Table showing costs for barrel and boxes of apples.

Total $1.17 As against: Three boxes $1.30 Local $1.15 Paper $1.12 Packing $1.15 Hauling $1.15 Exchange $1.30

Total $1.17 It is a question to be worked out, whether this grade of apple can be marketed by the barrel. If it can, and along economic lines, it seems more than possible that it will be done away some day.
